SET PRICE LIMIT ON 44 ELECTRIC HOUSEHOLD AIDS

Consider Ceiling on All Civil Goods.

Washington, D. C., April 3 [Special].—While consideration was being given proposals to freeze prices of all consumer goods as a curb on inflation and to order further sweeping curtailments in the production of civilian goods, wartime government agencies today took the following actions:

1. Price ceilings were imposed on 44 common electrical household appliances, the production of which previously had been ordered halted on May 31.

2. Production of all types of office machinery was ordered confined to needs of military forces and government agencies in preparation for the industry's 100 per cent conversion to armament work.

Effective Next Tuesday.

The electrical appliance ceiling becomes effective next Tuesday when prices of the items listed are to be frozen at the levels of March 30. The ceiling applies to retail, wholesale, and manufacturers' prices and will continue in effect until June 5 unless superseded meantime by a permanent maximum price schedule.

"The action was taken," explained John E. Hamm, acting administrator of the Office of Price Administration, "to prevent runaway prices in view of the forthcoming halt in production. The rationing of these articles is not now contemplated."

The articles covered by the ceiling include biscuit and muffin bakers, bottle warmers, bread toasters, broilers, casseroles, chafing dishes, cigar and cigaret lighters, clothes dryers, coffee makers, corn poppers, curling irons, deep fat fryers, double broilers, dry shavers, egg cookers, fan type heaters, fans, flatirons, food and plate warmers, and food mixers.

Other items included are griddles, hair clippers, hair dryers, hotplates and disc stoves, immersion heaters, juice extractors, massage vibrators, neckwear and trouser pressers, ovens, pads and blankets, percolators, portable air heaters, roasters, sandwich toasters, smoothing irons, table stoves, tea kettles, tea tables, unit radiator heaters, urns, vaporizers, waffle irons, water heaters, and whippers.

Previously Set Ceilings.

The OPA already has established maximum retail prices on the new household mechanical refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, radios, washing and ironing machines, and typewriters.

To circumvent attempts to evade the price schedule, the regulations contain prohibitions against decreasing allowances for transportation and for cash or quantity discounts, or increasing charges for time payments and repair services. Manipulating price increases thru pyramiding the federal excise tax also was forbidden.

The curtailment in production of office machinery was ordered by the War Production board, which notified manufacturers that their future output must be confined to items needed by the army, navy, and other governmental agencies, including the lend-lease authority.

After a sufficient stock of machinery has been accumulated, it was said, the industry is to be converted entirely to armament work.

The industry was told to discontinue production of cash registers, coin handling and change making machines, envelope handling machines, and others used primarily by civilians. It must concentrate on making accounting, addressing, billing, duplicating, adding, dictating, calculating, computing, and reporting machines.

OPA Studies More Curbs.

These actions were taken as OPA officials confirmed that a proposal for a vertical price ceiling on all consumer goods, at both retail and wholesale levels, was being studied. The sweeping price freezing plan would apply to all consumer goods not already under ceiling orders. The OPA has jurisdiction over prices on all goods, whether they are vital to the war effort or not.

The officials emphasized, however,

HERE'S SUMMARY OF NEWS FROM BATTLE FRONTS

Latest war developments:

American defenders on Bataan peninsula again have repelled Japanese attacks at various points, inflicting "considerable" losses on the enemy, and forcing a relative lull in the battle, according to the war department. Japanese planes and artillery bombed and shelled Corregidor and other forts in Manila bay.

Flying Forts Attack from India.

The first attack from India by American flying fortresses resulted in the firing of a Japanese cruiser and a troop ship and damage to two other vessels at Port Blair in the Andaman Islands, it was announced. The raid was led personally by Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, head of the United States army's Indian air force, the first communique issued at New Delhi said.

On the Burma front, the British reported they had withdrawn from Prome, once the western strong point of the Burma defense line, because of extreme Japanese pressure. A spokesman denied that Japanese had landed at Akyab, west Burma port only 100 miles from India.

Guerrillas Attack Nazis.

Russia reported that guerrilla forces had attacked German lines about Smolensk, destroying 36 bridges, three tanks, 300 ammunition carts, and killing 500 Nazis and capturing 22. It also was announced that 12 enemy submarines had been sunk in the Baltic sea since the war began.

Pictures published by Germans showed the RAF wrought "catastrophic" damage in an air raid on Luebeck, Baltic port, a Swiss reporter in Berlin revealed.

SINGAPORE LINER REACHES BRITAIN WITH 900 ABOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 3.—Nearly 900 evacuees have reached a British port on one of the last liners to get away from Singapore, it was announced tonight. During the voyage four babies were born and all were named after the ship, the identity of which was withheld.

The passengers were from Malaya and the Dutch East Indies. They had only a few scattered belongings. Many of the wives aboard said they had no idea what has happened to their soldier husbands. They deplored the inadequate war preparations in Malaya and Singapore.

The ship was attacked by planes the morning it sailed and again in the straits between Batavia, Java, and Sumatra, but there was no damage from the bombs.

Bowling Wants to Be Rated as War Industry

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] said today that an attempt was being made to keep bowling supplies and equipment off the list of restricted commodities on the theory that bowling is an essential defense industry.

Byrd, chairman of the joint economy committee and frequent critic of the government's physical fitness division, attributed the campaign to Jack M. Willem of Chicago, national coördinator of bowling.

He told the senate that Willem had been identified to him as an executive of the Stack-Globe Advertising agency which, he said, handles the account of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company. This company in turn, he said, holds a virtual monopoly on the manufacture of bowling equipment.

Mails at U. S. Expense.

Willem sent out a circular letter March 14, "at the expense of the government," Byrd declared, addressed to bowlers and bowling leagues thruout the country. He quoted from the letter:

"Almost every product used in the maintenance of bowling equipment and supplies is now on or soon will be placed on the restricted list of commodities for civilian use.

"Should this happen, pins, alley finishes, repair parts, etc., would be 'frozen' and bowling's future will be seriously threatened. Without the necessary maintenance supplies, there will be no bowling as we know it now.

Called Morale Safeguard.

"It is up to you to help continue to prove that bowling has a definite place in building up and safeguarding America's civilian morale and physical fitness."

Willem then asked, Byrd went on, that letters be obtained from business firms "to the effect that bowling has helped their workers and that the letters be sent to him for the purpose of influencing the proper agency of the government not to restrict the manufacture of bowling equipment and supplies on the basis that bowling is an essential defense industry."

580 MILLIONS WAR OUTPUT BY AUTO FIRMS IN 3 MONTHS

Detroit, Mich., April 3.—Utilizing its mass production methods, the automobile industry delivered 580 million dollars' worth of guns, tanks, planes, and other combat instruments to the army and navy in the first three months of this year, George Romney, managing director of the Automotive Council for War Production, reported today.

This total represented an increase of 218 million dollars over arms deliveries in the last quarter of 1941, and Romney said the nation could count on even greater gains in the months ahead. He predicted that deliveries during 1942 would aggregate between 5 billion and 6 billion dollars, unless unforeseen difficulties were encountered.

U. S. MOVES 242 AXIS ENVOYS TO ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Asheville, N. C., April 3 (AP).—Two special trains of 11 cars each brought axis diplomats and their retinues here from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., today and they were interned at Grove Park Inn, swank resort hotel, here for the duration of the war or until an exchange can be arranged.

The party of 242 included Italian, Bulgarian and Rumanian officials. They were met at the station by buses which took them immediately to the hotel. The United States marshal here and railway police aided federal officials who brought the foreigners here.

NEW DRAFT BOARD MEMBERS.

Paul G. Armstrong, state draft director, yesterday announced the appointment of 722 new members of draft boards in Illinois, increasing the membership of each board from three to five men. A list of the appointments to boards in Chicago, Cook and surrounding counties is published on page 11.

German Photos Reveal Heavy Luebeck Losses

BERNE, Switzerland, April 3 (AP).—The first published photographs of the damage inflicted on Luebeck by the RAF last Saturday night show "without exaggeration that the effects were catastrophic," the Berlin correspondent of the Tribune de Geneve reported today.

"Some hundreds of properties were demolished like castles of cardboard and some streets were entirely blasted by explosions," he wrote.

The photographs, he said, confirmed earlier reports from Berlin that the raid was "the heaviest British air attack on German territory since the beginning of the war." He reported more than 200 bodies have been recovered from the ruins.

A Paris dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve said last night's RAF bombing of Poissy, Paris suburb where the Matford truck plant is located, caused 300 casualties, including wounded, and caused heavy damage.

Raids Continued by British.

LONDON, April 3 (AP).—The royal air force, in a daylight continuation of the most extensive two sided aerial operations in many months, today attacked Nazi bases at Boulogne, Calais and other enemy occupied areas.

Overnight air attacks brought the fiercest exchange of blows in months as the RAF delivered its third assault on the Matford truck plant in the Poissy suburb of Paris and the German air force gave a south coast British center one of its worst raids of the war.

A southeast English town also was hit. The English targets were identified by the Germans as Portland [south coast naval base] and Dover.

The Germans were over the southeast coast again tonight, but no bombings were reported. A lone raider dropped bombs in southwest England, causing slight damage, it was announced.

Lose Only Two Planes.

Altho they ranged from Belgium to Brittany, the RAF lost only two planes compared to Wednesday night's 15. Pilots reported heavy new damage to the Matford plant, which is producing trucks for the Germans.

Docks at Le Havre again were raided.

PLANE TENDER GOES DOWN OFF JAVA; 4 ENEMY VESSELS HIT IN BENGAL BAY

Eyewitness Stories of Fight Told by Commanders.

San Francisco, Cal., April 3 (AP).—The commanding officers of the United States aircraft tender Langley and the fleet tanker Pecos today told how their ships were sunk while fighting a 52 hour running battle with enemy bombers in the Indian ocean south of Java between Feb. 27 and March 1.

"The Langley was literally smothered with bombs," said Commander R. P. McConnell, who told the story upon his arrival in the United States.

The Pecos, which was sunk while carrying the survivors of the Langley to safety, was attacked by three formations of dive bombers, her skipper, Commander E. P. Abernethy, reported. Abernethy arrived in San Francisco with McConnell.

Lose Two Ships in Two Days.

Having had two ships shot out from under them in a little more than two days, the survivors of the 11,050 ton Langley spent between four and six hours in the water. A few had lifeboats.

"We were carrying supplies in the combat zone," said tall, blond Commander McConnell, "when we were sighted by a hostile observation plane on the morning of Feb. 27.

"About noon a formation of bombers was reported and we prepared for battle. They made a series of approaches, dropping bombs twice from formations of nine planes each and from about 15,000 feet altitude.

"The second run of bombs was very effective. The Langley was practically smothered. We were in the midst of the salvo and the damage forced us to leave the ship.

Hasten Ship's End.

"Our escort destroyers performed very commendably in the battle as well as in rescuing the Langley survivors. After the men had been picked up the destroyers hastened the sinking of the tender so that material would not fall into enemy hands."

The Langley still carried sections of her flying deck, but it was not usable as such. No planes were launched from her during the battle.

"We didn't get any of the enemy planes," McConnell said. He added that he had no aircraft support during the encounter.

The battle lasted a little more than two hours.

The next morning the destroyers attempted to transfer the Langley survivors to the 5,400 ton Pecos, which was about 30 miles distant at the beginning of the fight. But both ships still were subject to bombing attack and apparently were not far from an enemy submarine. The transfer was not carried out at the time.

Ordered to Rendezvous.

They kept moving and the transfer was carried out the next morning.

Taking up the story there, Comm. Abernethy said he was ordered to a small island south of Java to meet the destroyers carrying the Langley survivors but a formation of enemy bombers appeared and the destroyers moved away from the rendezvous.

The next day, March 1, the Pecos lowered a motor launch and made 11 trips to the destroyers, picking up all the survivors without loss of men or materiel. The transfer started during the early morning and was completed about 8 a. m.

The tanker headed toward Australia. Soon enemy planes were sighted.

"I felt," said Abernethy, "that we were in for serious trouble. About noon a formation of six dive bombers launched a round of bombs at us and our ship was hit. One explosion knocked the crew from a gun but another crew was able to take up action.

"We Kept Shooting."

"These same six bombers then loosed another round at us. Then a second flight of six planes came over and cut loose but we remained afloat and kept shooting.

"On their third flight there were nine dive bombers and some other planes. The damage to the Pecos was progressive and she finally sank by Tanker Carrying Rescued Sailors Sent to Bottom.

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—Destruction of three United States naval vessels by Japanese aerial bombardment with an estimated loss of more than 700 officers and men was disclosed by the navy tonight in a tragic account of fighting against overwhelming enemy air superiority.

The ships were:

The 11,050 ton aircraft tender Langley, once converted from a collier to become this country's pioneer aircraft carrier, and recently converted into a tender to serve sea as well as airplanes. The Langley was sunk off Java in late February with a loss of only 14 men.

Bombed at Port Darwin.

The 1,190 ton destroyer Peary, oft-bombed unit of the Asiatic fleet which was attacked in harbor at Darwin, northern Australian port, about Feb. 19. Loss of life was understood to be light.

The 5,400 ton tanker Pecos, which was heavily bombed and finally sunk early in March, a few days after the loss of the Langley.

What made the loss of the Pecos doubly bitter was the fact that she was loaded with several hundred survivors of the Langley.

Pick Up Langley Victims.

Destroyers picked up the Langley's survivors, and, presumably having combat duties ahead, later transferred them to the Pecos. That vessel, normally employed in fueling fleet units in the southwestern Pacific, then was attacked and sunk.

The loss of these three ships raised to a total of 25 the number of naval losses during the war.

Two of the commanders of the three ships were rescued. They were Commander Robert P. McConnell of the Langley, San Diego, Cal., and Commander Elmer P. Abernethy of the Pecos, Los Angeles, Cal. Lieut. Comm. John Michael Bermingham of New York City, commander of the Peary, was killed.

Text of Communique.

Here is the official story of the sinking of the three ships as told by the navy's communique:

"1. The United States aircraft tender Langley, the naval tanker Pecos and the destroyer Peary were sunk by the enemy in the vicinity of northern Australia and waters south of Java in late February and early March.

"2. A number of survivors from these ships were rescued and reached port safely. The next of kin of all personnel lost in the Pecos have been notified. The next of kin of those lost in the Langley and Flying Fortresses Smash Foe's Fleet Near Burma.

LONDON, April 4 [Saturday]—(AP).—Huge United States flying fortress bombers have spread their wings over the Burma front for the first time and, taking off from bases in India under the personal command of Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, have set fire to one Japanese cruiser and a troopship and probably damaged two other ships in the Bay of Bengal.

The action—the first by this new outpost of American arms—took place at Port Blair in the Andaman Islands, recently occupied by the Japanese as a base from which to prey on the supply route to India and China.

The first communique issued by the New Delhi headquarters of Gen. Brereton, who is commander of the United States air forces in India, said one enemy fighter was encountered and that enemy anti-aircraft fire was intense. But all the American ships returned safely and without damage, according to the communique as published today in the Daily Sketch here.

Attack as Japs Press On.

This first activity of American heavy bombers in this theater came as the Japanese were pressing the British hard in Burma to the north.

The text of the communique:

"American flying fortresses of the United States air forces made their first attack from India today.

"Led by Maj. Gen. Lewis Brereton, commanding the United States air forces in India, a squadron of heavy bombers attacked the enemy's shipping at Port Blair [Andaman Islands] setting fire to one Japanese cruiser and one troopship and probably damaging two other ships.

"An enemy fighter was encountered and intense anti-aircraft fire, but no damage was sustained. All our aircraft returned safely."

Lieut. Gen. H. R. L. G. Alexander, commander of the British forces in Burma, has been promoted to a full general, the official gazette announced.

Withdraw in Burma.

NEW DELHI, India, April 3 (AP).—Extreme Japanese pressure in a nightlong battle in the jungle country along the Irrawaddy river forced the British to withdraw northward today from Prome, heretofore the western strong point of the Burma defense lines.

British headquarters said the British imperial "covering force in Prome" had pulled back northward to "the main defense" Thursday. This suggested that the rail and river city never had been counted upon as the place to make a decisive stand for the defense of the oil fields, 40 to 80 miles to the north.

Japs Advance to Outposts.

Prome at the moment apparently was unoccupied. A military spokesman said that the Japanese had advanced only to the outskirts, altho holding the heights south of town.

The present British main line was not identified, but probably was between Prome and the Maton river, 20 miles north.

A spokesman denied reports from Chungking that the Japanese had landed at Akyab, a west Burma port scarcely 100 miles from India.

"General headquarters have been in direct contact with Akyab this morning," he said. "We were informed by authorities at Akyab that there was no sign of Japanese anywhere."

Mystery Plane Bombs Town in Sweden on Finn Border

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 3.—An unidentified bomber last night dropped five explosive bombs on the outskirts of the Swedish-Finnish frontier town of Haparanda, but caused no casualties or damage. Haparanda is separated from the Finnish town of Tornio only by the narrow Tornio river, spanned by a railroad bridge. The bomber came from an easterly direction and, it is thought, tried to blow up the bridge.

U-BOATS SINK 3 SHIPS, TUGBOAT, AND TWO BARGES

Tow Blasted by Shellfire Off East Coast.

The sinking of three more American merchant vessels by submarines in the Caribbean sea and the sinking of a tugboat and two of its three barges off the Atlantic coast were made known yesterday.

Eleven seamen were rescued and 16 are missing from the tugboat and the barges, 33 were rescued and one is missing from one of the freighters, the entire crew of 35 was rescued from the second freighter, and the number of rescued or missing from the third freighter was not made known.

Sinking of the three freighters, the tugboat, and the two barges brought to 114 the number of vessels sunk off American shores since Pearl Harbor. In these sinkings 795 persons are known to be dead, 982 are missing, and 2,735 have been rescued. Details follow:

ATTACKED BY SHELL FIRE

Norfolk, Va., April 3 (AP).—Turning from its usual preying upon tankers and freighters, a submarine attacked a tugboat and its three-barge tow off the Atlantic coast early Tuesday morning, sinking the tug and two of the barges with shell fire.

The tug's master and chief engineer and nine crewmen aboard the barges were rescued and 16 men aboard the tug were missing, the 5th naval district said in announcing the sinking today.

Leslie Haynie of Reedville, Va., and H. R. Bateman of Norfolk, the tug's master and chief engineer, respectively, were picked up by a northbound merchant ship and landed at the coast guard station at Lewes, Del. The nine bargemen were rescued by coast guardsmen and brought ashore at Norfolk.

Shell Hits Cabin.

Capt. Haynie said his tug was attacked between 2:30 and 3:00 a. m., March 31, by a submarine which fired a shell thru the captain's cabin, destroying the radio room.

Eight or ten shells then were fired into the barges, and the submarine headed the tug off as it attempted to escape.

3 SINKINGS TOLD

New York, April 3 (AP).—The navy today announced the submarine sinking of two medium size American freighters in the Caribbean sea, and maritime sources in Havana, Cuba, said a third American freighter had been torpedoed and sunk somewhere north of Cuba.

Details of the sinking north of Cuba were not given. The navy said the two other freighters had been sunk several weeks ago.

The entire crew of 35 was rescued 14 hours after two torpedoes struck one of the freighters.

Survivors of the second freighter said they spent six days in open boats and sailed 545 miles in shark-infested waters before they were rescued. One man was missing from the crew of 34.

AUSTRALIA GETS OFFICIAL REPORT ON MALAYA'S FALL

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 3 (AP).—An official report by Lieut. Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett on the disastrous Malayan campaign, which is expected to provide information for mapping Australia's defense, will be submitted to the cabinet and advisory war council this week-end. War Minister Francis M. Forde tonight said a copy of this report by the only senior allied officer to escape from Singapore already has been forwarded to London.

As a major general, Bennett commanded Australian forces in Malaya and upon his return to Australia was promoted to lieutenant general and put in command of a new corps.

U. S. MAY ASSIGN OFFICIAL ENVOY TO THE VATICAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—President Roosevelt today revealed that the question of permanent American representation at the Vatican is under consideration. He said he could not say at present whether this country would or would not have such representation because of the transportation difficulty. He declared that no negotiations have been opened looking toward an exchange of diplomats.

The Holy See has become a diplomatic listening post of great importance since the outbreak of the war. The United States once had diplomatic representation at the Vatican but brought it away at the time of the unification of Italy when the papal states ceased to exist.

Recently Mr. Roosevelt sent Myron C. Taylor as a personal ambassador to Pope Pius XII., but the former steel executive was not the representative of the American people or the American government.

Last month the Japanese opened negotiations for an exchange of diplomatic representatives with the Vatican. Mr. Roosevelt disclosed today that the Chinese had made similar overtures. Britain also has made representations looking toward such an exchange.

PRESIDENT ASKS NATION TO NAME WAR NOW RAGING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—President Roosevelt today called for help in finding a concise yet picturesque name for the present war.

He said he does not want to invent the name himself and would rather have the name come from the people than from officials, so he was asking the press and radio to put the question to the country.

The perfect name would get over the thought that the war is for the preservation of smaller nations and democracies of the world, he said, but conceded that it will be a pretty good sized job to get all of that into a short term. He said he did not know how to do it.

Mr. Roosevelt said he did not like the term Second World war or World war II., because they are inadequate. He said government agencies had asked for a better term to use in official correspondence.

CLAIM GERMANS SUPPORT PLAN TO UNIFY CHURCHES

BERNE, Switzerland, April 3.—Reports from Germany today said that the "spiritual church" movement launched by the imprisoned Rev. Martin Niemoeller, calling for the unification of the Catholic and Protestant churches in Germany "for their mutual protection," is gaining adherents to a "gratifying" degree.

Reports in church circles in Geneva, Switzerland, state that the principal supporters of the movement have been recruited from the intellectuals of Berlin, Munich, Wurtzburg, and Koenigsberg.

U. S. PILOT SAVES HIMSELF IN JAVA ON A BICYCLE

Commandeers Wheel After Leap with Chute.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Australia, April 3.—The story of an American fighter pilot who narrowly escaped capture by jumping on the handlebars of a passing bicycle ridden by a startled Javanese was told today by a United States army spokesman.

The pilot is Lieut. Frank E. Adkins, whose address was not given. He was a member of a pursuit squadron in the Netherlands East Indies. The squadron shot down 39 planes for certain, probably downed 26 others, and damaged a number on fields for which no claims were made.

While on patrol duty over Java before the fall of that island, Adkins engaged in a dog fight in which his plane was disabled.

Parachutes to Safety.

With only jungle and water-filled rice paddies beneath him, the American took to his parachute. It opened soon after he cleared the plane and as he floated earthward he was startled to observe a Japanese invasion force landing in barges 200 yards from where he would land.

As he neared the ground the pilot loosened his chute straps, and the minute he touched earth threw the parachute off. He ran as fast as he could away from the Japanese, who were already on the beach.

After a short dash thru the jungle he came upon a road along which a sarong clad native was pedaling a bicycle. Adkins flagged him down and by using sign language made him understand that he wanted to hitch a ride. Climbing on the handle bars, he urged the native to pedal as fast as he could toward the interior.

Leaves Native Behind.

The best speed the Javanese could make wasn't good enough, however, and before long the Javanese found himself on the handle bars with Adkins pedaling furiously as shots from the landing party echoed thru the jungle. This worked all right until the pair rode into the hills. Here, Adkins decided to dispense with the services of the native on the handlebars and carry on himself.

He made better time thereafter and within a few miles was picked up by a Dutch officer in a car.

Squadron Commander Killed.

Maj. Charles A. Sprague, commander of Adkins' squadron, was killed in one dog fight. American losses in the Java battle were described as comparatively light.

Of the 39 enemy aircraft known to have been shot down, 20 were Japanese navy Zero fighters, 14 were heavy bombers, four were Japanese army 97s, and one was a German Messerschmitt 110.

The heavily worked squadron saw service as a bomber escort and made patrol flights on which it broke up a number of enemy bomber formations. The planes were used also as reconnaissance craft and to protect bomber fields. On a number of occasions the pilots strafed enemy invasion parties.

Operating with American dive bombers, the squadron attacked 60 transport and war vessels approaching Surabaya, the Dutch naval base on Java, causing "damage and casualties." Off Rembang, Java, they strafed 30 ships and invasion barges. They participated in an attack on a Bali invasion convoy during which they downed three Japanese navy Zeros.

Credit for the most official victories of the squadron was given to Lieut. William J. Hennon of Minnesota, who downed three enemy planes for certain. His squadron mates said he had several other "probables." Six other lieutenants were officially credited with two each.

Boy Given New Leg

Duane Bjorklund waves his crutches aloft.

Duane Bjorklund's hopes of playing again like other boys his age received a real boost yesterday. Duane is 13 years old, and lives at 8320 South 72d court, Oak Lawn.

Last June, Duane was struck by a hit and run automobile. His left leg was amputated to save his life. He had been active in Boy Scout work and at school, and he wasn't sure he could ever play again. Then yesterday his outlook changed.

He was invited to the office of the Bardach-Schoene company, 102 South Canal street, makers of artificial limbs, and fitted with an artificial leg free. "It feels swell, and now I can play baseball again!" exclaimed Duane. The leg was made personally by Waldemar Schoene, part owner of the company, who had heard of the boy's plight and learned his family could not easily purchase the limb.

Nazis House Submarines 'Like Cars in a Garage'

LONDON, April 3 (AP).—The Berlin radio reported today that U-boats for Atlantic operations were housed "like cars in a garage" in new drydocks built along the west coast of Europe by Todt engineering units. The broadcast, quoting a Berlin newspaper, said the drydocks were roofed with concrete to make them safe against air attacks.

11 ARMY FLYERS DIE IN CRASHES OF 4 AIRPLANES

5 Lose Lives as Bomber Cracks Up in Woods.

Nine army flyers were killed yesterday in crashes of three army planes, one of them a bomber. Two other army airmen died Thursday night when their training plane crashed. Five flyers lost their lives in the bomber, which crashed near West Greenwich, R. I., three were killed when their plane crashed near Columbia, S. C., and a flying cadet died when his plane fell into the Gulf of Mexico. The training plane in which a pilot and a cadet were killed crashed near Leary, Ga. Details follow:

CRASHES IN WOODLAND

West Greenwich, R. I., April 3 (AP).—An army medium bomber crashed into the woodlands here today and exploded, killing all five occupants—two officers and three enlisted men—the 1st corps area announced.

Military intelligence at Mitchell field on Long Island identified the victims as:

Second Lieut. George L. Dover, 24 years old, the pilot, Shelby, N. C.

Second Lieut. N. W. Frame, 24, copilot, Portarville, Cal.

Staff Sergt. R. H. Trammel, 21, radio operator, Brunswick, Ga.

Private R. R. Meredith, 21, bombardier, Memphis, Tenn.

Private T. J. Rush, 27, gunner, Philadelphia, Pa.

Residents reported they found two bodies but could not get near the plane because of terrific heat and dense smoke. The explosion tore a crater 200 feet in diameter and started a fire in the woods, which was extinguished.

Fritz Palmborg said the plane came down half a mile from his house and that he heard three or four small explosions just before it struck the ground.

CRASHES AFTER TAKEOFF

Columbia, S. C., April 3 (AP).—Three occupants of an army plane were killed today when the plane crashed at the Lexington airport, five miles southeast of here.

Public relations officers at the field said the plane was piloted by Second Lieut. G. F. Hayman Jr. of Tampa, Fla., with First Lieut. A. C. Darden of Franklin, Va., and Sergt. O. D. Fischer of Little Rock, Ark., as copilot and mechanic.

The plane crashed and burned soon after it had taken off for a return flight to Augusta, Ga.

FLYING IN FORMATION

Victoria, Tex., April 3 (AP).—Flying Cadet George M. Duvall, 24 years old, of Columbus, O., was killed today in the crash of his pursuit training plane into Matagorda bay on the Gulf Mexico while flying in a formation.

ON TRAINING FLIGHT

Albany, Ga., April 3 (AP).—Second Lieut. Hinton S. McLeod, 26, of Fayetteville, N. C., and Aviation Cadet Emerson W. Kaler, of Crestline, O., were killed last night when their plane crashed near Leary on a training flight.

Principals in Duel

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Maj. William H. Wenstrom (left) and Maj. Buell Hammett.

Santa Barbara, Cal., April 3 (AP).—Mrs. Evelyn Wenstrom, widowed in a blazing gun duel between two retired army majors, died today of a bullet wound suffered as an innocent bystander.

Her husband, Maj. William H. Wenstrom, 45 years old, was killed last night in the point blank exchange of shots with Maj. Buell Hammett, 44.

The gunplay, Police Chief Fred Hoelscher said, grew out of a quarrel over whether the Santa Barbara home guard unit should be trained as a guerrilla force or integrated into the state guard.

Hammett was shot in the hip, a .38 caliber bullet fracturing his pelvic bone. Physicians said he would recover.

BRITISH CALMLY TELL WHY THEY LOST SINGAPORE

Sift Reasons After Row Over Its Fall.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 1 [Delayed].—Now that the period of name calling and personal recrimination about the fall of Singapore has passed, and the angry men who witnessed the British empire's greatest military disaster since Yorktown have had a chance to cool off, it is interesting to find out what they think caused the downfall of the "Gibraltar of the East."

Today, I talked to many men who had left Singapore in its last hours and to one who had left Port Dickson [on the west coast of Malaya] by sampan after Singapore Island had been captured.

They agreed the enemy's overwhelming air superiority was the No. 1 cause for Britain's defeat.

What British Might Have Had.

The British, they said, might have had a good intelligence service, instead of bad information about the enemy; they might have had dynamic civil and military leadership, instead of fumbling heads of the army and government in whom no one had any confidence, and they might have had well trained jungle fighters.

But none of these things would have made any difference without hard hitting air support.

There is no mystery about the fall of Malaya and Singapore. London and Washington, D. C., it is claimed here, decided on a policy of bluff instead of bullets for the western Pacific, and for a time it worked. But when the Japanese called for a showdown in the international poker game, there was nothing for the democracies to do but throw down their cards and hope for better luck next time—they could not even call, much less raise, the Japanese ante.

Other Reasons for Debacle.

It is generally realized now that the men on the spot were not entirely to blame. True, many of them were incompetent; but Singapore survivors and Australians say they were the inevitable victims of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's decision that Britain was of first importance, the middle east came second, and the western Pacific was way down the line.

In addition to the lack of air support, direct reasons for the Malayan debacle, many of which could have been avoided under better management, can be listed as follows:

1. Lack of dynamic military and civilian leadership.
2. Weak intelligence and poor use of what information about the enemy was obtained.
3. Naval inferiority.
4. The policy of bluff, which even Britain and America began to believe.
5. Strategy of continual withdrawal, which soon became a habit, sometimes even when not necessary.
6. An initial underestimate of the Japanese, then an overestimate, which spurred withdrawals.
7. Inability to anticipate what the enemy would do next, plus inability to adapt army manual precepts to specalized jungle warfare.

Long ago London decided that, since there was not enough equipment to go round, the thing to do was to bluff the Japanese. To that end, a propaganda bureau was set up in Singapore to advertise the theory that Singapore was impregnable.

It was a sea fortress; but the Japanese never attacked from the sea.

Many American correspondents in the two years before the Pacific war began were taken in by this propaganda. They wrote about the island's strength, which did not fool the Japanese, but which began to fool the very people who decided on the policy.

Admits Propaganda Backfired.

Today I talked to one of the men responsible for this propaganda. He is convinced it staved off the Japanese attack for six months, but admitted that it also had the effect of preventing London and Washington from sending supplies, due to the impression that the island could take care of itself.

For example, on June 28, 1941, Dr. Victor Purcell, then director of the Malayan information bureau, said:

"The imperial government has sent us sailors, soldiers, airmen, and munitions," adding that Singapore had been "turned into a mighty bastion of empire."

As late as Nov. 18, Gov. Sir Shenton Thomas of the Straits Settlement [British Malaya] was talking about "men and materials arriving in an ever increasing stream."

No Aerial Reconnaissance.

This propaganda began to be believed by Singapore's military men, who should have known better. When the first Japanese convoy was reported headed for Malaya, no reconnaissance planes were sent out. Forty-eight hours before the attack a Singapore intelligence officer estimated there would be no attack inside of two months.

Lack of air support meant more than just failure to drive the enemy bombers away. It meant that the army was almost totally without aerial reconnaissance. At Tapah, a British general told me [during my trip into northern Malaya during the campaign] that he repeatedly had asked for scouting planes to determine which way the enemy was advancing. None was forthcoming. As a result, he had to split his meager force between two roads. Neither was strong enough to put up much of a show.

The Slim river break-thru resulted from the failure of air reconnaissance to report the arrival of large Japanese tank forces, which laid the forward brigade open to complete encirclement.

Raids Break Down Morale.

At Kuala Selangor at the mouth of the Selangor river and west of Kuala Lumpur dozens of small Japanese craft lay for 24 hours just outside range of the British artillery. No naval or air assistance was forthcoming and a party of 500 Japanese landed, with the result that much heavier British forces had to be diverted from the forward area to deal with them, since their strength was not known.

I witnessed the steady disintegration of allied morale as a result of the continual bombing and machine gunning of truck convoys, troops, and artillery positions.

"Give us air support," was the cry everywhere.

Even what planes there were were unable to get off the ground because of ceaseless Japanese air patrol over the fields.

Lack of Leadership Cited.

When Singapore Island was attacked, there was never an hour from dawn to dusk when the enemy was not dive bombing and machine gunning troops. It was necessary to lie face buried in the mud all day, survivors said.

The lack of real leadership was a great problem. Military leaders apparently could not decide where to make a stand. Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham [former British commander in Malaya] is described as a broken man because his repeated pleas to London for aircraft went unheeded, both before and during the war.

Lack of Naval Power.

With the loss of the capital ships Repulse and Prince of Wales, the allies lacked heavy ships to attack convoys approaching Malaya across the South China sea. All allied shipping was driven out of this area.

Months before the war, I was told by a well informed source today, the British decided on a strategy of withdrawal in Malaya if attacked from the land side. The plan was to withdraw to a prepared line, such as the Slim river, and make a stand.

This theory rapidly got out of hand, however, and continual retreat gave the British a withdrawal psychology. Once started, they could not halt.

With the exception of the Australian general, Maj. Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett, no high ranking officer advocated that the troops stand up and fight.

Untrained in Guerrilla War.

British, Scottish, and Indian troops fought hard, but they were untrained in the guerrilla warfare which the Japanese carried on in the jungle. Only the Australians had been trained in this kind of fighting. Some of the troops came from England and, after 11 weeks at sea, were thrown into battle within three days.

One factor aiding the Japanese was the failure of the British to do a thoro job in demolishing roads and bridges north of Kuala Lumpur, which is 175 miles northwest of Singapore.

BATAAN FIGHTERS BEAT OFF MORE ATTACKS BY JAPS

Manila Bay Forts Bombed for 11th Day in Row.

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—The defenders of Bataan peninsula, after thwarting yesterday's major assaults by the Japanese, followed up their success by repelling subsequent light attacks at various points along the front line with "considerable" loss to the foe, the war department reported today.

A relative lull in the siege of Bataan and the Manila bay forts set in after the repulse of yesterday's twin attacks, one of which temporarily breached the American-Filipino lines. The light attacks were made last night.

Raid Corregidor Again.

Bombing of front lines continued. Corregidor and outlying island forts were subjected to air raids for the 11th consecutive day and to shelling from enemy batteries on the south shore of the bay. The air raids were described as light, and the forts' guns returned the Japanese artillery fire.

Good Friday, the war department said, was marked by reports of a Japanese air attack on a church in the village of Miral, near Digos. The latter town is on the gulf of Davao more than 500 miles south of Bataan on the southernmost island of Mindanao.

Troops Harass Invaders.

In this area, a springboard for the Japanese invasion of the Netherlands East Indies, isolated American-Filipino detachments have been harassing the invaders to good effect recently. They burned 22 military warehouses at Digos two days ago.

TIN TUBES PILING UP AS DRUGGISTS OBEY WAR EDICT

Used tubes, which had contained toothpaste and shaving cream, were accumulating yesterday in Chicago drug stores as the druggists complied with a War Production board order not to sell the tubed products without receiving old tubes in exchange from customers. As yet, the druggists said, they have not been told where to send the used tubes.

Officials of the large drug store "chains" have ordered their stores not to sell toothpaste and shaving cream without the trade-in tubes and the Chicago Retail Druggists' association has given the same advice to its members. Some neighborhood druggists, who on Thursday were still selling without trade-ins, were demanding them yesterday.

CORREGIDOR ISSUES A DAILY NEWSPAPER FOR BESIEGED TROOPS

CORREGIDOR, P. I., March 31 [Delayed]—(AP).—This Japanese besieged fortress has a newspaper.

Its editor is Sergt. Barnard Hopkins, Alpena, W. Va. Attached to an anti-aircraft battery, the editor is diverted from his work frequently by Japanese bombers—but he manages to get out the paper.

Picking up radio and local news, Sergt. Hopkins types out a two page daily sheet for the boys.

The masthead carries the paper's policy which is changeable daily.

Frequently the paper runs a contest for the best poem or story with cigarets as the prize. Hopkins even campaigns against malaria. His publication carries instructions on how to knock out malaria carrying mosquitoes.

One of the best features is the daily radio dispatch picked up from Tokio. It is studded with the sergeant's best sarcasm.

HERO OF BATAAN SENDS STORY OF FIRST JAP RAID

Washington, D. C., April 3 [Special].—A vivid description of the Japanese attack on the Philippine Islands and the fighting in Bataan was contained in a letter Mrs. Lester J. Tacy received from her hero husband.

Since then Tacy had been reported missing in action, but had fought his way back to the main body of troops, had been promoted to a lieutenant colonel and awarded two decorations, for bravery and being wounded. He wrote the following description of the Japanese attack on Clark field:

"At 12:15 [noon] I was idly looking out of my office window when the very earth at Clark field seemed to rise in the air and boil in great bubbles like superheated oil. Not a sound, mind you. I thought I had gone mad. Then came the noise like a thousand thunders in one. Overhead were 84 light yellow planes and 60 or more dive bombers and attack planes. They dive bombed and machine gunned us for three quarters of an hour and tho our buildings were riddled with holes, we did not have one man hit."

HURLEY ASSUMES OFFICE AS ENVOY TO NEW ZEALAND

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, April 3 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Patrick Jay Hurley formally assumed office as United States minister to New Zealand today and conferred with the dominion war cabinet.

Prime Minister Peter Fraser, expressing government pleasure over the appointment, declared that few people were better qualified to judge the importance of New Zealand in the general united nations strategy.

Fraser, meanwhile, ordered two cabinet ministers to frame amendments to the liquor licensing act in response to an appeal from religious leaders that the government take steps against excessive drinking.

RED CROSS GETS JOB COLLECTING PANTS CLIPPINGS

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—The American Red Cross will collect from the country's clothing stores the wool clipped from trouser legs in obedience to the no cuffs on pants order of the War Production board.

Decision to make the Red Cross the central collecting agency was reached by Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, volunteer service director of the organization, and Irving Squires, head of WPB's men's clothing section.

Selling the wool clips into proper channels for converting them into reprocessed wool should net the Red Cross between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 annually, Squires estimated.

TELLS HOW 4 U.S. DESTROYERS TORE INTO JAP CONVOY

Story of Fight in Macassar Strait by Eyewitness.

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—Comm. Paul Talbot, who took part in the battle of Macassar strait, told today how 4 American destroyers made three forays into the midst of a convoy of nearly 40 Japanese ships in pitch darkness and fired torpedoes at 500 yards point-blank range.

Comm. Paul Talbot.

Using only torpedoes to avoid giving away their position by gun flashes, the American vessels went so close to the Jap ships, Talbot said, that his crew members told him they could hear Japanese soldiers shouting in the water.

The action took place on the night of Jan. 23-24, when Talbot was leading a destroyer division of the Asiatic fleet. Talbot related that on the morning of Jan. 23 the four destroyers were cruising in the Flores sea when orders were received from Adm. Hart to be at Cape Mandar by 8 p. m. that night stripped for action.

Monsoon Drenches Crewmen.

"We started north at 25 knots in a heavy monsoon that drenched many of our men," he continued. "We entered Macassar strait at 3 p. m. Enemy air patrols were active and we expected an attack. To deceive them we headed into Mandar bay until darkness and then proceeded to Cape Mandar where we arrived at 8 p. m.

"We proceeded to launch an attack and headed into Balik Papan at 27 knots planning to escape an enemy escort of 12 destroyers convoying Jap ships.

"Bright flares on the horizon dead ahead worried us because we thought they were Jap searchlights or star shells but it developed that they were explosions aboard a burning Jap ship which the Dutch had bombed. It was drifting and sending out a lot of smoke.

See Dutch Burn Oil.

"At 1 a. m. we sighted two more flares ahead which were coming from fires at Balik Papan where the Dutch were burning their oil.

"At 2:45 a. m. when we were nearing Balik Papan a division of four Japanese destroyers loomed up dead ahead of us only 1,000 yards away. We altered our course to pass astern of the Jap destroyers, which failed to open fire on us altho we were sure that they had seen us.

"They passed us quickly, but a few moments afterward we found ourselves in the midst of a Jap convoy of transports, supply ships, and destroyers, numbering 30 or 40, which were all around us.

"We had the advantage because of low visibility due to smoke, darkness, and the fact that the Japs did not know whether we were friend or enemy. We were sailing in a straight line, following the leader. All four of us had orders to obey the flagship.

Jap Ship Breaks in Two.

"We were afraid of running aground or hitting Dutch mines but soon we were convinced that we were in the midst of the Jap convoy so we began firing torpedoes.

"One of our torpedoes sailed into a Jap ship which broke in half and evaporated. We could see the silhouette clearly before our eyes.

"We made three round trips of approximately five miles each at 27 knots an hour firing torpedoes at the enemy ships as we passed. After about an hour some of our ships' torpedoes were exhausted. Up to this time the Japs apparently had not identified us. It seemed that they did not know whether their ships were striking mines or being fired upon from vessels outside of the convoy.

Watches Two Go Down.

"During this time I saw two of their ships go down and one listing sharply to port.

"When our torpedoes ran low I directed that we open fire with our guns. As soon as we did so the Japs returned the fire for the first time, letting go at us from a range between 300 and 500 yards.

"We fired 15 or 20 salvos at broadside but we didn't stop to see how many Jap ships went down. At that close range it was impossible to miss.

"By this time it was 4 a. m. and the eastern sky was turning gray so we started south at full speed and if any Japs pursued us they never caught up with us. We expected their planes but they did not come. One of our ships was hit and four men wounded but none was killed. The engagement lasted an hour and 15 minutes."

Japs Lose 30 to 40 Ships.

The Japanese are believed to have lost 30 to 40 ships of various categories, including an aircraft carrier, in the week long air and sea battle of Macassar strait.

Talbot, who was 45 years old today, is a native of Willoughby, O., and was graduated from the naval academy in 1918. At present he is on leave.

New Heroes Decorated.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 3 (AP).—Three newly decorated heroes of the war in the southwest Pacific belittled their achievements today and said they hoped to do better next time.

Capt. Clarence McPherson of McCall, Idaho, received the distinguished flying cross for removing his plane safely from an airport in the Dutch East Indies where he had just landed without knowing the Japanese had occupied it.

"I dragged the field once," McPherson said, "and things did not look right so I dragged it again. This time they let go at me. They wounded the gunner and shot us up badly, but I managed to get off."

Twelve Get Service Cross.

Among 12 recipients of the distinguished service cross were two veterans from California, Master Sergeants Louis Silva of Rio Vista and Anthon G. Holub of Coronado.

Col. Eugene Eubank, commanding officer, said Silva volunteered in a call for gunners the day after his arrival in the battle zone altho he was not obliged to do so because he was the senior noncommissioned officer in the squadron.

"We claimed we shot down seven Japanese planes," Silva said. "The Japs later admitted losing nine. In our particular fight it was our job to protect another of our planes which had been damaged. Those Japs like to pick on a cripple.

"The Japs got my tail gunner. Finally we fought them off and landed on a small field to refuel. Three Zero fighters attacked us there. We shot down two and drove the third away."

Clark Field Hero.

Holub's award was the result of action in the Clark field raid north of Manila on Dec. 8.

"When the Japs bombed the plane I flew out from the States with some of my pals in it, I forgot about everything else but getting even," Holub said.

"I ran out to another plane, jumped into the radio compartment and started firing the double guns there. When I ran out of ammunition I ran and got some more and started shooting again."

Holub said he and an anti-aircraft gunner hit one plane simultaneously and saw it soar across a golf course trailing smoke. Another Jap pilot turned up sharply when he saw Holub's tracer bullets "and I got him from underneath," he said.

SAILOR FROM HARVEY AMONG 21 HEROES OF SHIP'S BAND MEMBERS

A suburban sailor was among the 21 heroic members of the navy band who perished aboard the U. S. S. Arizona in the Pearl Harbor attack, the navy department announced yesterday in Washington, D. C. He was Frank Norman Floege, 20 years old, 15334 Myrtle avenue, Harvey. Floege, an orphan, enlisted March 28, 1941, according to Mrs. David Hayes, in whose home he had lived three years. The Arizona's band was cited in the naval communique because every member was killed in action at a battle station.

The sale of MacArthur buttons thru Chicago Tribune Public Service offices soared above the 200,000 mark yesterday, as 12,625 more pins were sold to bring the 10 day total to 209,500.

The office at 1 South Dearborn street disposed of 8,800 over the counter and 725 by mail, and the Tower office sold 3,100. The pins, bearing a full face likeness of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, sell for 2 cents across the counter and 5 cents by mail.

All profits will be turned over to soldiers' and sailors' camps near Chicago.

The New York Daily News sale reached a total of 185,748 yesterday, as New York MacArthur fans bought 5,469 more. The New York sale has been under way for 13 days.

Hunt Cuban Radio; Suspect It Tips Off Nazi U-Boats

HAVANA, Cuba, April 3 (AP).—Cuban authorities began a search on the north coast today for a secret radio station believed to have been giving information to German submarines which have been preying on ships carrying sugar and minerals to the United States. The government also ordered seizure of all radio transmission devices not in official use.

CHIANG TO INDIA: DON'T TURN DOWN BRITAIN'S OFFER

Chinese Leader's Plea Gives New Hope.

NEW DELHI, India, April 3 (AP).—Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was understood today to have appealed to India's leaders to reconsider the formula by which Britain is seeking that subcontinent's full coöperation against the axis in return for Indian independence after the war.

The precise nature of the generalissimo's intervention was not known.

Acts at Critical Moment.

He was said to have sent a special messenger to Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the All-India congress and perhaps the most powerful figure on the Indian side of the table. This action threw the immense weight of his influence behind the hopes of the united nations.

Chiang acted at a critical moment, for the All-India congress and certain lesser bodies already had rejected the British plan. The British commander in chief for India, Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, conferred with Sir Stafford Cripps, the British emissary, and arranged to talk also with Maulana Abul Kalan Azad, the president of the All-India congress, and with Nehru.

Gives Moslem Stand.

As to the Moslem minority, their leader, Mohammed Ali Jinnah, said at Allahabad today that his followers would never accept any proposals that would prevent their achievement of an autonomous Moslem state.

Meanwhile, Louis Johnson, former United States assistant secretary of war who holds the rank of minister as President Roosevelt's personal representative in India, arrived in New Delhi today. He was accompanied by Lieut. Col. Paul Griffiths and Arthur Harrington, a member of the American technical mission.

HINT PRESIDENT MAY MEDIATE INDIA QUESTION

Washington, D. C., April 3.—President Roosevelt was believed in some capital diplomatic circles to be lending his efforts to preventing a rupture in negotiations in New Delhi, India, on Great Britain's offer of postwar dominion status for India.

The White House was silent on Chungking, China, report that the President would be asked to mediate the negotiations, but it was not believed here that the President would be disinclined to accept such a proposition.

W-G-N TO OFFER PRIZE OPERETTA SONGS TONIGHT

Theater of Air Program to Aid Contestants.

"Hits from the Prize Operettas," a musical recapitulation of the three works which won $1,000 each in W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta quest, will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air broadcast from 7:30 to 8:30 tonight over W-G-N, WGN, and the Mutual system.

Marion Claire, Walter Cassel, and Attilio Baggiore, who sang these songs when the three operettas were presented on March 14, 21, and 28, will sing them again tonight. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Tonight's broadcast will refresh the memory of thousands of listeners who are joining in the $2,500 contest W-G-N is conducting to select the grand prize operetta from among the three $1,000 winners and give it a name. Contestants are asked to write 50 words or less giving reasons for their choice. A $1,000 grand prize will be awarded in this listeners' contest, with more than 70 other cash awards. Deadline for entries is at midnight next Tuesday.

Grand Performance April 11.

The grand prize winning operetta will be presented at 7:30 p. m. Saturday, April 11, in the Chicago Civic Opera house before more than 3,500 operetta enthusiasts, with Allan Jones and Miss Claire as the singing stars. The author of the grand prize operetta will receive an additional $5,000.

Miss Claire tonight will begin drawing names of persons to whom tickets for the April 11 production will be sent.

These names will be drawn from the 32,000 ticket requests that have piled up at W-G-N. The first 10 persons whose names are drawn will receive autographed copies of Miss Claire's Victor Red Seal record album, containing six operetta selections recorded by the soprano and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus. The next 75 persons whose names are drawn will receive new pictures of Miss Claire.

Special Tribute to Be Sung.

The songs to be presented tonight will include "Men of Steel," "Kalunah's Song," "When You Give Everything to Love," "The Game of Love," and "You Are My Dream Come True," from the first operetta; "Love Has Wings," "Virginia," "You're a Robber," "Shall I Meet My Love Tonight," and "This Night Is Ours," from the second, and the overture, "All I Can Think of Is You," "Just a Little Boy's Day Dream," "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Love," and "America Loves a Melody," from the final one.

A special musical tribute will be included, Miss Claire and the chorus and orchestra joining in Schubert's "Ave Maria." Henry Weber will direct the orchestra; Robert Trendler the chorus. Kenneth MacGregor is the producer.

Dramatic parts will be taken by Patricia Dunlap and Bret Morrison.

NEW ARMY-NAVY WAR PLANS UNIT HAS WIDE SCOPE

Will Direct Action in All Theaters.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—The army and the navy were seen nearing a single unified command today as the war plans divisions and the intelligence divisions of the armed services began operations as two consolidated bodies for both services.

Maj. Gen. Eisenhower.

The merger of the two units concerned with gathering information of enemy operations and the coördination of that information into war strategy against the axis followed the recent action under which the campaign against submarines was placed under sole direction of the navy, giving the command of army planes and coast operations concentrated against U-boats to the sea service.

At the same time President Roosevelt disclosed he is pondering the consolidation of all information services of the government into a single war information agency, which would direct information, censorship, and propaganda.

Will Coördinate Planning.

The war department announced the abolishing of the war plans division and the creation of the operations division of the general staff to take its places. Maj. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was designated chief of operations of the new unit, which is the nerve center of the army for all theaters of operations and overseas garrisons.

The division will coördinate strategical and operational planning with the navy and with the military headquarters of all united powers. In this connection, it was said, the strategical planning groups of the army and navy have been merged and moved out of their respective departments and placed under the United States chiefs of staff—Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, and Adm. Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations and commander in chief of the United States fleet.

Merge Intelligence Services.

In the same fashion, it was said, the intelligence divisons of the army and navy have been merged. Army intelligence is headed by Brig. Gen. Raymond E. Lee, and navy intelligence by Capt. Theodore S. Wilkinson. Both have been assigned to their posts since Pearl Harbor. After the Jap attack Capt. Alan G. Kirk, who today was nominated to be a rear admiral, and Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles were shifted from the intelligence divisions, following grumblings that the divisions were asleep in the Pacific.

In disclosing that he is considering the creation of one war information unit, Mr. Roosevelt said that he is studying the problem, which he described as an awfully difficult technical one, but has not arrived at anything that satisfies him as yet.

Asked if one man would head the organization and have complete charge of information, propaganda, and censorship, Mr. Roosevelt said there are half a dozen ways of tackling the problem but he has not yet reached that stage. During the World war George Creel headed a unit which had charge of all information and propaganda.

AUSTRALIAN PREMIER BECOMES MEMBER OF BRITISH PRIVY COUNCIL

LONDON, April 4 [Saturday]—(AP).—The appointment of Prime Minister John Curtin and former Prime Minister Arthur W. Fadden of Australia as members of the privy council was announced today from No. 10 Downing street. The appointments were regarded as another gesture of solidarity with Australia. It is not unusual, however, for dominion statesmen to have places on the privy council, which advises the king. Membership is considered mainly an honorary position.

2 HOUR DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME TO BEGIN IN BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 3.—Beginning Sunday Britain will have two hours of daylight saving time. Britain has had one hour of daylight time since the war began. The new time will remain in effect until Aug. 9. [The two hour advance will put Britain 7 hours ahead of Chicago war time.]

While some workers are pleased at the extended hours of daylight after work, farmers have complained that the wartime innovation upsets their working schedules, which are governed not by the clock but by nature.

In agricultural regions shopkeepers have asked that they be allowed to adjust opening and closing hours with farm conditions. Most bus and train schedules will be advanced, altho exceptions are expected to be made for farm transport.

PROPOSE NEW SLIDING SCALE PROFIT CEILING

From 2 to 10% Favored on War Contracts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—A sliding scale of profit limitations on war contracts, ranging from 2 to 10 per cent of cost, has been approved "in principle" by a senate appropriations subcommittee considering the new 18 billion dollar emergency appropriation bill, Sen. Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.] announced today. The sliding scale would take the place of the flat 6 per cent restriction written into the house version of the bill last Saturday shortly before passage in that chamber on a voice vote.

Sen. B. L. Bunker.

Meanwhile the senate heard Sen. Berkeley L. Bunker [D., Nev.] read into the record a list of what he described as extortionate salaries paid out of taxpayers' money to top officials of Basic Magnesium, Inc. This company, operators of a 70 million dollar magnesium plant for the government at Las Vegas, Nev., was denounced yesterday by a special senate committee investigating war contracts as representative of "one of the most flagrant attempts at war profiteering" in the arms program. Sen. Bunker asserted the company stands to make 4,200 per cent profit on its investment.

All Contracts Involved.

The new sliding scale profit limits would apply both to prime as well as subcontracts, with the larger percentages being paid on the smaller jobs. Under the terms of the proposal the secretaries of the war and navy and the chairman of the maritime commission would withhold payment of at least 20 per cent of the total contract value in each case until the contractor has filed a sworn statement of his itemized costs.

On the filing of this statement, it was explained, a final settlement would be made thru turning over a sum equal to the balance of cost plus the allowable profit. The amendment specifies that the government authorities in making the final payment are not to allow unreasonable salary or bonus payments or the accumulation of excessive reserves as part of cost.

Proposed Profit Scale.

Following is the scale of profit limitations in the Thomas proposal: On contracts up to $100,000, 10 per cent; from $100,000 to $500,000, 8 per cent; from $500,000 to $1,000,000, 6 per cent; from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, 5 per cent; from $5,000,000 to $20,000,000, 4 per cent; from $20,000,000 to $50,000,000, 3 per cent; more than $50,000,000, 3 per cent on the portion below $50,000,000 and 2 per cent on the remainder.

Several provisions in the amendment also were contained in a somewhat similar proposal drafted by Senators John H. Overton [D., La.] and Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.]. Following the subcommittee session, all were sent to the legislative drafting service to be integrated into the appropriation measure before it is called up in the senate Monday.

Earlier in the week, Donald Nelson, head of the War Production board, appeared before the committee inveighing against the rigid 6 per cent limitation imposed by the house. He told the members that in some cases 6 per cent would be an exorbitant figure while for smaller contractors it might yield a totally inadequate return. It was also his suggestion that control over profits be vested in the war and navy departments and the maritime commission.

Basic Magnesium, Inc., was termed "a racketeering industrial corporation" by Sen. Bunker, who gave the investigating committee the information which led to the inquiry. He told his colleagues B. M. I. stands to make $2,140,000 in one year on an investment of not more than $50,000.

Cites House Proposal.

"It is interesting to note the vast difference in this profit and the 6 per cent limitation on returns from arms contracts recently voted by the house," Sen. Bunker said.

"I hesitate to make this list public for fear of the reaction it will have from the men who are training, fighting, and dying for their country at $21 and $30 per month, and for fear of the reaction of the men, women, and children who are putting their dollars, dimes, and pennies into war bonds and stamps.

"But I believe the senate and the public are entitled to know how the taxpayers' money is being spent by Washington departmental officials.

"As a passing comment I might point out—and it will add insult to injury—that the battle of the Pacific is not won, and to date the people of America are losing the battle of Washington."

42 Names in List.

The salary list introduced by the senator contained the names and positions of 42 officials, ranging from project manager to assistant development engineer. It showed total pay outlays, all figured in the cost of the project and advanced by the Defense Plants corporation, headed by Jesse Jones, of $2,373,954.

Following are the first dozen names on the list showing the officials, their positions, and their annual salaries:

H. C. Mann, project manager, $36,000; D. W. Stewart, assistant project manager, $20,000; W. F. Way, construction project manager, $17,500; G. B. Kaufman, engineering manager, $17,000; J. R. Charles, English consultant, $15,000; W. W. Patnoe, chief engineer, $13,800; S. J. Fletcher, English consultant, $12,000; Harley C. Lee, engineering technical adviser, $12,000; W. R. Battey, director electrical design, $10,400; W. B. Dyer, chief engineer, $10,104; R. C. Kelley, director of purchases, $10,000, and C. A. Warne, controler, $10,000.

The senate committee found that the operation of the plant involves English and American promoters as well as the Defense Plants corporation, which is financing it. According to the committee's report, signed by Sen. Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], chairman, the plant has made "miserable progress" in the production of one of the most vital war materials despite tremendous fees" paid by the Defense Plants corporation.

Plant Owned Jointly.

It is owned jointly by Magnesium Elektron, Ltd., which has 45 per cent of the stock, and Basic Refractories, Inc., of Cleveland, O., which has 55 per cent. The former is a British company which is handling the building and operation of the plant, while the latter concern provides the ore deposits.

Howard Eells, representing Basic Refractories, is president of B. M. I., and Maj. Ball, a Briton, representing M. E. L., is vice president. Sen. Bunker said their salaries are paid from profits of the venture, and their names were not included in his list.

Sen. Bunker said he learned Eells received $25,000 out of B. M. I. funds for six months' work and $18,000 more from Basic Refractories. He said Maj. Ball's salary for the same period was comparable.

Eells told the committee that not more than $25,000 to $50,000 was spent in developing the claims.

Showing Need of American Airmen

SEN. BROOKS ASKS ROTC FOR FLYERS TO BRING VICTORY

Envisions Huge School Program for U.S.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—An ROTC for air in hundreds of high schools and private prep schools was envisioned today by Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], who declared that America must stop thinking in terms of defense and blackouts and begin thinking in terms of offense if the nation is to survive in this war.

Aviation, the senator asserted, will determine the future of the world. Information, advance study, preliminary opportunity, and practical training should be made available in every educational institution in the country, he said.

Would Alter Basic Training.

Rather than spend valuable hours teaching young ROTC cadets squads right and the manual of arms, Brooks feels schools should begin pilot training in the most formative years. Thru the use of government textbooks and highly technical films—for training; not entertainment—the time required by the army and navy to develop fighting airmen would be cut to a minimum, he believes.

"We can talk about training pilots in a few months," Brooks said, "but with the services forced to start from scratch it takes two years of intensive training to equip men to fly to victory against a trained flying enemy."

America's sons have the advantage over the youth of all other countries in mechanized warfare on the ground, the senator continued.

Compares Two Problems.

The millions driving their automobiles or tinkering with jalopies have entered the service partially educated in handling machines; and hundreds of thousands recruited from the farms have had years of experience in driving powerful tractors over hills and in valleys. Why not, he asked, give the men driving fighter planes the same advantage?

"This is a war of production and transportation," the senator contended. "Our supply lines, stretching thousands of miles across the Seven seas, must be kept open; the waters of our continent must be swept clean of submarines. We have learned the tragic lesson of the battleship; we know this must be done from the air.

"This means one thing. It means young and courageous men must be trained to handle these planes in the sky. They are the ones who will open the road to victory. Unless they control the sky, the supply lines cannot be maintained."

AID TO WALLACE QUITS JOB AFTER DIES DISCLOSURE

Revealed as Writer of Foreword for Nazis.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—C. Hartley Grattan, one of Washington's most versatile literary warriors, asserted tonight that the united nations had received a mighty blow from the Dies committee on un-American activities, which he accused of canceling him out of the war effort and a $5,600 government job.

Grattan's resignation as economic analyst of the Board of Economic Warfare, headed by Vice President Henry A. Wallace, was announced and accepted in an exchange of letters with Milo Perkins, executive director of the BEW.

He was 1 of 35 officials or employés of the board who were accused of communist affiliations by Rep. Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the committee on un-American activities, in a letter to Vice President Wallace last Sunday. A short time earlier Dies had forced the resignation of Malcolm Cowley from an $8,000 job in the Office of Facts and Figures by exposing his communist background.

Denounced for Hitler Foreword.

There was no intimation that Grattan's resignation would be "accepted" until Rep. Jerry Voorhis [D., Cal.], an ardently pro-New Deal member of the Dies committee, denounced him in the house yesterday for writing an approving foreword in May, 1940, to "the German white paper," which attributed responsibility for the war in Europe to the policies of the Roosevelt administration.

The foreword was written during the period of the Hitler-Stalin alliance, when the communist "party line" violently opposed the administration's foreign policies. In his letter to Perkins, Grattan strongly denied Voorhis' intimation that he was a Nazi sympathizer. He insisted that his record as an opponent of "Fascism" had been "crystal clear," but he said nothing about opposition to communism.

Denies Meeting Nazi Agent.

Manfred Zapp, since convicted as a Nazi agent, arranged for the publication of the German "white paper" in this country by Howell, Soskin & Co. of New York. According to investigators for the Dies committee, Zapp paid $100 for the foreword written by Grattan. Grattan admitted today that he got $100 for the foreword, but said he received it from William Soskin, one of the publishers. He said he never met Zapp.

The German "white paper" consisted of purported official documents which the Germans said they seized from the Polish archives in Warsaw. In one of them, dated Nov. 21, 1938, the Polish ambassador to Washington, Count Jerzy Potocki, attributed to William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, the statement that the United States would go to war against Germany "but only after Great Britain and France had made the first move."

In an interview today Grattan said he had no apology to make for the sentiments he expressed in the foreword and would retract nothing contained therein.

ARMY OPENS QUIZ INTO GUN BATTLE BETWEEN TROOPS

White M.P., 2 Negroes Killed, 5 Shot.

Fort Dix, N. J., April 3 [Special].—An army board today began an investigation into last night's gun battle between military police and Negro soldiers. One white military policeman and two Negro soldiers were killed and five Negro soldiers were wounded in the fray.

The shooting was described as "merely a brawl" without racial significance by Col. C. M. Dowell, post commander.

The first participant questioned was Private Joseph Gray, a Negro, accused of having provoked the shooting by attempting to snatch the pistol of Private Alfred L. C. Hayhoe of Lansing, Mich., a white M. P., while Hayhoe was attempting to quiet an argument between two white soldiers and a Negro soldier in the Waldron Sports Palace, a recreation center on private property across a highway from a Negro barracks. The use of a telephone booth in the Palace started the argument.

Proprietor Blames Bowler.

Augustus Waldron of Trenton, owner of the Palace, said Gray left a bowling game in the building to snatch at Hayhoe's gun. Gray fled from the building pursued by Hayhoe and another M. P., Private Manie W. Stroth of Honey Camp, Va.

Outside they fired three or four shots in the air and Gray stopped. He was being led back to the building, according to Waldron, when one of about 40 Negro soldiers, illegally armed with rifles, crept up behind Stroth and fired three shots into his back. He fell dead, with a bullet in the heart. His assailant, identified later as Private Isaac W. Brown of Henderson, Tenn., was shot down by Private Hayhoe.

Retreat Into Building.

This gun play was followed by a volley of rifle shots from the Negro soldiers. By this time Waldron had extinguished his outside lights. Hayhoe retreated into the building with two other military police, including Private Don Blackman of New York City, a Negro, who held the riflemen at bay until 25 reserve military police arrived.

Maj. Aage Woldike, post public relations officer, announced that preliminary investigation indicated all of the dead and injured were struck by .30 caliber rifle bullets. Military police are equipped with .45 caliber pistols.

WOMEN'S FARM ARMY GARNERS CROP OF WOES

Washington, April 3 (AP).—The American women's voluntary services tonight had a "farm problem" that blossomed right in the nation's capital.

Mrs. R. Ernest Dupuy, wife of an army colonel, resigned with "profound regret" as District of Columbia chairman of the women's land army of the American voluntary services. She acted amid charges and countercharges of bickering.

Miss Anita Phipps, chairman of the Washington metropolitan unit of the AWVS, announced acceptance—also "with regret"—of Mrs. Dupuy's resignation.

Mrs. Dupuy said her interest in preparedness prompted her last September to offer the AWVS a plan to organize an army utilizing volunteer farmerettes in the farm labor shortage. She blamed bickering for her withdrawal.

HERE IS A SKETCH OF LANGLEY, FIRST PLANE CARRIER

Vessel Later Turned Into Tender by Navy.

Historically one of the most interesting ships in the United States navy, the Langley, America's first airplane carrier, whose sinking was announced last night, was modified and reclassified as an aircraft tender in 1937.

The function of an aircraft tender is primarily to act as mother ship to planes equipped to alight on water, altho the Langley retained an abbreviated flight deck which enabled it under some circumstances to function as a carrier for land planes.

Launched in 1912.

The Langley was first christened the Jupiter and under this name was launched as a fleet collier Aug. 24, 1912, in which capacity it functioned during the first World war. She was the first large navy ship to be built with electric drive and Melville-McAlpine reducing gear, a system of propulsion which proved so successful that it was adopted for capital ships.

Following the World war, the navy selected the then Jupiter for its first experimentation with aircraft carriers. Development of these vessels had been pioneered in the British navy, which launched the Argus in December, 1917, and the Eagle, a converted battleship, in 1920.

In March, 1920, the Jupiter was placed out of commission for conversion by the Norfolk navy yard to emerge the following year as one of the proudest ships in the navy. She was rechristened the Langley.

Carried 55 Planes.

At this stage in its career the Langley had a maximum capacity of 55 planes and carried 275 bombs for airplanes and 24 torpedoes for torpedo planes. The flight deck was 534 feet long and 64 feet wide and was equipped with launching catapults capable of sending torpedo planes into the air at 60 miles an hour with a 60 foot run. Unarmored, the ship was defended by four 5 inch guns.

For the next four years the Langley queened it over the navy as the only ship of its kind in the fleet, a reign which ended when the Lexington and Saratoga, converted battle cruisers, were launched as aircraft carriers in 1925.

The Langley gave a successful demonstration in November, 1924, of launching torpedo planes at sea. From a point 180 miles south of San Diego and 100 miles out at sea, three planes took off and arrived safely at North Island off San Diego. Also in 1924 the Langley and its planes took part in an aerial carnival at Baltimore.

Seamen Killed in Blast.

An explosion of its electric motor paralyzed all electrical machinery aboard the ship in April, 1927, and in December of the same year a similar blast killed one seaman and injured four others.

The Langley was chosen in September, 1931, for the first experiments in landing autogyro planes at sea. Three successful landings and takeoffs of an autogyro were reported.

As the navy's complement of aircraft carriers grew during the late '20s and the '30s, the Langley provided naval engineers and architects with a vast amount of experimental data which influenced the construction of the new ships. The Ranger was completed in 1933 and the Enterprise and Yorktown were launched in 1936.

Goes Back to Navy Yard.

Its flight decks too short for modern landing speeds, the Langley's career as a carrier was doomed by mechanical advances, and it went back to the navy yard in 1937 for its second metamorphosis. As an aircraft tender it carried only two aircraft of observation type. Huge cranes were added to enable it to pick seaplanes out of the water and it retained its four 5 inch guns.

According to Jane's Fighting Ships, the standard reference work on the world's warships, there were 17 aircraft tenders in service at the time of publication of the 1940 edition, with two others refitting and nine others building.

The navy had seven aircraft carriers at the time of the entrance of America into the war, according to sources in Washington, D. C., with 11 others building. Two more have been authorized since the Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor.

KIN TOLD NAVAL STATION CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES

The personnel officer of the 9th Naval district would like the families of sailors from the 13 states in that area to understand:

1. That there is almost no information which can be given about a sailor who has been transferred to another point from Great Lakes.

2. That no news still is good news.

The Great Lakes switchboard is being flooded with calls from friends and relatives seeking information about sailors who have trained there, it was stated. Almost without exception none of the information requested can be given either because it is not available or because it might be of value to the enemy.

In case of bad news, naval spokesmen added, the next of kin will be notified as speedily as possible from Washington.

Jap, in U. S. Navy 32 Years, to Have Military Funeral

Plainfield, N. J., April 3 (AP).—The navy will give a military funeral Monday to Japanese born Kekichi Nakamura, 85 years old, who rose to petty officer during 32 years of service with the navy. Nakamura came to this country 65 years ago and became an American citizen, naturalization being permissible then. He made his home here in recent years, but the funeral will be in Norfolk, Va., where he formerly was stationed.

Where American Warships Were Sunk

3 U.S. WARSHIPS SUNK IN PACIFIC; FEAR 700 KILLED

Langley Destroyed by Jap Bombs.

Peary either already have been notified or will be notified as soon as information is available.

Recall Tokio's Claims.

"3. Official reports from Tokio claimed the sinking of the Langley at least three times during the first month of the war, during which period the Langley was not damaged. She was sunk after a prolonged attack by the enemy south of Java in late February. Except for about a dozen men all Langley personnel survived the attack and were transferred to the Pecos, which was itself sunk a few days later.

"4. The Pecos, a small tanker employed in supplying fuel to units of our fleet in the far east, was sunk in early March.

"5. The Peary, a World war destroyer which received minor damage in the Japanese bombing attacks on Cavite immediately after the outbreak of the war, was sunk in the harbor at Darwin about Feb. 19. The Peary had participated in many of the offensive actions of our destroyers in the far east. Observers who witnessed the last engagement of the Peary described the conduct of her crew as beyond all praise. Gun crews remained at their battle stations continuing their fire until they were forced by rising water to leave their stations. No officer or man left the ship until it sank under him. A number of survivors were later rescued.

"6. War conditions in the southwest Pacific have greatly complicated and delayed reports of casualties, and the public is urged to refrain from initiating individual inquiries regarding casualties. The next of kin of all casualties are always notified by telegram as soon as possible."

List Normal Size of Crews.

The Langley carried a normal complement of 64 officers and 648 enlisted men. [A detailed sketch of the Langley appears in an adjoining column.]

The tanker Pecos was launched in 1921. She was 475 feet over all, 56 feet in the beam, and was armed with four 5 inch and two 3 inch guns. She could carry 7,850 tons of oil, exclusive of her own fuel. The vessel carried a normal complement of 15 officers and 302 enlisted men.

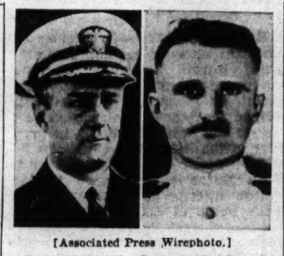
The destroyer Peary was 314 feet 4 inches long, 30 feet 8 inches in the beam, and her main armament was four 4 inch guns. The flush deck, four stacker vessel named in honor of the arctic explorer, Robert E. Peary, normally carried 9 officers and 118 enlisted men.

The normal complements of the ships did not mean that there were necessarily that number of men on board the vessels at the time of the sinkings but the numbers reflected approximately the actual personnel at those times.

Praises Peary's Crew.

The navy's communique reporting the loss of the three vessels was accompanied by a statement by Capt. Felix B. Stump, who has just returned from the southwest Pacific area, where he was attached to the allied naval headquarters staff in Java.

Capt. Stump praised especially the heroic action of the crew of the destroyer Peary.



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Capt. Felix B. Stump (left), who praised the crew of the destroyer Peary, and Lieut. Comm. John Michael Bermingham, commander of the Peary, who was killed.

A day or so ago Stump had told reporters how one man from the ship, not then identified, had fired his gun until the water lapped at his knees, then swam ashore thru flaming oil and suffered such severe burns that he died.

Stump recalled that the Peary was bombed in Manila bay soon after the war broke out.

Bombed on Way to Darwin.

"A number of her officers and enlisted personnel wounded then were transferred to the naval hospital and later evacuated to the south on a hospital ship that went in to take out badly wounded," Stump said.

"She later arrived in Darwin after being bombed several times en route. She was repaired and was again bombed while on convoy trip. She was finally sunk in a heavy bombing at Port Darwin.

"Three doctors who witnessed the bombing of the Peary at Darwin from a hospital ship anchored nearby have reported the heroic conduct of the Peary's crew during this terrific attack. They particularly commented on the heroism of the gun crew who remained at their stations firing their anti-aircraft guns until the water came up around them, and then swam away is the ship went down. No men abandoned ship until the ship sank completely from under them."

2 FLYERS STICK TO PLANE, AVOID CRASH IN TOWN

Flat Rock, Mich., April 3. (AP).—Heroism of two naval flyers who clung to their plane in a tailspin was credited today with having prevented the ship's crashing in Flat Rock and endangering lives.

The flyers, who parachuted safely to earth after spinning 3,000 feet, were Lieut. Stephen F. Maire, 31 years old, Trenton, Mich., a navy test pilot, and Pvt. First Class James A. Vittitoe, 22, of the Marine corps.

Lieut. Comm. R. C. Young, commanding officer of the Grosse Isle air base, praised Maire, saying:

"He remained at the controls while the ship fell 3,000 feet, then, when he felt sure that no one on the ground would be injured, he told Pvt. Vittitoe to jump and did so himself."

The plane crashed in flames two miles east of here.

the bow a little over four hours after the start of battle.

"We estimated that about 50 men were killed and about 100 wounded by the dive bombers, but the exact number never will be known.

"The last bomber strafed our men who were in the water and on the after-deck. Lieut. L. J. McPeake, my executive officer, manned the aft machine gun to the last and drove it off.

"During the battle one enemy plane was seen to be smoking and I believe several others were hit. Several of our lifeboats were damaged and were not usable, but all our men had life belts. As we floated about, bombing planes were soon in the distance and later we heard bomb explosions indicating a ship was being attacked not far away.

Destroyer Welcome Sight.

"A destroyer hove to, and it was a welcome sight. It picked us up. Soon thereafter a submarine was detected in the vicinity. The destroyer dropped depth charges and then proceeded to Australia."

Many acts of bravery besides that of Lieut. McPeake were cited by the two skippers. Among them was Boatswain's Mate Robert J. Baunker of St. Louis, Mo., who had charge of the motor launch which transferred the Langley survivors to the Pecos.

"He did as fine a job of handling the launch as I have seen in many a day. Both he and Lieut. McPeake are among the missing," said Abernethy.

Chief Storekeeper Saxton, gunnery control talker on the Pecos, refused to leave the bridge even when wounded in the arm by a bomb fragment. When the abandon ship order was given, Saxton insisted on getting the pay records of the crew, and dove over the side with them.

"He told me later," said Abernethy, "that while being hoisted aboard a destroyer the records were too heavy and he had to drop them."

Chungking-Calcutta Air Line Reported Approved

CHUNGKING, China, April 3 (AP).—Britain and China were reported semi-officially today to have signed an agreement permitting the China National Aviation corporation to open an air line between Chungking and Calcutta, India. The agreement, it was said, probably would lead to large expansion of the present air service between China and India, perhaps including freight transport by big American built planes.

SMOKER DOZES; BURNS TO DEATH.

Caccaitori Vincenzo, 40 years old, 458 North Artesian avenue, was burned to death yesterday when the bed on which he was sleeping caught fire. Fire Chief Helmer Strandberg of the 18th battalion said Vincenzo apparently fell asleep while smoking.

$54,000 FRAUD CHARGE NAMES EX-SUPERVISOR

State's Attorney to Take Case to Grand Jury.

A complaint charging Lawrence J. O'Connell, former chief security supervisor of the Illinois Industrial commission, with embezzlement of $54,000 in commission funds was signed yesterday by Alfred J. Borah, chairman of the commission. O'Connell, who surrendered Thursday night for questioning, was booked on the charge at the detective bureau and was released on a $10,000 real estate bond. He will be arraigned Monday in Felony court.

During the questioning by Assistant State's Attorney James A. Brown, O'Connell reiterated his denial of any theft and said he didn't believe there was a shortage. He resigned from his commission job last September.

Complaint Charges Fraud.

Borah and William J. Colohan Jr., assistant attorney general, conferred with Brown yesterday morning. Afterward Borah signed the complaint, which charges O'Connell with "fraudulently and feloniously converting to his own use $54,000 in property of the industrial commission."

Brown said he would turn over to John Burns and Clarence Walker, state's attorney's auditors, the 100 page audit of O'Connell's accounts completed last January at Borah's request by a private firm. Brown also subpenaed Borah to appear Tuesday before the grand jury.

The assistant state's attorney said also that as soon as the grand jury inquiry is under way he will issue subpenas for records of two banks. At these O'Connell allegedly posted securities, placed with the commission by employers to cover possible insurance claims by employés, as collateral for personal loans.

Audit Shows Funds Missing.

Borah, who took the audit to the state's attorney's office Thursday, said O'Connell's resignation was "forced" after it had been learned that there was no record of a check paid in by an employer. The subsequent audit, Borah said, showed that $35,000 in securities and $19,000 in cash, posted by employers, could not be found.

The Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, which was surety for O'Connell, has indicated willingness to pay the $20,000 guaranteed by it, Borah said. He and the attorney general's office are investigating to learn whether former members of the commission may be liable to the extent of their $10,000 individual bonds. Attorneys said that any loss not covered by surety bonds would have to be met by the state.

RADIO STATIONS TO USE WOMEN AS ENGINEERS

Since the beginning of broadcasting, one department has been almost exclusively a domain for men. Lately, because of the war and its demands on radio technicians, the door into the engineers' realm has been opened just enough for girls to slip in a toe.

Individual stations thruout the nation recently have been trying out women at studio controls. Now WBBM and the Columbia network are going to make a similar test. Next Monday WBBM will begin instructing four girls in studio control technique. They are Eleanor Horn, who holds a federal communications commission license, Isabelle Fairchild, Patricia Lynch, and Rose Hilliard, who have been employed in other capacities by the station.

The girls will be trained in the technique of setting up studio equipment and studio control, a station representative said. They will not be trained as transmitter engineers. Federal licenses are required for such positions.

The management of W-G-N announced it would continue to rely on male technicians as long as they could be provided by the union. NBC and the Blue network spokesmen said up to now enough men have been available.

Kelly Ill, Makes Defense Broadcast Records in Bed

A microphone was taken to the bedside of Mayor Kelly yesterday afternoon in his apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive so that seven "messages of the day" on civilian defense for broadcasting over all Chicago stations next week might be recorded. Mayor Kelly has been going to NBC studios once a week to have these messages transcribed. Because he is ill with a cold, engineers arranged to take their equipment to his bedroom.

12 STATE POLICE SQUADS PATROL LABOR RIOT AREA

Non-Union Crew Unloads Pipe Under Guard.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

McLeansboro, Ill., April 3.—Twelve squads of uniformed state highway policemen equipped with sub-machine guns patroled the scene of a riotous labor dispute here today as nonunion men resumed work unloading heavy pipe for a war job in the face of strong union efforts to force the employment of local union labor.

Contractors have asserted that the specially trained men required to handle the pipe for an aviation gasoline refinery in the nearby Hoodville oil field are not available in this community.

Guard Scene and Roads.

Groups of state policemen took up strategic positions near the railroad siding at Dale, seven miles from here, where the pipe is being unloaded from railroad cars, while other officers patroled roads in an area several miles square around the scene.

The policemen were sent here early today to assume control of the situation after State's Attorney Mastin E. Buck, who previously had appealed for the reserve militia, asked aid of Col. Thomas R. Gowenlock, state coordinator of law enforcement agencies.

"Defense officials are determined," Col. Gowenlock reiterated today, "that war efforts are not going to be impeded in Illinois. This is not a threat but plain statement of fact. Whenever local law enforcement officers need help to prevent interference with a war job, they will get all the assistance needed."

Work Halted by Attack.

Work on the project was halted Monday by rioting when a mob of more than 250 union men, most of them strangers here, attacked a crew of 18 workers. Sheriff S. H. Shepard, 68 years old, was beaten and trampled into unconsciousness and a worker, Chester Willmore, 60, was probably fatally injured in the battle. Both men are in a serious condition in the McLeansboro hospital.

Following the withdrawal of the original contractor, Herbert Powell, the work was resumed today under the direction of Carl C. Anderson, a contractor from Salem.

Mark P. Costello, a conciliator from the state department of labor, came here today and met with leaders of the teamsters' and common laborers' unions, who have been insistent that members of those locals here be employed on the job.

The meeting continued thruout the day without apparent results. During a recess, however, Evan Dale, president of the Common Laborers' District council, emerged and intimated that the union leaders have not abandoned the issue.

Dale and two other leaders of the two unions are under bonds of $4,500 each on various charges.

FRENCH CABINET IGNORES PLAN TO REINSTATE LAVAL

VICHY, France, April 3 (AP).—The French cabinet heard a report from Air Minister Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret on his inspection of African air bases today, but failed to take action on axis-sponsored proposals that Pierre Laval, former vice premier, return to an official position.

Laval ended his negotiations with Chief of State Marshal Petain and Vice Premier Adm. Jean Darlan last night in a communique announcing they had been prompted by his belief that "the external situation of France is growing worse daily."

German sources in Vichy were reported only "normally interested" in Laval's failure. Meanwhile, Laval was lunching with German Consul General Krug von Nidda and Spanish Ambassador José Lequerica at Clermont-Ferrand, near Vichy.

WAGE ROW HALTS NAVY BUILDING IN MANITOWOC

Manitowoc, Wis., April 3 [Special].—Practically all building here was at a standstill today while representatives of the building trades' unions—carpenters, bricklayers, and laborers—attempted to settle wage differences with contractors. About 250 men were idle.

Simon Simonson, representative of the Building Trades' council here, said no strike has been called, but contractors said almost all work was stopped. Unions are demanding increases from 10 to 20 cents an hour. The head of one construction company said the men had been offered 5 cents an hour increase.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

THE QUESTION.

What is the most welcome interruption you ever had while in an uncomfortable situation?

WHERE ASKED.

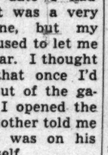
Pittsfield building, 33 North Wabash avenue.

THE ANSWERS.

Joan Oppenheimer, student, 1318 Hyde Park boulevard—The man on the street with the microphone had just asked my name and wanted me to answer a simple question. I was overcome with "mike fright." But before I had to admit that to the world he said it was time to sign off.

George S. Kaufman, student, 5203 Blackstone avenue—I absent-mindedly made a date with two girls on the same night. With a little prevarication I thought I had settled it, but as one girl and I walked down the street we were about to meet the other. Without noticing me, she entered a store.

Sue Gaspar, housewife, 4226 Henderson street—The phone and doorbell rang at the same moment while I was in the tub. Not knowing that my brother was home, I hopped out to answer the phone. My brother answered the door. He and the guest opened the hall door and, by so doing, screened me behind it.



Norman Crown, order filler, 5439 Winthrop avenue—The date I had that night was a very special one, but my father refused to let me have the car. I thought for just that once I'd sneak it out of the garage. As I opened the door my mother told me my father was on his way down to use it himself.

William C. Meier, jeweler, 4913 North Karlov avenue—Quite a few years ago I was literally saved by the bell. It was in one of those closely matched boxing affairs and I didn't feel like suffering a knockout. A few more seconds and I know it would have come. I welcomed that bell.

Mrs. Robert Claus, housewife, 4940 East End avenue—When I was learning to drive a car I was confident enough to venture out on Michigan avenue. But imagine my chagrin when the car stalled and a blaring of horns started. A couple of policemen pushed my car aside. Then I stepped on the starter and drove off.

SET PRICE LIMIT ON 44 ELECTRIC HOUSEHOLD AIDS

Consider Ceilings on All Consumer Goods.

that no such action had been decided upon finally and that several other plans to sharpen OPA's assault on inflation also were under discussion.

J. K. Galbreith, staff deputy administrator of OPA, said the blanket ceiling proposal was being studied along with two other proposals of what he called the "shelf drawer" type—the licensing of all businesses and a system of general rationing. The shelf drawer reference was to proposals in the drawer for possible future use.

The general ceiling proposal will be submitted for consideration of Price Administrator Leon Henderson, who returned to Washington today from a vacation in Brazil. Henderson has stanchly supported heretofore the piecemeal price control method, arguing that restraint on the prices of raw materials and certain key commodities would serve to stabilize the entire price structure.

Wait Tax Bill Action.

Galbreith said he doubted that any decision on a blanket ceiling will be reached until congress disposes of a war tax bill pending before the house ways and means committee.

Prices on farm products and items processed from agricultural products probably would be exempted from any blanket price order issued, because the price control act makes special provision for them. Presumably some provision also would have to be made for the protection of retailers, whose price increases in the main have lagged to some extent behind wholesale advances.

Henderson has estimated that with a record total production of 102 billion dollars this year, war materials will represent 42 billions, leaving 60 billion dollars of consumer goods for civilians, who will have an income of 95 billions.

He used these figures as an argument for higher taxes and for a restraint on wage increases. His theory is that with fewer things available for purchase, an increase in wages merely increases prices.

Apparently no one knows how far curtailment already has gone, but many say that it hasn't yet gone nearly far enough. A staff of auditors, accountants, and economists hopes to have a report in about two weeks on this matter.

SUGAR RATION DISPUTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—The War Production board and the Office of Price Administration, it was learned tonight, are in a dispute over the necessity for consumer rationing of sugar. Leon Henderson, the OPA chief, whose talks for several weeks about a sugar shortage precipitated hoarding by many housewives and others, returned from a Brazil vacation today and found himself in the midst of this controversy.

The War Production board, it was reported, is contending that with no public hysteria and with proper allocations thru wholesalers and distributors, there would be no shortage now. Its experts are surveying present crops, investigating its reports that there should be no shortage in the future.

The WPB has been told that Cuba will produce a million more tons of sugar than originally estimated. Less of the cane will be needed for molasses, as a base for alcohol, due to stepped up grain and corn alcohol production in the midwest.

Transportation from Cuba has been harassed by enemy submarines, with a number of ships sunk, but there is speculation that Secretary of the Navy Knox eventually will be able to protect domestic waters.

If the retail ration program is scrapped, it was pointed out that President Roosevelt's favorite economist will find himself in a pickle. Tentatively scheduled for initiation in early May, the preparations have included the biggest job ever undertaken by the government printing office. Most of this work is near completion.

The print job included 700 million forms, cards and booklets. The ration books themselves totaled 190 million, one for each of the country's 132 million population, plus extras to cover losses and to provide for babies still to be born.

Friend of the Yanks

ARMY TRAINING FILMS.

Thru the medium of motion pictures, the soldier today is learning what to do and how to do it. Training films, produced by the army signal corps, now are shown to troops as part of their training.

The signal corps library of instructional films now has hundreds of subjects. Six basic training films dealing with first aid, hygiene, military customs, and the articles of war usually are shown to all troops.

Weapons Are Demonstrated.

Later, while undergoing specialized training in the branch to which he has been assigned, the soldier sees other films demonstrating his weapons and their tactical use.

In addition, the films are designed to give the men a broader understanding of how their military units fit into the operation of larger combat units. For instance, an infantry company may be shown a film demonstrating infantry coöperation with an armored division. Thus the infantry men will be better prepared to cooperate with mechanized units.

Armies Exchange Films.

A new development is the interchange of such films between the United States and British armies. One British film now in use here is called "Interrogation of Prisoners." This film shows how careless remarks of captains and their replies to questions afford much valuable information if their interrogation is skilfully handled. Another film shows how to treat unexploded bombs.

QUESTIONS.

K. F. B. writes: "I am 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 112 pounds. I would like to know in what branch of army service I could enlist?"

ANSWER: You probably would be refused enlistment in the army until you added at least nine pounds. The minimum weight for a man your height is 121 pounds.

D. E. B. asks: "What is the draft status of a young man who was classified 4-F because of a perforated ear drum and one who was deferred because of a weak heart?"

ANSWER: If, when they are considered for reclassification, their ailments have not been corrected, they very likely will remain in the same classification.

F. N. S. asks: "Upon being drafted, how can one get in the quartermaster corps?"

ANSWER: You will be given the opportunity to state your preference for this branch of service. If you are found to be qualified thru experience in this field and if men are needed, it is probable that you will be assigned to this branch.

LINDBERGH GOES TO WORK AT FORD AIRPLANE PLANT

Consulting Engineer at Willow Run.

Detroit, Mich., April 3 [Special].—Charles A. Lindbergh donned a working man's badge today and went to work for the Ford Motor company at its Willow Run bomber plant. The badge, bearing his picture and clock number, is similar to that worn by every other Ford employé.

Reticent, but obviously enthusiastic about an opportunity to contribute to the war effort, Lindbergh started his first day by visiting Harry P. Bennett, personnel manager, and going to the bomber plant.

Lindbergh seemed happy, and posed for pictures with Henry Ford, who stopped in to greet the flyer. They have been fast friends since 1927, when Lindbergh took Ford aloft for his first flight in an airplane shortly after completing his epoch making solo flight across the Atlantic to Paris.

Col. Lindbergh arrived last night from Washington, where he has been busy for several days putting his affairs in order. He will be assigned here to work with Charles E. Sorenson, Ford vice president and general manager, in the capacity of consulting engineer.

Lindbergh, a critic of the Roosevelt administration's foreign policy in the months before Pearl Harbor, had resigned his commission as a reserve colonel in the army air corps in 1941. After the Japanese attack he volunteered his services in any capacity to the war department.

The war department announced that it had accepted his services in a technical capacity, but for two and a half months the aviation expert was ignored and never was given an opportunity to prove his value to the country.

On March 24 Lindbergh was invited by Mr. Ford to come to Detroit for an inspection tour of the Willow Run plant. While Lindbergh was in Detroit Ford asked him if he would go to work for the Ford company.

RED GUERRILLAS SMASH AT NAZIS NEAR SMOLENSK

36 Bridges Are Destroyed, Moscow Reports.

LONDON, April 3 (AP).—Russian guerrillas striking in the Smolensk sector 230 miles west of Moscow were declared officially tonight to have inflicted heavy losses on German troops and to have destroyed 36 bridges and vital equipment stores needed for Adolf Hitler's spring push.

Soviet announcements in Moscow indicated that the sharpest fighting along the front still was in the northwest. A communique said one Red army detachment killed more than 450 Nazis in a single day's fighting in that area, presumably near Lake Ilmen.

The Germans also were reported thrown out of several populated places along the front, but these were not identified.

Patrol Forays Elsewhere.

Official announcements in Moscow and Berlin indicated only sharp patrol forays elsewhere along the vast front where both sides are gathering huge reserves for the supreme 1942 test.

The Russians said their guerrillas in the Smolensk sector killed 500 Nazis, captured 22, and destroyed three German tanks and 300 carts loaded with ammunition and other supplies.

Guerrillas also wiped out 300 Germans at a small railway station outside Bryansk, and penetrated into Bryansk itself where they destroyed all Nazi-operated locomotives there, it was reported.

After days of reporting virtually unceasing Russian attacks, the German high command said that altho "heavy local thrusts" were encountered, "on the whole a lessening of enemy activity in the east is noticeable." The Germans said "a fairly large number of villages were taken."

The Russian communique spoke of attacks by "infantry freshly arrived from Germany" and said there was "no essential change" in front line positions.

Claim 16,700 Russians Killed.

BERLIN, April 4 [Saturday]—[from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The 257th Brandenburg infantry and the 97th upper Bavarian light infantry divisions have killed more than 16,700 Russians, captured 2,250, and destroyed or captured 60 tanks in repulsing 472 soviet attacks during the last few weeks, the Berlin radio said today.

Claim 12 Nazi Subs Sunk.

MOSCOW, April 4 [Saturday]—(AP).—Soviet torpedo boats and motor launches operating in the Baltic since the beginning of the war have sunk at least 12 enemy submarines, it was announced today.

ARTHUR N. TALBOT FUNERAL MONDAY ON U. OF I. CAMPUS

Arthur N. Talbot.

Services for Dr. Arthur Newell Talbot, professor emeritus of engineering at the University of Illinois and an internationally known figure in the engineering field, will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in Smith Memorial hall on the university campus.

Dr. Talbot died yesterday in Passavant hospital. He was 84 years old and was a member of the Illinois faculty from 1885 until his retirement in 1926.

Engineering structures thruout the world reflect fundamentals of design worked out by Prof. Talbot in his pioneer work in the properties of concrete, reinforced concrete, and other structural materials. He aided in the development of hydraulics, hydrology, and sewage treatment, and contributed the railway transition curve. His research into track stresses led to the modern rights-of-way over which high speed trains travel in comfort and safety.

Surviving Dr. Talbot are a son, Lieut. Col. Kenneth H. Talbot, and three daughters, Mrs. Mildred Gilkey, wife of Prof. H. J. Gilkey of Iowa State college, Ames, Ia.; Mrs. Rachel Westergaard, wife of Dean H. M. Westergaard of the Harvard graduate school of engineering, and Mrs. Dorothy Goodell of Loda, Ill.

BRITISH FORCE AXIS COLUMN IN LIBYA TO FLEE

CAIRO, Egypt, April 3 (AP).—A British column forced an axis column which included tanks and medium artillery to retreat yesterday in the Libyan area east of El Mekili, British headquarters announced today.

"During the night of April 1-2 one of our fighting patrols attacked with hand grenades an enemy outpost south of Tmimi and inflicted casualties. Our losses were nil," a communique said.

British air force headquarters reported three enemy planes were shot down over Cirenaica yesterday after Bengazi and the Martuba, Derna, and Tmimi areas had been attacked Wednesday night.

[The German communique yesterday reported Nazi bombers had damaged two merchant ships near Tobruk, Libya, and shot down six British planes. Military installations and airdromes were reported raided at Malta, where four more British planes were said to have been downed.]

British Destroyer Heythrop Sunk, Admiralty Reports

LONDON, April 3 (AP).—The admiralty today announced the British destroyer Heythrop has been sunk. The Heythrop was one of the "Hunt" class which was completed in 1940. These ships displace 904 tons. They carry four 4 inch anti-aircraft and eight smaller guns.

'WIZARD' PILOTS DEFEND MALTA, SAYS YANK IN RAF

Tells How They Knock Out Axis Raiders.

AT A BRITISH AIRDROME IN THE DESERT, April 3 (AP).—A squad of RAF airmen who saw British fighter planes and anti-aircraft batteries take the heaviest toll of the enemy so far levied over Malta arrived today singing the praises of the bomb-battered island's defenses.

The men, including an American serving with the RAF, agreed the Germans must have been "definitely shaken" when 25 per cent of their bombers failed to return to their Sicilian bases from Wednesday's raids.

[British headquarters in Cairo said yesterday that 16 raiders had been shot down by Malta's defenders on Wednesday. Adding to this number, Malta announced that three enemy bombers were destroyed yesterday. Nine other raiders were reported damaged.]

The American voiced the general opinion when he said he had "never seen anything like the nerve of those fighter pilots." They're so persistent, he added, that they "dive right thru their own defense barrage to get at the axis raiders."

Hails Gunners as "Best."

Like the other returning airmen, he hailed Malta's pilots—all of them volunteers—as "wizard chaps" fighting against great odds.

He called Malta's anti-aircraft gunners "the world's best."

The battle of Malta now is fiercer, in proportion, than the battle of Britain at its peak, in the opinion of the American, who saw them both, because Malta is a much more concentrated target.

American Fought in Spain.

Malta's shelters in the solid rock are helping the people stand up to the ordeal. He called them "the world's best shelters."

The American is a 39 year old sergeant serving as a wireless operator and gunner. A mining engineer, he left his home in Butte, Mont., in 1936 to go to Spain to fight with the international brigade. He says he gets no thrill out of flying and prefers to drive a fast car.

March Raids Kill 230.

VALETTA, Malta, April 3 (AP)—Axis bombs killed 230 persons on the island of Malta during March, a British communique said tonight. It was the greatest number of casualties recorded here in any month of the war, but the raids were also the heaviest.

AUTOIST PRAISES SYNTHETIC TIRE'S 32,000 MILE RUN

A synthetic automobile tire, which has run 32,000 miles and appears to be in better condition than three other regular tires used for the same distance, was exhibited yesterday by Charles Kasper, a supervisor for the Chicago Motor Coach company. The synthetic tire, one of the few in use in Chicago, was manufactured by the Firestone Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., of petroleum by-products furnished by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

"The synthetic tire is good for another 15,000 miles before regrooving will be necessary," Kasper said. "After regrooving, it should be good for 20,000 more miles.

"I've never had any trouble with it—no flats, no punctures. I've driven it in all kinds of weather, and over all kinds of roads. I notice it skids less than the other tires."

The synthetic tire was manufactured as a test by the Firestone company and was sent to the motor coach company in August, 1940.

Naval Hero's Dad Helps to Build Mosquito Boats

Bayonne, N. J., April 3. [Special]—Frederick L. Bulkeley, 74 years old, father of Lieut. John D. Bulkeley, naval hero, has been hired by the Electric Boat company to help build mosquito boats. ILLINOIS FLYER DECORATED FOR ALASKAN RESCUE

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—For heroism in rescuing a marooned officer from an ice floe in the waters of Turnagain Arm, Alaska, two air corps officers—First Lieutenants Eugene T. Yarbrough of Guntersville, Ala., and Frank L. O'Brien Jr. of Sugar Grove, Ill.—today were given the distinguished flying cross by the war department.

Lieut. Frank L. O'Brien Jr.

In order to rescue the marooned officers, said the citation, it was necessary for Yarbrough, the pilot, and O'Brien, who accompanied him, to land their plane on an ice floe.

Altho the ice was crumbling, they landed 500 yards away and brought the marooned man to the plane by using rope and a rubber boat. Deciding that a takeoff with three men in the plane would be hazardous to all of them, Yarbrough took the rescued officer to safety. O'Brien remained on the floe. In a second trip, Yarbrough landed again on the ice floe, and brought O'Brien back.

NAME TWO MORE TO EACH DRAFT BOARD IN STATE

Membership Increased to Handle Added Load.

Springfield, Ill., April 3 [Special].—Two additional members will be added to each of Illinois' 361 local draft boards as soon as President Roosevelt makes the appointments, Paul G. Armstrong, state draft director, announced today. The names of 722 appointees have been sent to Washington by Gov. Dwight H. Green.

"The draft boards are being enlarged to facilitate classifications and appeals," Armstrong said. Under the three-man board system it frequently has been a hardship for the members to meet. Two were required for a quorum. With five members on local boards it is believed it will be easier for three to get together.

"Increased registration and the coming registration April 27 also will add to the load for the boards. In some cases it may be necessary to increase clerical staffs to handle the work expeditiously.

"Complaints have come from rural districts that members of the boards were not dirt farmers. Originally farmers were sought, but it was not always possible to get them to serve and in many cases retired farmers were appointed.

"The new appointees in the rural districts are dirt farmers. In every instance attempts were made to get one Republican and one Democrat, neither of whom is active in politics."

GASOLINE ALLEY—HERE AND THERE

ANYWAY, WE STILL HAVE BICYCLE TIRES, THE ROAD IS GOOD AND THE SUNSHINE PERFECT.
THERE'S NO TELLING WHAT SKEEZIX IS HAVING TO PUT UP WITH AND HOW HE IS TAKING IT.
THINK OF ALL I HAVE HERE! AND I STILL HAVE HIM, EVEN IF HE IS MANY MILES AWAY.
I'M GLAD YOU'VE COME, NINA. YOU MUST HAVE HAD A DIFFICULT WEEK.
YES, MOTHER, BUT THINGS ARE STILL SO WONDERFUL I CAN'T FEEL DOWNHEARTED FOR LONG.

Separation Told

FLOWER PARRY COOGAN.

Hollywood, Cal., April 3 (AP).—Jackie Coogan, former child film star, announced his separation today from his wife of less than a year, the former Flower Parry.

Jackie Coogan.

His disclosure came a month to the day after the birth of their son, John Anthony Coogan. The former star, now a soldier, said:

"I realize that this is a terrible thing. But we had known each other only five months when we were married and have known for some time it was a mistake. But we thought we would stick it out on account of the baby. It didn't work, however, and I think it better to make the break now.

"I expect, of course, always to take care of the youngster."

His first marriage, to Actress Betty Grable, ended in divorce in 1939.

At her parents' home with her son, Mrs. Coogan said she was retaining a lawyer.

"If Jackie wants a separation, why, that's the way it will have to be," she told reporters. "As for a divorce, that is very serious. I will have to give it a lot of thought."

THE HILLMAN PROGRAM.

Sidney Hillman, as labor director of the War Production board, has presented a 14 point program to the labor committee of the senate. Mr. Hillman estimates that 8 million recruits must be found this year to reinforce the war industries. His 14 point plan is intended to achieve this result with a minimum loss of time and effort.

Some of the suggestions are sound enough. Mr. Hillman proposes, among other things, that congress authorize the formation of mobile labor corps, composed of highly skilled men who can act as trouble shooters where production is lagging or can get a new factory started and help train the permanent staff to man it. Properly used, such a mobile corps might prove of the greatest value.

Mr. Hillman thinks that the government must be empowered to transfer workers from one employer to another. Perhaps the time will come when some such arrangement may have to be adopted, but for the present there appears to be no great need for it and certainly no such scheme should be instituted until the need is clear. If a plan involving so much hardship for employés and employers alike must be adopted in the future, Mr. Hillman's other proposal that the seniority rights of the employés concerned be safeguarded should accompany it.

The more the 14 points are examined, the clearer it becomes that they are totalitarian in spirit. It may be true, as many have said, that to win the war we must ape the Hitler régime with its compulsions, its fines, and its concentration camps, but most Americans will reject the idea indignantly.

Mr. Hillman's first point calls for "directives" to war contractors to employ skilled craftsmen at jobs which will utilize their highest skills. The government is to send inspectors to the factories to see that this order is carried out and the inspectors are to have the authority to compel compliance. What is the need for that provision? Is it supposed that many employers are using skilled machinists as janitors' helpers or that the machinists are deliberately choosing to work at lower wages than they could earn at their trades? It ought not to be necessary to compel employers and employés to do what their common sense and their self-interest command them to do. Any one reading Mr. Hillman's proposal might reasonably suppose that it is the aim of the administration to equalize all wages and take away the premiums on skill. If that is the idea, the New Dealers can profit from Russian experience. The soviets tried to organize industry on that Utopian basis, but were forced to abandon the experiment when it proved an abject failure.

Others among the 14 proposals call for a high degree of centralization of authority over the recruiting and training of labor. If adopted, these proposals will bring the confusion and waste which a huge burocracy always entails. The problem of manning the war factories is a difficult one precisely because millions of men and women, scattered across the continent, are the elements in it. It won't help matters to try to run the whole show from Washington; that would only guarantee that peculiar local conditions would be overlooked. A plan of centralization makes a neater blue print, but it doesn't get results. Burocrats are particularly bad at the kind of improvisation which the war emergency requires.

It is curious—or perhaps it isn't curious—that Mr. Hillman's plans do not include anything calculated to make the skills of nonunion men more generally available for war work. Among the principal obstacles to manning the war industries are exorbitant initiation fees and arbitrary union regulations designed to restrict output. As Mr. Hillman is willing to require men to work where they don't want to work, at jobs they don't like, he ought to be equally bold in other directions.

THE ARTS OF DECEIT.

The Hon. Harold Nicolson, M. P. from West Leicester, opposing the proposal of Miss Thelma Cazalet, M. P. from East Islington, that women be admitted into the British foreign service, suggests in the London Spectator that women are temperamentally unsuited to the work. Mr. Nicolson refers to those engaged in diplomacy as diplomatists, which is the word general in English usage. He has been a diplomatist of much experience himself and has written a book about diplomacy, and thus seems qualified to render judgment. But there are some things about the opposite sex he does not understand.

Mr. Nicolson says that the trouble with women as diplomatists is that they possess zeal, sympathy, and intuition—all serious drawbacks in this special field. Recalling Talleyrand's maxim that a diplomatist above all should lack zeal, Mr. Nicolson pictures his ideal diplomatist as "impartial, imperturbable, and a trifle inhuman." He admits that these negative virtues combine to produce "a habit of colorless skepticism which is highly irritating to all who meet it," but still maintains that to the born diplomatist "mistrust of sympathy becomes so ingrained that his heart is as a dispatch box, to be opened only by a special key; his impartiality is so diffused and equable that he regards even the most impassioned causes as the twittering of starlings in the thorns; and his dislike of intuition makes him slow to accept ideas."

It will be seen that the composite diplomatist in Mr. Nicolson's mind is a man, not with one umbrella, but with two, and readers have been quick to point this out in subsequent letters to the editor. One writer gives ironic thanks to Mr. Nicolson for throwing "vivid light on the mentality of these diplomatic Bourbons," Mr. Nicolson presumably included.

There still remains to be answered Mr. Nicolson's question whether perpetual maidenhood is to be imposed upon those women who offer themselves on the altar of diplomacy. He is alarmed at the prospect that they may marry their colleagues and outsiders and give away their country's secrets. He remarks that there would be few positions more otiose than that of the ambassador's husband, and casting about the field of woman diplomatists discovers that the soviet minister in Stockholm, Alexandra M. Kollontay, owes her success to the fact that there is no Mr. Kollontay.

Indeed, this matter may be considered a problem. William Jennings Bryan's daughter, Ruth Bryan Owen, was a widow when she went to Denmark to represent the United States. She was attracted by one of the king's gentlemen in waiting and, upon marrying him, felt herself compelled to resign. On the other hand, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, another widow, who represented this country in Norway, preserved her status and served her government as adequately as most of the men in the diplomatic service could have done.

THE EAST INDIES MAY LOSE A CUSTOMER.

In the 17th and 18th centuries the sugar islands of the Caribbean were fabulous prizes. Napoleon, whose own military ventures in that quarter ended in disaster, nevertheless ended the golden age of the sugar islands.

When the British blockade cut off continental Europe's supply of sugar he put French scientists to work to find a new source. Out of their research came beet sugar, which ended the tropical countries' monopoly.

Today war again is forcing a technological revolution. It may be that the devastation the East Indies have suffered at the hands of Japanese invaders will be minor compared with the damage that their permanent prosperity is suffering right now in American laboratories.

It is doubtful whether the American people, having once suffered tire rationing, will ever again tolerate our dependence on a source of supply so far removed from our means of defending it by arms. Synthetic factories and American plantations, the latter perhaps using other plants than the hevea tree, will give us a rubber supply that we can defend. They may not be able to compete on a peacetime cost basis with the product of starvation wages in the tropics. If so, there are always tariffs. We would pay more for rubber, but the premium would purchase a high degree of security.

The East Indies have also been a principal source of tin. When the tin mines of Malaya are reopened to western commerce they will find a substantial part of their former American market gone. Lacquers and plastics are replacing tin as a protector of metal surfaces. Other alloys are being developed to approximate its metallurgical properties. Some of these are wartime expedients, but others will be found to be cheaper and more satisfactory than tin.

Economists and historians have had much to say of the drive toward economic self-sufficiency both as a preparation for war and as a breeder of war. They might well shift their attention to war as a breeder of self-sufficiency.

HOODLUMS ON THE LOOSE.

The parolees whom the misguided big brothers on our state boards term rehabilitated are running true to form. Three of them, seized in Chicago, confess 10 strong-arm robberies. They were arrested in a car stolen in Cincinnati. With them, running around the country, was an 18 year old girl they had picked up in Kentucky.

One of these reformed characters, paroled three months ago, served eight years in Indiana for robbery. A second, paroled eight months ago from the same state, served a term for larceny. The third, also released eight months ago, served six years in California for statutory rape. These men were considered by the parole boards fit to resume their place in society. Chicago is not pleased to have these criminals dumped on her by other states, and our own parole board here in Illinois will once more note that criminals who are all pure as the driven snow as long as they want out quickly revert to type when they are turned loose from the penitentiary.

WE LOSE TOUCH WITH WALL STREET.

On Saturday the last brokerage office on Michigan avenue closed up shop. Once there were seven such offices well dispersed between 7th street and Walton place. During the lunch hour employés of many business houses on the boulevard could be seen observing intently the so-called progress of the market. It was possible for a nervous speculator to keep almost constantly in touch with the market while proceeding up the avenue, pausing briefly at customer rooms in the Stevens, the Blackstone, the Congress, the Carbon and Carbide building, the London Guarantee building, 333, Wrigley's, and the Palmolive building. Now all there is to do at lunch is to eat, and the ticker tape tenders are confined to La Salle street south of Washington.

The severance of the last direct contact between Michigan avenue and Wall street symbolizes the stagnation of security speculation. Transactions on the big board are the smallest in 27 years. A membership recently sold for $17,000, the lowest since 1897, when the rock bottom price was $15,500. The present volume of stock brokerage business is so small that it is questionable whether the machinery for effecting stock trades can be kept operating.

Arthur C. Weick of the division of industry operations of WPB made a speech the other day in which he gave this advice to little business men: "Get out of business before you lose your money." Most brokers would have been ahead if they had followed this reasoning 10 years ago.

Editorial of the Day

SILVER AND WAR.

[Los Angeles Times.]

The demand of Sen. McCarran that any silver released by the treasury for industrial uses be on a lend-lease basis and be replaced by newly mined silver indicates that to some senators the price of silver is more important than winning the war.

If silver producers consulted their long run interest they would repudiate Sen. McCarran and demand that the industrial use of the metal be expanded. This would furnish a far more reliable market than efforts to force use of silver for money. The day of monetary silver has passed; the silver senators are trying to pump life into a corpse.

If the government can sell 400,000,000 ounces of silver to replace copper, the deal should receive popular approval. Some day the whole stock of silver at West Point will be put on the market, for any price.

MR. PEPYS PREPARES FOR EASTER.

4th April—Am prepared for the Easter parade with a new woolen necktie of the MacArthur tartan, cross-barred black and yellow on green, and also with a new weskit of the same tartan, woven to order in Scotland of a sturdy tweed and tailored to my measure. If the Easter paraders in formal raiment, when they see me so boldly colored, think I am going to a race meeting instead of church, they will miss the symbolism of my costume.

These two choice items came to me a few days ago, and I promptly donned them in my office, whereupon my co-workers set up great cries of wonderment, and it would seem that into their drab lives there had never before come a man wearing a fancy weskit. One of them said, "To wear such a bold design, you must be braver than Gen. MacArthur." Yet I hold it to be a thing of beauty and of great comfort, too, especially when I dress for football games.

Went to the dog show recently, and if I had been wearing my plaid weskit they might have made me judge of the Scotch collies. Was especially pleased with the Bedlington terriers, a kind of dog I had never seen before. They look like lambs, with gray wool all over, and gentle faces, and were as quiet as lambs while the other dogs were barking wildly. Talked about the Bedlingtons with a dog expert, and spoke of their woolliness, and he said there is a movement afoot to clip Bedlingtons and use their hair for weaving cloth because of the woolen shortage. A happy idea, no doubt, but there are probably not more than 100 Bedlingtons in the entire country.

Learned that this strange dog is like a lion in a lamb's skin, for he is deadly at rat-catching and will fight fiercely if attacked by larger dogs. Learned also he was a fad among Oxford students of the 1890s, and no young gentleman of that seat of learning was in fashion unless he sported a Bedlington.

If I could join the Easter parade in my MacArthur weskit, leading a dog that looks like a paschal lamb, maybe the newspaper photographers would lose interest in the silk-hatted Pump Room brigade of bankers.

EASTER LITANY.

Lilies of love for all our lost today,
Where'er they lie (in exile's farthest lands
Or in the loneliest seas that lift their spray)
Our sad, remembering world bears in both hands:
Petals that pray the prayer all faith has prayed
Since time and man began; each quiet word
Bright in the garment of His truth arrayed
Whose own last sleep the stone of doom bestirred.

Yet, in that knowledge never shone as now
These emblemed blooms so radiant, so pure—
So like in hue the Lord's still breast and brow
When malice gave them futile sepulture.
Glad in that hope, beloved dead, we heap
These sheaves of white remembrance round your sleep!

"Dog Will Have His Day."

It was the 1st of April and a fine spring morning. The earth sparkled and there was tonic in the air. The dogs romped outside, responding to the brightness of the scene in a conspiracy of fun. Then they were called, and in they tumbled, a boisterous lot—five cockers and an Irish setter, the latter a big chap towering over his mates like a grown boy playing in the first grade.

He ambled over to where I sat at breakfast and buried his great head in my lap, his deep brown eyes giving out a world of love. I stroked him. He nuzzled closer and I pondered on the fine things said of dogs—their faith and loyalty. I gloried in this evidence of pure devotion, when suddenly his paw came like a rapier thrust and overturned the cup of steaming coffee on my pants.

He didn't wait. He scampered off and as he gave one swift glance back I swear I saw a gleam of mischief there, just as a youngster looks when he shouts "April Fool!" Shandy Gaff.

UP AND DOWN.

(Lily Pons, at the Civic Opera House.)

Tae ease m' mind frae deevin' din
O' war, which gets beneath the skin,
An' shrinkin' rubber, gas, an' tin,
An' March end bills,
I took a load frae aff m' feet
An' parked m' auld frame in a seat,
Tae gie m'sel a wee bit treat
O' Lily's trills.

Mon, hoo that lassie charmed m' ear!
She bore me tae the stratosphere.
M' gloomy spirits did she cheer?
I'll say she did!
Up, up we went in silvery soond,
An' traveled a' the heavens roond,
An' in oor course we never foond
The sky the lid.

She carried me tae beauty's bowers,
An' high abune the elfin towers,
Past gardens where the fairest flowers
Bloom an' bud.
But, sad, och, sad, it is tae tell!
When yince she stopped her magic spell,
Back on the stony earth I fell
Wi' heavy thud.

This Matter Will Soon Be Arranged.

All winter the little lady cardinal has been with us in Rogers Park, with none of her own kind for company. Her bright, clear whistle and calls are magic. But spring is advancing and her "O, dear! Come here!" becomes more insistent each day. Where are those dashing cardinal boys? Have they all been drafted? She is much too lovely to live alone. The White Cat.

AVOID LOCKJAW WITH TETANUS ANTITOXIN.

With the coming of warmer days playgrounds will again hum with activity and youngsters will begin their annual climbs over piles of lumber, bricks, and sand. Thus more cuts, scratches, and minor lacerations will be encountered. It behooves us then to understand the vicious rôle of the tetanus bacillus which is found in the dust and dirt of barnyards and along our highways.

Cases increase in frequency with the onset of spring. Any abrasion may open a ready avenue for the inoculation of the germ, and the poison which it elaborates is more powerful than strychnine.

Altho we can destroy this toxin by boiling, unfortunately we cannot cook our injured tissues. But we can scrub every wound thoroly and vaccinate against the disease—lockjaw. Altho we have a ready remedy in tetanus antitoxin, the site may be so minute that we regard administration as unnecessary. If 2,000 or more units of this neutralizing agent could be injected after every gash we would soon banish the malady. But the lesion may look so inconsequential that the precaution is forgotten.

In industry, antitoxin is regarded as essential if filth is ground into the tissues. This emphasizes the importance of first aid, with the removal of foreign particles. The best cleanser is soap and water. In addition, the hair may need to be shaved and some grease solvent [such as benzene or ether] employed. After complete washing the dry gauze dressing should be loose so as to permit the free access of air, care being taken not to leave dead spaces in the depths of the wound. If serum-filled pockets are allowed to accumulate they will offer excellent opportunities for the growth of bacteria.

The most dangerous type of mishap is one wherein a sharp instrument has caused a puncture. Here microorganisms may be carried deeply within the cells, where they cannot be reached. Street accidents and those about farms—particularly with children under 15 years of age—supply the largest number of victims.

Fortunately we have means of counteracting complications. A small bit of tetanus toxin will protect a possible sufferer. This is now combined with diphtheria toxoid so that our children may be safeguarded against both ailments.

Should an actual case develop, a generous quantity of antitoxin—350,000 to 400,000 units—must be given. In fact, it is only with these tremendous amounts that we can hope for recovery in a well established infection.

Furthermore the patient must receive the best possible nursing care, as the frightful convulsions which may occur paralyze the chest. During one of these seizures breathing may become impossible—at least for a time.

Some decades past, the mortality was far higher than it is today. But we have learned that prevention is far cheaper and more effective than cure. The trouble is that the microbes, so long as they remain within the body, keep on growing and producing their noxious substances. For this reason the antidote must keep ahead of the "bugs."

FLABBY ABDOMEN.

S. T. writes: What causes a pendulous abdomen?

REPLY.

Weak abdominal muscles. This may lead to the highly vaunted disease known as "gastroptosis" or dropped stomach. Exercise, a well fitting binder, and a sensible diet will help.

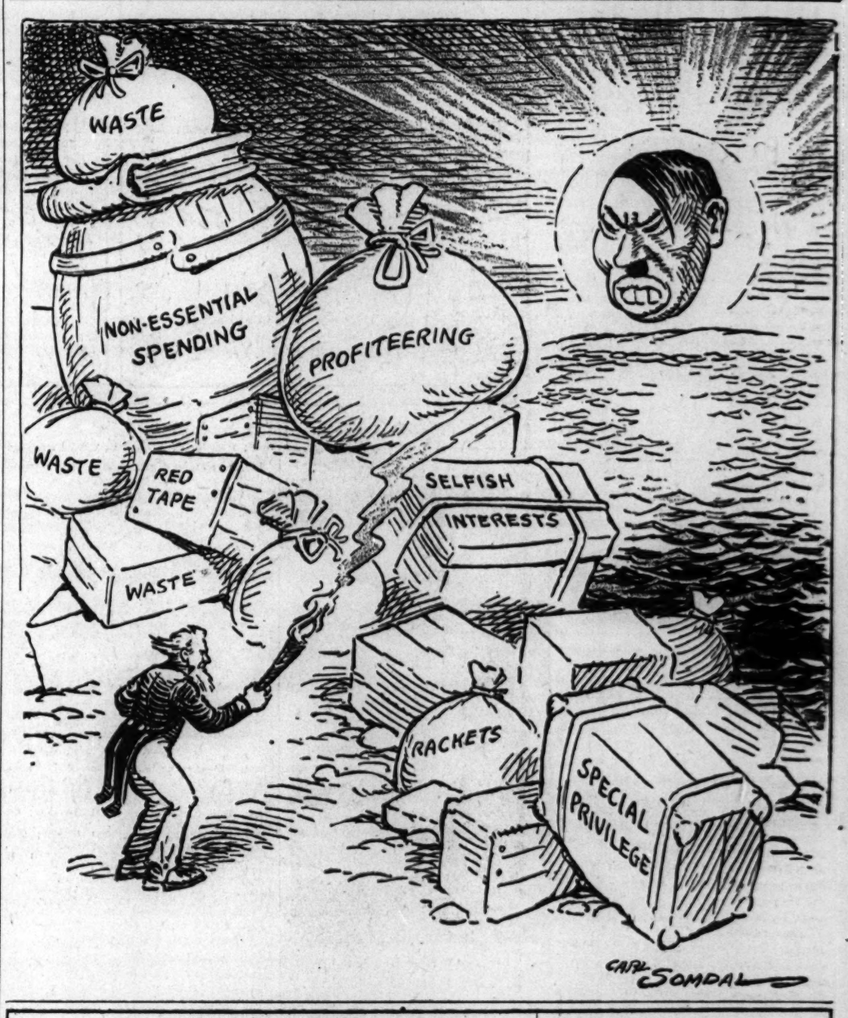
BLOOD VOLUME.

K. P. writes: How many quarts of blood has a normal person?

REPLY.

About 8 per cent of the body weight is blood, altho the amount may vary slightly in different individuals. A man weighing 160 pounds will have approximately 12 pints.

WHERE A SCORCHED EARTH POLICY IS NEEDED



VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

REFLECTIONS ON PRIMARIES.

Palos Park, Ill., March 30.—Before the '90s the Ogle County Republican, of which the writer was an editor, conducted a campaign for a voluntary primary system and a decade before the state had a primary nominaions for office were made by primary in that county. It therefore can be stated that the writer has no prejudice against a primary system.

Yet there can be no question but grave abuses exist in our present system. Along with it should go the short ballot, for no body of citizens can by any means sufficiently inform themselves so as to vote intelligently when confronted with our present blanket ballots. Another is the habit of the party machines in putting out slates of candidates. Tricks of politicians in dictating appointments formed one of the greatest objections to the old system.

There are certain drawbacks to the primary inherent in the system itself. One is that the great body of voters, confronted with multitudes of names, generally vote for one that is somewhat familiar even if the name became familiar thru devices not of the best. Thus every recent secretary of state, who has frequently to send letters thruout the state and is in the public eye often, has been a great vote getter. Mr. Emmerson was elected governor, Mr. Stratton's unknown son was elected congressman at large and our present Secretary Hughes was saved from the Republican avalanche two years ago thru the publicity given the name.

It would not be well to go back to the old convention system, but certainly the short ballot should be adopted and something besides the recommendations of newspapers, who often are working at cross-purposes, should be offered the people in the way of advice.

EVAN L. REED.

MR. HULL IS HARD OF HEARING.

Chicago, April 2.—I should like to answer the letter signed "R. C. P.," which appeared under your caption "Astonished Voter" April 2.

True, Denison B. Hull was active on the Fight for Freedom committee, and immediately after Pearl Harbor offered his services to both the army and navy. In both instances he was turned down because of defective hearing. Mr. Hull is an army veteran of World War I. and was mustered out with a good record.

THOMAS C. CLARK.

PHARMACISTS IN THE DRAFT.

Colfax, Ia., March 25.—When I examined the draft questionnaire list for "professional and scientific workers" and found that our big brains in Washington had failed to recognize the practice of pharmacy, it got under my skin. There are some 50,000 registered and graduate pharmacists who should be made available to the war effort.

Chicago, April 1.—Two weeks ago a pail of honey could be bought for 53 cents. Today the same grade and weight, in the same store, costs 85 cents, a raise of more than 62 per cent.

HENRY W. GRAFF.

THE PRIVATES DISCUSS CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS.

Chanute Field, Ill., April 1.—This represents the views of about 50 soldiers at Chanute Field in regard to conscientious objectors. The case of Lew Ayres has brought discussion somewhat to a head.

Possibly an objector is sincere, but as was remarked, "I'm just as yellow as the next fellow," the opinions being somewhat divided on the phrase. The average soldier is just as confused as to the right or wrong of war; this war or any other. But at times, such as at present, every one tries to submerge his own feelings, to do his best for the majority.

The publicity given such headlines as Lew Ayres does more harm to the morale of the country than any amount of news about Lieut. Jimmy Stewart, Carole Lombard, and others who have done so much to help.

Many theories on what could be done to put these "objectors" to good uses have appeared in print or have been discussed. Being plain everyday, ordinary privates we all hate "k. p." The best thing we can think of is to put them on everyday k. p. to wait on the men who put their own objections aside to fight for the country they love and the freedom they enjoy.

It is suggested that every one read "Gasoline Alley" in THE TRIBUNE, March 31. Uncle Walt really gives one food for thought. N. R. M.

PAID CIVILIAN DEFENSE WORKERS.

Chicago, April 1.—The writer is a volunteer worker in civilian defense. It was my understanding that this is a patriotic duty to be performed without expectation of any remuneration. Because I believe that some kind of organization should be perfected, in common with thousands of other workers in this district and other districts, I was more than glad to do whatever work was required and take whatever courses were necessary in order to do whatever job was assigned me quickly and efficiently. The time for this study was not considered and certainly no pay was expected.

At a zone meeting one of the teachers indicated in his talk that he devoted so much time to this work that it was sapping his physical and nervous energy. You would assume that he was doing this for patriotic reasons. A news article today indicates that these teachers get $2 an hour for their patriotic service. The writer would be curious to know how many other men and women in civilian defense are being paid salaries of this kind? G. J. VUCETICH.

SUGAR RATIONING.

Chicago, March 29.—Are there not enough patriots in our country for us to be self-governing in sugar rationing so that the money used for government rationing of sugar could have been used for some war need? THRIFTY.

THE SOLDIER HITCH-HIKED.

Freeport, Ill., March 30.—A young army aviator, called home on account of his father's illness, hitch-hiked back to camp. Why? Because it's a long way from Illinois to Texas. Had he been a worker in an airplane plant, safe from the draft, drawing double pay and overtime, a striker in a shipyard, an executive making enormous profits out of war work, a chiseler getting 1 per cent on millions of war contracts, an employé handed an $11,000 bonus for 46 days work, a loafing pay roller in Washington, or a grafting business agent, he could have returned in a plane or a Pullman; but he was only a soldier helping to keep the others safe in their jobs far away from war—a boy willing to die for his country if need be—at 70 cents a day.

CITIZEN.

Chicago, March 27.—I want to thank you for your coöperation during the past income tax filing period. The publicity given by your paper was of great help in keeping taxpayers of the district advised as to office hours, etc. Mr. Kirkpatrick, your reporter assigned to this building, was also most coöperative during this period.

ESTATE PROBATE.

Chicago, March 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In probating an estate can a probate judge or attorney for estate reappoint an administrator to act as representative of the heirs when an estate is closed? [In Minnesota—the administrator is one of the heirs, too.]

2. If heirs don't agree on agent to act, who can appoint one?

3. For how long can administrator keep an estate open by not coöperating in settling a claim by one of the heirs?

4. If action had to be taken to remove administrator who would pay costs?

5. If sale was forced on property, who would be empowered to make transaction safely and legally? S. R.

1. In general, the heirs would be the ones to select their property manager. We see no reason for the court to interfere.

2. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

3. We cannot undertake to name a maximum limit.

4. In general, such an application would be made directly to the probate judge and it is not clear that there will be any separate court costs. Presumably the party making the motion would pay his own attorney, if that is what you mean to ask.

Ellen Wacker Sheffield to Be Bride Friday

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. Ellen Wacker Sheffield and Hugh McBirney Johnston, both of Lake Forest, are to be married next Friday in Providence, R. I., it is being revealed today. Mr. Johnston has been in training with the Aviation Volunteer Specialists at a base near Providence, and he will receive his commission the day he and Mrs. Sheffield are married.

The marriage, which will be a second one for both, will take place quietly with only the families present. Mrs. Sheffield's mother, Mrs. Frederick G. Wacker, will be there, and so will one of Mr. Johnston's sisters, Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, and Mr. Olmsted, who also is receiving his commission with the A. V. S. that day. They have another sister and brother, Miss Ethel Johnston and Hulburd Johnston.

The former Miss Wacker's marriage to Thomas Sheffield was ended in divorce a few months ago, as was the marriage of Mr. Johnston and the former Deborah Butler. Where Mr. Johnston and his bride will reside depends on his orders from the navy. Mr. Wacker is convalescing from an illness at the Virginia Hot Springs and will not be able to attend the wedding.

Winnetka House Trade a Puzzle for Postmen.

Winnetka postmen will have a special problem soon with two W. D. Mackenzies in the same block. Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pirie II., who have been living in Oakley avenue in that village, are trading houses with William D. McKenzie, and as soon as the Piries take over Mr. McKenzie's larger house in Laurel avenue—they'll move on April 14—he will be a neighbor of Dr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie. The different spelling of the names means nothing to the general public, as all Mc's and Mac's can tell their friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie departed yesterday for Palm Beach on a short holiday. Dr. Mackenzie has two brothers serving with the British forces. One is in command of a bomber squadron in the Fiji Islands, and the other is in Sydney. The Mackenzies' 4 year old daughter, Madeleine, is off on a holiday, too, having departed last Monday in the custody of Stuart Sherman of Winnetka to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Gillies, in Rye, N. Y.

Florida Is Having Large Influx of Spring Visitors.

Florida expected a tremendous influx of visitors in March and April, and the letter from a recent arrival in Palm Beach says she never has seen anything like it.

"People literally have been standing in line for rooms, to say nothing of train accommodations, which is where my trouble will come next week when I try to get home. . . . I went to the Whitehall, which is lovely. It reminded me so much of the Upper Egypt hotel, the Luxor Winter Palace, and the Cataract hotel at Assuan. Palm Beach is lush and lovely, like Luxor, while Miami Beach is more like Cairo—with its white buildings and boulevards, its gayety and speed," continues this traveler who never before had been to America's greatest playground.

She also writes with approbation of the Whitehall's Jardin Royal, "which is as close to heaven as I ever expect to get," and of Lake Forest's Beth Coleman, who is singing with the orchestra there. Miss Coleman's parents, the junior John Colemans, won't return to their Lake Forest home from their Palm Beach home until the end of the month.

Albert Pardridges Back at Their Wheaton Home.

The Albert J. Pardridges, who had a house in Palm Beach for the winter, returned to their Wheaton home on Wednesday. They are hoping to go, as usual, to their summer home, Duneside, at Easthampton, N. Y., altho it is impossible to make definite plans very far ahead. They have heard, however, that most of their neighbors there are going to open their houses, the club will be half open, and both golf courses will be in use, so it looks as tho Easthampton, at least, expects to have almost a normal season.

From the Jupiter Island club at Hobe Sound, Fla., where they are on a holiday, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deere Wiman of Lake Shore drive have sent word that they are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Mary Jane Deere, to William Morck Brinton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison Brinton of New Kent, Va., and New York.

Miss Wiman, who is a niece of Dwight Deere Wiman of New York, theatrical producer, was introduced to society in the summer of 1940 in Moline, Ill., home of the Wiman family. During the winter holidays she shared a party with Miss Marie Merrill Hubbard in Chicago. Miss Wiman, a graduate of the Foxcroft school, is a sophomore at Bennington college. Her parents also have a home in Santa Barbara, Cal.

Easter Parade to Center in Michigan Avenue Area.

The intersection at State and Madison is called the world's busiest corner, but it will yield tomorrow to Delaware and Michigan, where the Fourth Presbyterian church is located. A few steps east in Delaware place is the Casino club; one short block north is the Drake, and between these three buildings will ebb and flow the very heart of Chicago's Easter parade. It is here that sightseers gather, as well as members of the congregation of the Fourth; members of the Casino, who will be attending an Easter breakfast there, and those who are going to the Easter breakfast at Camellia House in the Drake. The International club, in the southwest corner of the hotel, is a vantage point for watching the crowds below, and is filled to capacity on Easter, too.

The best dressed woman at the Camellia House party will be award-

Several Spring Weddings Hold Spotlight Today

Lace from her grandmother's wedding dress will trim the bridal gown which Miss Mary Macfarland, daughter of Henry J. Macfarland of Barrington and Mrs. Ryan Macfarland of Winnetka, will wear this afternoon when she becomes the bride of James Roy West. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lanning Macfarland of Winnetka. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard will perform the ceremony.

Miss Macfarland will have two attendants—her sister, Margaret, as maid of honor, and Miss Jean Frances Matthiessen as bridesmaid. Mr. West, son of Mrs. John Cordner West of Winnetka, will take his bride on a two week wedding trip thru the south before he enters the army.

Miss Shirley Jannotta and Lieut. Henry Carlyle Nickel will be married at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Vernon Jannotta of Kenilworth. The yoke of the bride's gown and the cap which will hold her veil have been made from lace from the bridal ensemble of her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. A. Hamilton Lamm.

Miss Mary Frances Jannotta will be her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be their younger sister, Diane, and their cousin, Miss Stella Jannotta. Lieut. Nickel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Nickel of Chicago, will take his bride to the west coast, where he will report for duty with the marines.

Bishop Frederick D. Leete of Deland, Fla., and Mackinac Island will officiate at the marriage tonight of his grandson, Dean Leete Keefer, and Miss Jean Frawley Riedel. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stanley Riedel of Wilmette.

Miss Jean Colborn of Evanston will serve as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Helen Keefer, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Joan Anderson of Eau Claire, Wis. W. Dean Keefer of Winnetka is to be his son's best man. After a short wedding trip Mr. Keefer expects to enter the navy.

Miss Mary Maxine Wolcott will become the bride of Robert Walker Guthrie at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Park Congregational church, Elmira, N. Y., with a reception following in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Wolcott of Elmira. Young Mr. Guthrie is the son of Mrs. John Brandon Guthrie of Evanston, formerly of Winnetka, and the late Mr. Guthrie.

In Elmira for the ceremony are the bridegroom's brother, John B. Guthrie Jr., and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Novak [Priscilla Guthrie] of Evanston. Mr. Guthrie and his bride will live in Elizabeth, N. J.

Miss Elizabeth Patterson, daughter of Mrs. Mary Patterson of Long Beach, Cal., and Victor Petertil, son of Mrs. Mary Petertil of Berwyn, will be married today in the Thorndike Hilton chapel, with a wedding breakfast following at the Windermere East hotel. Miss Patterson is an alumna of the University of Oklahoma, and Mr. Petertil attended the Art institute of Chicago. After a wedding trip thru the Carolinas they will live in Berwyn.

Women in War Work

—By India Moffett—

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Chicago PTA members have been called on by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator of the Chicago metropolitan area for civilian defense, to help register civilians for the first war ration books. Letters were sent yesterday to Mrs. F. Russell Lyon, president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers and Commander Arthur E. Canty of the Cook county chapter of the American Legion, requesting the coöperation of their members. Members of the American Legion auxiliary also will be called on, Mr. Mulcahy said.

The registration, to be conducted May 4 thru May 7 in the public elementary schools, will require between 26,000 and 28,000 registrars, the administrator estimated. Altho the request for volunteers from the PTA and the Legion was limited to Chicago, other communities in the Chicago metropolitan area may follow the same procedure, if the school authorities in charge of the registration need help. About 4,230,000 persons must be registered in the metropolitan area, with 3,398,808 [according to the 1940 census] in Chicago alone.

In his letter to Mrs. Lyon, Mr. Mulcahy summarized the federal procedure as follows:

"The federal regulations prescribe that the registration must be held in public elementary schools. The dates set are May 4, 5, 6, and 7. The task involves registering approximately 3,500,000 persons. The school principal is designated as the school site administrator. He has the responsibility of supervising the registration in his school, the issuance of war ration books and the selection of the registrars [his assistants]. The registration in Chicago will be on a ward basis. The applicant will apply to the school nearest his home in the ward in which he lives to register and obtain his first war ration book.

"The principal will use all of his teachers as registrars, but they will not be sufficient to handle the job alone. They must be supplemented by other personnel. We earnestly desire that the members of your association volunteer to the school principals as registrars that we may have sufficient personnel to do the job in the designated four days."

Apropos of the sugar rationing problem comes this letter from Mrs. S. F. H., who writes: "How about giving us the details about these personal questions [age, height, weight, etc.] we hear are to be asked us when getting our ration cards? [Many women I know are objecting strenuously to the age and weight questions. May one say 'over 21' as one may when registering for voting?] Thousands of us are wondering to whom these questionnaires are given after we've sworn to them—one's warden, or rather, block captain, or 'just whur'?"

The purpose of the personal questions on age, weight, etc., is to provide a description of the person to whom the ration book has been issued. Of course, just "over 21" in the case of age would be very unsatisfactory. The registration cards will be government property under the control of the Office of Price Administration, Mr. Mulcahy said. When the registration has been completed, he added, each school principal will file the cards and then turn them over to the rationing boards [probably one in each ward] which will be in charge of renewing the cards when they expire.

Miss Tina Brill, head of the ladies' auxiliary of the Gen. S. Solomon post of the Jewish War Veterans, is in charge of a group of young women who will be partners and serve refreshments to 100 soldiers and sailors invited to a patriotic rally and dance tonight in the Max Strauss center, 3715 Wilson avenue. The post, headed by Jack Epstein as commander, is sponsoring the party. Nate Hirsch is handling the arrangements for a program and the refreshments.

A letter received from an English woman, Mrs. C. Hailey-Williams of Sussex, requests that we tell Chicagoans about a scheme that she evolved to help amuse and interest English city children who have been evacuated to the country. This woman found that the three children who are with her "missed the streets of London, their friendly playground. . . . It was a problem to keep them occupied in the evenings from 5 o'clock till bedtime until I gave them stamp albums. That did the trick; they could hardly wait to finish their evening meal to get to the stamps. It opened up the world to them, and it was about time, for the 12 year old didn't know where Scotland was!" The children were 5, 11, and 12.

Now many of the young evacuées in the English countryside have stamp albums, but the supply of stamps is running low, so our correspondent asks that we pass on a request for old stamps.

"All stamps are grist to the poor children of London," she writes, and adds: "I have explained to the customs the purpose for which the stamps are sent, and now have permission to receive stamps in any quantity."

Any one wishing to send stamps to these children should address them to Mrs. C. Hailey-Williams, in care of the British Philatelic association, Imports and Exports Control, Board of Trade, 3 Berners street, London.

Cross of Christ Casts Shadow on Worshipers

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Shadows of the Cross of Christ fell on the thoughts of Chicago's millions yesterday as services of many denominations told the old story of the way of sacrifice which leads to tomorow's Empty Tomb. But the old story came closer as Chicago's sons moved toward more distant battle fronts to make, if need be, their own sacrifice in their country's name.

The tabernacle of the Catholic altar was barren of the blessed sacrament, and the cross and crucifix were draped in the purple of mourning; the living presence of the Savior was not renewed on the Episcopal altar and, without the iconastasis of the Eastern Orthodox church, Christ was buried last night with the reverence of Joseph of Arimathaea, beneath flower petals.

This service of burial was given added realism for at least 10,000 persons of the Greek Orthodox faith as they formed a cortége at Holy Trinity Orthodox church, 1011 South Peoria street, and moved toward the intersection of Halsted and Harrison streets, where a hand-carved likeness of the Savior was interred beneath rose petals.

Protestant and Lutheran pulpits spoke with insight and feeling of the Eternal Sacrifice as the seven last words of Christ on the Cross were recalled. The three hour devotion from noon until 3 p. m. was widely observed. The largest of these under Protestant leadership was at Chicago temple where seven of the city's well-known ministers spoke on the seven words.

At the climax of this service came the meditation on the fourth word,—"Why hast thou forsaken me?"—when the Rev. James L. Horace, of Monumental Baptist church, pointed to millions in the world today who, like Christ, feel forsaken of their Heavenly Father as the battlelines of the nations are extended.

The pastor also had the discriminations against his own people in mind as he urged that the "greatest concern of the church should be to protect the world from a feeling of being forsaken of God. To this end, the church must offer brotherhood and righteous love to all men, and advocate an equal opportunity for the enrichment of life for all people."

Dr. George M. Gibson, of United Church of Hyde Park, speaking on the Sixth word,—"Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit,"—confirmed the Rev. Mr. Horace's plea.

"Life," said Dr. Gibson, "is a ghastly mistake when things are taken out of the hands of God. The personal soul and the world life need a recommitment to the divine, returning to the hands of God the control of all things."

Approximately 1,500 soldiers at Fort Sheridan attended Good Friday services. The Catholic tre oro was conducted by Chaplain James J. Murphy. The Rev. A. C. Bartz, of Waukegan, administered holy communion for Lutheran soldiers at 3 o'clock, and three hour Protestant services were conducted by the Revs. Duncan Littlefield, of Kenilworth; Winfield Johanson, of Highwood, and Lester H. Laubenstein, of Highland Park. The Rev. Dr. Horace G. Smith, of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, administered holy communion.

Rabbi G. George Fox, of South Shore temple, participated in the three hour service at St. John's Methodist church, Jeffrey avenue and 74th street, where eight congregations joined in a three hour service. Dr. Fox spoke on the "Suffering Servant" of the Old Testament.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

The End of a War.

Little Rock, Ark., April 3.—It took 80 years and the discovery of a baptismal certificate to do it, but we think we now may announce officially that the Civil war is ended. It ended in December when this city, still a citadel of vanquished Confederacy, took to its heart its native son, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Now this may not seem a profound anomaly to any one north of the Arkansas river, down whose muddy waters mail boats still chugged on Jan. 26, 1880, when a second son was born to Capt. Arthur MacArthur at the old army post here, but then many people north of the Arkansas river never have heard of reconstruction days, unreconstructed rebels, and Robbers' row.

Robbers' row was never an official name for the winding road along the river whose slopes are dotted now with the gaunt, tottering ruins of once beautiful mansions. Its official name was Lincoln highway, and the fine houses on it were those of the carpetbag rulers of Arkansas after the Civil war, but few ever spoke of it other than as Robbers' row. The name still lingers, even tho it finally became Robinson road in tribute to the late Arkansas senator [Joe T.], who ran for Vice President on Al Smith's ticket, thereby tossing the Bible belt—firm stand of Methodism, the Four Square Gospel, and the Baptists—into a welter of agonized uncertainty.

We pass this on just to point out that as recently as a year ago the old wives and old sages, those whose memories were long and whose childhoods were steeped in the sorrow of deprivation and defeat, still spoke of it as Robbers' row. And they would say to the conductor of this column on her visits home: "Your grandfather would turn in his grave at you. How can you work in the north with those Yankees . . . etc., etc. . . ." They did not say damYankee. Let that misapprehension now be officially corrected. Also, in passing, they wore shoes, when needed, and before they were 21. But lean childhoods make long and unrelenting memories.

Little Rock, a gallant stronghold of the confederacy, fell to Gen. Frederick Steele in 1863, and its army post and arsenal became a Union garrison. Here were the troops who maintained order during the succeeding troublous and bitter years. Here as guests came Sheridan, Hancock, Sherman, and, when President, Grant.

Do not for one moment think that the city proper [population then 21,000] received them with love and pride. To Little Rock they were conquerors with iron heels, and the heart extended to them was a heart of cold iron and scorn. Even the advent of President Grant was received with drawn blinds, and those who peeped thru the heavy magnolias and wisteria did so only to scoff. Not long ago our mother mentioned to an elderly unreconstructed rebel that as a child she had seen Grant's funeral in New York. "You looked?" the rebel exclaimed in horror.

And not so long ago that any one has forgotten it, the Daughters of the Confederacy prepared a marker for a row of clay trenches on the outskirts of the city where the Confederates' last brave stand was to be extolled. The ceremony was ready to start, the ladies were gathered on the hillocks, the flags and speeches were in hand. And one lady pointed out gently that these sad, overgrown cuts into the earth had never been Confederate trenches. They were the Union lines. The marker was abandoned.

Well, Capt. Arthur MacArthur and his wife and their little boys, Malcolm and Douglas, moved on when Douglas was 11 months old, and now the magnolias are again a glossy green, soon to be in flower, and the wisteria hangs in heavy fragrant buds, and the old arsenal, transformed into a city park in 1893, is thronged with visitors. All go to stare at a long, white brick building with an octagonal central tower and two tiers of long front verandas, the veranda railings painted a dull blue-gray. "There," people say, "is where he was born." And the name of the park now is MacArthur park.

But no one mentions the fact that he was the son of a reconstruction captain.

There is only one disturbing note. John Gould Fletcher, the poet, who after years of brooding in Europe came home to the solitude of a mountain now studded with jonquils, says flatly that MacArthur was not born in the arsenal at all. He was born in a house down near the post. Not many people yet know of the poet's heretical contention, and those who do simply say, with gentle tolerance: "O, John Gould's just trying to be different, as usual."

Pianist, 17, Prepares for Her Part Tonight with Civic Orchestra

She is to play the brilliant B flat minor concerto of Tschaikowsky. Miss Meiszner's last loop appearance was in 1939 when as a child of 14 she played a recital in Kimball hall. Tonight's concert will be the last of the season for the Civic orchestra.

Easter Shopping Crowds Swarm Chicago Stores

Crowds intent on finishing their Easter shopping formed outside Chicago department stores as early as 8 a. m. yesterday. By noon executives in several stores found it necessary to use the freight elevators in reaching their offices, crowds were so heavy.

Good Friday, with schools, banks, and many commodity and security markets closed, traditionally is a banner day for stores thruout the country. In Chicago it usually is exceeded only by the Christmas rush and the Saturday before Palm Sunday.

Because of consumer fear of a shortage of goods, increased employment due to the war effort, and a feeling that morale should be kept up by making this Easter unusually gay, yesterday's total business was expected to be well above that of previous years.

True spring weather this week has put each day's business ahead of that of last year, when the weather was cold and damp. If today proves bright and warm merchandise managers said business might equal yesterday's.

Largest volume of business yesterday was done in apparel departments, with an emphasis on accessories such as shoes, purses, hats, gloves, and jewelry. Coats, suits, and dresses, bases for Easter costumes, reached a peak last Saturday and earlier this week.

Among the explanations for this reduction in basic apparel sales is the need for early purchase of these garments so that they may be altered in time for Easter. Another explanation has its roots in the wartime curtailment of deliveries which made early shopping doubly necessary this year.

Accessories are small and light in weight so that they may be carried easily. They usually represent an investment of just a fraction of the cost of the rest of an Easter costume and thus do not require long, careful thought in making a choice.

An exception in apparel sales was children's clothing. Children's departments in stores thruout the city were crowded all day with mothers and youngsters taking advantage of the school holiday.

Sales of Easter gifts exceeded last year's mark. Easter bunnies, baskets, and toys; books, candy, and cookies were the most popular gift items. Most of the latter will be sent to boys in the services.

House furnishings and accessories departments have been almost deserted all week. Sections in which rubber goods are sold were comparatively quiet. Store buyers feel that the retail rubber market now has reached its saturation point and that it will be some time before another rush for rubber takes place.

Good Morning!

The World Playhouse tripped over the Darrieux opus, but is back in its stride again with another fine Russian film. . . .

"Heroes of the Sea" shows the modern soviet navy in imaginary action. . . . Action that is a symphony of coördinated effort. . . . Surging action—with deep pools of quietness.

The story, built around a supposititious invasion of Russian waters by a wily and unscrupulous foe, is full of dramatic incidents that etch deeply into the memory. . . . I'm thinking at the moment of an enemy warship, silent, like a cat at a mouse-hole, atop the ocean, her officers listening, listening! . . . Of the submarine beneath her—still as a mouse—her crew gasping for breath—but undaunted as they doggedly refuse to turn on the machinery which, while providing them with oxygen, would have betrayed their location. . . . Of the smiling submarine leader as he heartens his men with the story of the "devil I jumped on and rode ashore . . ." . . . And finally—of a coup which spells victory for the invaded and death to the invaders. . . .

The war story proper is variously faceted. It has romance—and a father and son angle that's touching. . . .

Mass performance is excellent, and there are many brilliant individual characterizations. . . .

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., April 3.—A starlet took 100 fotos of herself, autographed, and sent them to a local USO headquarters, handed them out to service men—and asked them to write the studio and tell it what they thought of her! . . . On the other hand, Ann Sheridan, back from a two week tour of army camps, posed for 3,000 stills, mostly for soldiers, during the jaunt. That's more stills than a star gets in a year's work in Hollywood.

Ann Sheridan.

On Ginger Rogers' "The Major and the Minor" set yesterday Director Billy Wilder was getting Wilder and Wilder. Some guy on the stage next door was playing the piano just at the wrong time. He spoiled a couple of takes and Wilder dispatched a messenger next door to tell the ivory pounder to lay off when the red light was on.

The messenger came back and reported that he had bawled out the little fellow at the piano and the little fellow had said he was sorry and would watch it hereafter.

Wilder started the camera rolling and again the pianist spoiled a take. This time Billy himself stormed next door—and came back very quickly and very quietly. He reported that the pianist was Irving Berlin, and Irving was playing some tunes for Buddy De Sylva, another old Tin Pan alleyite who happens to be running the studio.

The tire situation is beginning to shift transportation methods. Robert Young is riding to work on a motorcycle these days, and Red Skelton turns up in a motor scooter.

I wish Sherman Billingsley and the Stork club set could have a look at Kay Aldridge now. This model, this magazine cover girl, this mannequin for mail order catalogs even, is now shinnying all over Ventura county in khaki shorts and a blouse, being Nyoka, the Jungle Girl, in a Republic serial called "The Perils of Nyoka."

Her beautiful legs are scratched and black and blue—and Kay, the four color still man's delight, is becoming the delight of a serial cinematographer who has to make a 30 reel movie in seven weeks. Already she has laid out two stunt men, punching one and whipping another with a crop because she is so enthusiastic she forgets to pull punches. She won't wear out under a dawn-to-dusk routine on location, and New York just wouldn't know her today. But it would fight for an introduction.

A neat and convenient gadget for the cook is a baster. Made of a metal tube with a rubber bulbous top, you fill it with liquid and then expel the liquid by squeezing the bulb. Or, if you want to skim fat from soup it can be sucked up into the tube. You can skim cream from the milk bottle this way, too. This baster doubles as a watering device for potted plants. It is priced under 50 cents.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

To answer a few of your questions about the Mary Meade Recipe contest:

Yes, men may enter, and so may children who like to cook. Living out of the state won't prevent you from entering, either. No, the recipe needn't always be your own invention. A family hand-me-down or some other interesting one may be prize-worthy. But the recipe will stand a better chance of winning if it isn't one that you could find in any cook-book. Your own variations of tried-and-true recipes are especially welcomed.

About out-of-season recipes: Please hold them until the proper time of year rolls around. Recipes using foods that are out of season, and expensive now, aren't as likely to win a prize as those using ingredients now readily available. If you've sent in such a recipe don't hesitate to submit it again at a more appropriate date.

It takes about a month from the time your recipe arrives to the time it can be checked, tested, and printed.

Now for some honorable mentions. Mrs. Charles B. Page of Racine, Wis., makes good use of the cooking water from vegetables. She combines one cup of the water left from cooking green vegetables with one quart of the water in which white potatoes were boiled, ½ cup diced potato, a couple of onions, and carrots. She thickens this soup with a cup of heavy white sauce. More milk may be added for extra flavor, she points out.

For her clever way of using green celery leaves, Mrs. F. R. Jackson of South Bend, Ind., gets an honorable mention. She cooks diced carrots as usual and, when the carrots are almost tender, adds the chopped celery leaves, about ½ cup leaves to 2 cups diced carrots. Season with salt and melted butter and serve.

Cooked liver presents something of a leftover problem to most women, but not to Mrs. Fred Hull of Muncie, Ind. She cuts the liver in fine slivers, adds it to a thin white sauce, and serves it on toast. Mushrooms also may be added, writes Mrs. Hull.

This currant-orange sauce for left-over lamb brings an honorable mention to Mrs. K. Hippard, 4169 South Lake Park avenue, Chicago:

Lamb in Currant-Orange Sauce.

2 teaspoons cornstarch
½ cup lamb gravy
½ cup currant jelly
½ cup orange juice
½ cup minced mint leaves
8 slices cold roast lamb.

Mix cornstarch with gravy. Add jelly, orange juice, and mint leaves. Cook until slightly thickened, stirring to prevent lumping. Add lamb and cook until heated thru.

If you're entertaining the army or the navy you'll be interested in the "Bomber Salad" originated by Mrs. Paul R. Norris of Grinnell, Ia. It was so named by her plane-enthusiastic 8 year old son.

BOMBER SALAD.

To make each salad you'll need two slices of pineapple, seven dates, a strip of celery about 2 inches long, mayonnaise, salad greens, and two small candy stars in red or blue. Six of the dates are arranged side by side down the center of the plate to make the fuselage of the plane, with a half date at either end to give a tapered effect. Wings are the two slices of pineapple, trimmed square. The trimmings make the fan-shaped tail and the strip of celery is the propeller. Fill the centers of the pineapple slices with mayonnaise and top with the candy stars.

Give Children Freedom of Their House

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Today I want to talk about giving boys and girls the freedom of the house, and about that other very warm and vital factor in any human relationship, enjoying being with your adolescent sons and daughters and letting them know that you enjoy them.

I really think one of the biggest things in dealing with boys and girls in their teens is for them to know that you enjoy having them around, that you are not irritated by their noise, their nonsense, their friends, and the relative chaos created by all their play and sociability.

There are a great many parents who, pretty much thru their children's lives, have the inner conviction that the home belongs to the adults, and that the children must not infringe too much upon their quiet or convenience. I do think quite often that mothers and fathers don't realize that they have gotten into this attitude; but certainly I do hear many complaints, sometimes from the children themselves and sometimes from the mother about the father, that home is not an easy, warm, friendly and hospitable place.

At times I think the underlying reason for success or failure with adolescent children lies in the simple fact of whether you really enjoy your children or not.

If you enjoy your children and find them of increasing interest to you and want them to get all the fun possible at home, you are not going to have so very many problems, certainly not serious ones. And you are not going to find your boys and girls wanting to spend all their time anywhere but in their own houses.

As one mother wrote, "Here's for more freedom of the house. I'm sure if parents would only loosen up in this respect, they'd get so they'd enjoy it themselves." I am sure they would.

Thru the Looking Glass

Some Easter suggestions for that last minute "I must get a gift" panic:

1. Four slim sachets strung on a wide ribbon. They're beautifully scented in any of several lovely and individual fragrances. Each "finger" has a wide loop at the top to hang it over a dresshanger. They may be scattered in lingerie, handkerchief and glove boxes and will furnish a heavenly scent which will cling to everything you possess. The colors are delicate blue and soft peach and the item is modestly priced.

2. A perfume flower caddy. A steady and prettily decked box that contains four gay spring fragrances: Elusive mignonette, bright petunia, lush honeysuckle and heavenly white lilac. Truly a collection of perfumes to delight the feminine heart that glories in the possession of an assortment of scents. Each flacon is securely capped and the proper size to be carried in the purse.

3. Skin perfumes that are really lasting. These are designed to release their true fragrances after they are applied to the skin. They're fun to use because they take on a little different character, varying with the wearer, each person imparting a little different note to the perfume as it is applied to the skin. It is to be used not so lavishly as cologne or toilet water nor so sparingly as an essence. The fragrances are all beautiful flower translations and we're especially fond of one called tropical white freesia.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Those Funny Bosses.

Things a secretary will never understand:

An important customer drops in the office and the boss greets him informally:

"HelLO, Bill! H'ya, old boy? When did you get in town? How's the missus? No kiddin'. How many does that make? Five, you say! Well, I call that a real nice family. Say, how long are you goin' to be here? Whadda you doin' tonight?"

Two weeks later Bill crashes thru with an order and the boss, as tho donning tails and white tie, in the manner of a visiting ambassador, writes stiffly:

"Yours of the 10th received. In reply, wish to state that your order, which we now gratefully acknowledge, will be filled as soon as regular shipments are resumed. Pending shipment, we solicit your indulgence for possible delays owing to the national emergency. If we can be of further assistance please call upon us, as we are ever at your service. Thanking you for past favors, I beg to remain. . . ."

Railroad Words.

Words used in the railroad business:

Right of way. The strip of land upon which the railroad tracks, signals, telegraph lines, etc., are built.

Tie treatment. It sounds like a spring ensemble, but it means preservatives such as creosote, used to prevent the ties decaying.

Tangent. Not something you get off on, but a length of track, like the long tangent on the Denver and Rio Grand Western.

Common carrier. Not a head cold in the office, but anything which offers transportation for the general public.

"Nellie Bly," "Ann Rutledge," "Pocahontas." Three passenger trains named for women.

Wages of Nursing.

A teacher, whose mother is a nurse, writes that a friendly rivalry exists between them concerning the earnings of the two professions. She asks for further figures on nurses' incomes.

A study of earnings in one year, made by the American Nurses' association, brings out this information:

The typical private duty nurse, working only part of the year, earned—in cash—$945. [Value of maintenance not included.]

The private duty nurse who worked the entire year earned in cash—$1,260. [Maintenance not included.]

Staff nurses in hospitals reported $1,325 average yearly income. [Salary, $825; maintenance, $500.]

Directors of nursing service reported the equivalent of $2,400 [salary plus maintenance]; assistant directors, $1,960.

Supervisors earned the equivalent of $1,665.

Head nurses earned the equivalent of $1,505.

They Also Serve.

It was a career girl dinner. The brisk, businesslike atmosphere was suddenly disrupted. Was Miss Daniels present? Camp Custer on the wire. Soft, sympathetic laughter rippled the length of the tables as she left to answer the long distance call.

War is woman's business, too. How well the business girl knows it. When we pray, on Easter Sunday, for the men who will win the war, why not pray for the girls who stand bravely back of those men.

Here Are Some Tips for Late Easter Shoppers

BY REA SEEGER.

Easter costume accessories for the Saturday shopper include such tempting trifles as the newest lisle hosiery with side clox embroidered in color. The hosiery shade itself is a pleasing and flattering neutral, a warm beige that goes with everything. The decorative clox are most effective in scarlet, navy blue, brown, and green. These are the perfect stockings to wear with high colored calf and kid skin footgear teamed with matching bags.

The newest suit blouses are superflattering affairs in transparent white sheers, such as crisp organdy, nainsook, and fine lawn. Some tailored models feature trickily tucked bosoms; others have fine tucked frills; others are of fine embroidery and still others have lace insertions. The handmade nainsook blouses are exquisite, from the dainty designs along the collar turnover lapels to the cuffs. Both short and long sleeved models are plentiful and the price marks are far from unreasonable for all the handwork and fine lace, some so dainty they might well have been copied from baby's christening robes.

If you want something super in spring jewelry, sprays, small lapel pins, and smaller pins to accent the vee throatline of your best suits and blouses see the fragilely effective stuff made of colored glass. Each piece looks like a spring song in spun sugar. The colors are delectable, chartreuse green, sapphire blue, amethyst, coral pink. Some designs have all these colors, some only two or three tints or shades. Tiny flowerets, long stems, fronds, and leaves are skilfully wired in most graceful combinations to achieve the flowerlike and realistic results. This glass jewelry is the very breath of spring. It's as new as the first leaves and spring flowers and just as lovely.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

Some elimination-and-throw-in plays require extreme farsightedness and delicate preparation. If the average declarer "muffs" such opportunities, he is not to be censured. At times, however, the situation develops so gradually and so normally that the end position fairly begs for a throw-in treatment. For example, today's hand.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ Q J 6
♦ K 9

WEST
♠ J 5
♥ 10 7 3 2
♦ J 8 7 6 2
♣ 8 5

EAST

♥ K 9 5
♦ A Q 4 3

SOUTH
♠ A Q 9 7 2
♥ A 8 4
♦ 10 5
♣ K 7 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the six of diamonds. Declarer put up dummy's king, having nothing to gain by ducking, and East won with the ace. The diamond queen then was cashed, after which East exited with a low heart. Declarer ducked and dummy's jack won. Two rounds of spades now settled the trump situation and, with the thought that he would have to create a place for the discard of his own losing heart, declarer laid down the club king and then finessed to dummy's jack. East won and promptly returned the club ten. Now there was no way for declarer to get rid of his losing heart and he finally ended up by conceding one heart, one club, and two diamonds.

At the third trick, after dummy won East's heart return and after the trumps then fell in two leads, declarer should have recognized that a very simple play would insure his contract. The heart king had been located by the success of the finesse. How simple it should have been, therefore, to cash the heart ace and throw East back on lead with the heart king. Whatever return East chose to make would be bound to present declarer with his contract. A heart or diamond return would permit a club discard from declarer's hand while dummy ruffed; a club return would be directly up to dummy's tenace.

SYNOPSIS.

Because Dave Wallace asked Ed Seegrist, Chevron cattle hand, about the death of Tip Macy, Ed directed Dave to waterless tanks in the desert where Dave almost perished before a stage picked him up and took him into Vermillion. Beth Hilliard, who owns two-thirds interest in the Chevron Cattle company, is on the same stage, returning home after a long absence, only to learn from her partner, Jess Gove, that the hard winter killed most of their cattle and that she is now penniless. On borrowed money, Jess offers to buy her share of Chevron. Dave beats Ed up when he gets to Vermillion and is ordered out of town by Sheriff Sam Kinsley. Dave goes to Hilliard, the cattle company town, hoping to question Martha Macy, Tip's widow, but before he talks to her he meets Ed in Con Buckley's saloon and beats him up again. Buckley and old Ives, squawman trapper, seem to be the only two persons, besides Dave, who are suspicious of Jess. Ives follows Dave from the saloon and insists Dave talk to Martha about Tip's death. Martha has been taken to Chevron in the meantime and Dave goes there but gets into a shooting scrape with Arnie Chance, foreman, and Ed Seegrist. They both claim Tip died in a blizzard. Jess admits to Dave and Beth that Tip was murdered, but says it was by cattle thieves at the Boundary Line camp and that a note found on his body proved that Tip was in with the thieves. Jess claims he hushed it up to save Martha humiliation. He refuses to let Dave talk to Martha. Old Ives promises to arrange a meeting with Dave and Martha if Dave will outbid Jess for Beth's interest in Chevron. Ives give Dave money he has borrowed from Buckley. Dave learns from Martha that Tip started out for Seco camp the day he was murdered instead of the Boundary Line. When Dave arrives with his offer to buy Beth's property he is arrested for shooting Ed Seegrist's horse from under him and seriously injuring Ed. Altho Tom Hyam knows Arnie and Jess framed Dave, he testifies falsely and blackmails Jess. Beth visits Dave in jail and accepts his offer for her property. A gun is sneaked thru Dave's cell window with a message that Ed has died. Dave escapes and doesn't know that Arnie and Jess have framed him with the message and gun. Arnie tries to torture Martha into telling him what she has told Dave, but Pete Framm, Chevron hand, comes upon them and saves Martha.

INSTALMENT XXX.

FRAMED MURDER.

Chance paused and looked at Hyam questioningly.

"Wallace broke out of jail this morning," Hyam said.

Chance frowned and was quiet a moment, and then said, "It ought to interest you some, too."

"It does," Hyam admitted. "He'll come to see me sooner or later. Point is, he might have money with him to change my story of who I saw by the second ford. And that story, as Gove damn well knows, is for sale." He held out his palm and tapped it with his finger. "Don't forget this. It itches almost all the time."

"Tell Gove," Chance said, and went out.

He crossed the street, and, halfway across it, looked back at the hotel. He saw Hyam moving around in the lobby. Now he looked up and down the street, which he saw was empty, and then stepped quietly into the deep shadow made by the old warehouse next to the Olympus.

He waited there until he saw Hyam leave the hotel, heading downstreet for the feed stable. And still he waited, not smoking, keeping an eye on the street. In a few minutes Hyam rode by him, crossed the timber bridge and headed up the sloping wagon road.

Chance gave him a few minutes, and then crossed the street swiftly toward the hotel, peering up and down the street as he moved.

Untying the reins of his horse, he led him down to the edge of the stream and into it, and tied him to one of the bridge timbers.

Now he came back to the hotel steps. He paused in their shadow until a man crossed from Rollins' store to the Olympus saloon. Then swiftly, he mounted the steps and tip-toed into the lobby and listened.

Somebody out in the kitchen was making a racket with the pans, but that was all he could hear.

Heading straight for the stairs, he climbed them noiselessly and paused at the head of the stairwell. Down the corridor, a lamp in a wall bracket was burning dimly, its wick turned down.

Beyond it was the shadow, and it was for this Chance headed. Coiled up on the floor by the window was a length of knotted rope fastened to a heavy, long-shanked hook bolted into the window frame. This was the hotel's fire escape. He moved the loop of the rope over the hook once or twice, making certain it worked freely.

Then, moving over, he softly hoisted the window. The chatter of the Little Dun, below him and only a few yards off, drifted up to him.

Now he turned back down the hall and at Ed Seegrist's door, he paused and listened again. He listened for a noise downstairs, or within the room, and he could hear neither.

He reached for the doorknob now, and paused, as if musing. Then, slowly, his right hand went to his holster and lifted his gun and cocked it noiselessly.

Now he turned the doorknob gently, gently opened the door.

Ed Seegrist was sleeping, his lamp turned low.

Chance opened the door wide, raised his gun, took careful sight and fired. The shot bellowed in the stillness.

Afterwards, he closed the door gently, moved noiselessly to the corridor window, threw the rope out, put a log over the sill and slid down it. He could hear some one running thru the lobby below.

Once on the ground, he gave the rope plenty of slack, then flipped it smartly. Nothing happened. He did it again, and this time the rope came off its hook, slithered over the sill above and fell to the ground. Whoever was climbing the stairs now wouldn't see it.

He let it lie there, and stepped down the bank into the stream. Now he was below the level of the ground on which the hotel was standing, and he waded the stream down to his horse tied to the bridge.

While he was climbing into the saddle under the bridge, a man started to yell from the hotel porch.

Chance paid him no attention. He rode on under the bridge, keeping to the stream, and was presently in the dark shadows in the rear of the store buildings.

He rode leisurely past them, the clatter of the stream hiding the sound of his horse's wading.

When he was thru town, he put his horse up the bank, climbed the grade and was lost in the darkness of the night.

* *

The yelling of the cook from the porch of the hotel brought a couple of men to the door of the Olympus. When they heard his message that a man was shot, they shouted the news back into the barroom, and it emptied immediately.

Con Buckley gave his bartender instructions to stay on the job, and then waddled out into the night. There was no use hurrying; he could carry his mountain of flesh only so fast, he thought wryly. Halfway across the road, he looked at Rollins' store and stopped cold. On the steps was old Ives, a gunnysack of groceries over his shoulder, peering downstreet.

Con called to him and Ives put the sack down and came out into the street.

"When did you get in?" Con asked.

"Ten minutes ago. I was comin' over."

"Wallace broke out this morning."

Ives just stared at him, disbelief in his face. Then he said: "That's what all the racket's about?"

"Somebody's shot over at the hotel."

Ives fell in with him and they went over to the hotel. Upstairs, there was the tramping of many feet, and Con labored savagely to make the stairs. A dozen men were crowded into one room, and Con shoved his way thru to the inside of the circle.

He saw Seegrist lying in bed, the fear finally gone from his face. His chest was wet with blood, which had flowed down onto the covers and soaked them.

He heard Ives breathing slowly beside him.

"Shot in his sleep," a man said grimly.

"Where's Hyam?"

A third man said bitterly, "Why look for Hyam? Wallace got to Seegrist, all right."

These men looked at each other and nodded, their faces grim and hard with disgust.

"Somebody better ride for Kinsley," one of them said.

"He's on his way already with Miss Hilliard."

Con, a look of distaste turning up the corners of his small mouth, turned away from the sight and waddled down the stairs. Behind him, he could hear the murmur of discussion mounting, and it was all about the same thing. They were organizing a posse to hunt for Wallace, and were debating whether or not to wait for Kinsley.

Out on the porch, Con paused for breath. A pair of punchers, saner than the others, were talking in low tones at the side of the hotel below the window, discussing the killer's escape. From upstairs a man was calling to them, and they were answering.

Ives was suddenly at his side. Con sighed and went down the steps and Ives fell in beside him.

Con said presently, in a bitter, cynical voice, "That's the neatest frame-up I ever saw carpentered."

Ives shook his head. "We'll see how tough he is, now."

"Nobody's that tough." Con paused. "Who did it, Ives?"

Ives said sourly, "Gove's the only man who wants Wallace out of the country. I can't think of a better way to run him out."

Con looked sharply at him. "If he's run out, then Gove gets Chevron."

"It won't work," Ives said flatly. He left Con without another word and crossed to Rollins' store and picked up the gunnysack of groceries.

As he straightened up, he was aware that there was a man standing beyond the light that came out of the door, watching him.

TWO POLICEMEN WOUNDED, BANDIT SLAIN IN BATTLE

Another Robber Captured in Tavern Holdup.

Two policemen were wounded in a gun battle with two robbers yesterday, but they killed one of the bandits and captured the other.

The slain man was Ignatius Strazdas, alias Rukis, 33 years old. He was released from Joliet prison last July after serving 14 years for murder. His mother, Elizabeth, runs a tavern at 732 West 18th street. The captured robber is John Mikoola, 33, of 1702 South Loomis street.

The wounded policemen are Walter Noonan of the Morgan Park station and John E. Fogarty of the detective bureau stolen auto detail. They are brothers-in-law. It was said both would recover.

Open Fire in Tavern.

The policemen, off duty and in civilian clothes, were seated in a tavern at 7651 South Racine avenue when the robbers entered. Each held a handkerchief over his face and each had a pistol.

Noonan and Fogarty drew their revolvers, wheeled in their chairs, and started firing. The robbers also opened fire and a bullet hit Fogarty in the left leg. As Strazdas ran out of the tavern the wounded policeman followed. He chased Strazdas for half a block, finally dropping him with a bullet thru his head. Then Fogarty also fell, and discovered he had a second bullet wound in his right foot.

Hides Behind Radiator.

Meanwhile, Mikoola had taken refuge behind a radiator in the tavern, and was exchanging shots with Policeman Noonan. A bullet pierced the policeman's abdomen, but he advanced on the gunman, seized the robber's gun, and crashed his own pistol over Mikoola's head.

Mikoola fell to the floor, begging the policeman not to shoot again. The bartender, Paul McGowan, 30, helped hold the prisoner until more policemen arrived.

Both wounded policemen were taken to St. George's hospital. Physicians said the bullet which struck Noonan had missed vital areas. He was given a transfusion of blood donated by his brother, Joseph Noonan.

Sentenced for Holdup Murder.

Police identified the body of Strazdas by a draft card in his pocket. His fingerprint records showed that in 1927, when he was 17 years old, Strazdas was sentenced with two others to serve 25 years in prison for the murder of Edward Keefer, a cigar store owner, in a robbery.

Police said Mikoola, the captured robber, was released from the Bridewell recently after serving a year for robbery.

Both the wounded policemen have excellent records on the force. Noonan, a member of the department since 1933, has received two creditable mentions, and a third time was awarded extra compensation for meritorious service. Fogarty has been on the force since 1929 and has received two creditable mentions.

WIFE OF FORMER BUND LEADER IN CHICAGO SEIZED

Mrs. Marie Willumeit, wife of Dr. Otto Willumeit, head of the dissolved German-American bund in Chicago, is being held in the federal detention home at 4800 Ellis avenue for investigation as a suspected dangerous enemy alien, it was learned yesterday.

She was seized Thursday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in her home at 4342 Sheridan road. Dr. Willumeit was said to have been present at the time of her arrest.

Three other enemy aliens—two men and a woman—also were seized Thursday, but their identities were not disclosed. This raised the total of alien seizures in Chicago to 102—92 Germans, 7 Japanese, and 3 Italians.

Dr. Willumeit is a naturalized citizen. Government investigators said that under present laws naturalized citizens are not subject to arrest as enemy aliens.

Dr. Willumeit became head of the Chicago bund in 1938 on orders of Fritz Kuhn, New York, national bund chief, who is now in Sing Sing prison for forgery and larceny. Willumeit organized and headed meetings and openly propagandized the Nazis and attacked Great Britain and other foes of Hitler.

FARMER, 75, HELD IN MYSTERIOUS SLAYING OF WIFE

Belleville, Ill., April 3 [Special].—Henry Wedemeyer, 75 year old farmer, was questioned by authorities today in connection with the slaying of his wife, Allie, 62, last night in their farm home near here.

Wedemeyer said he found her dead in her room, her head gashed several times, after he had been awakened by an intruder trying to break into his bedroom. He said he fired a shotgun charge thru the door and heard two men run away. He believed an attempt had been made to rob him, altho nothing in the house was disturbed.

Coroner C. C. Kane expressed the opinion that Mrs. Wedemeyer had died several hours before the time her husband reported the attack. The couple had been married seven years, and in the last three years had been involved in three divorce suits against each other.

DRIVES ROBBERS OFF WITH SHOUT AND SAVES $2,000

Jack De Lisle, owner of a tavern at Five Points on Green Bay road west of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, saved $2,000 yesterday by shouting loudly: "Step on the button!"

De Lisle was supplying the wants of eight patrons when two men entered his place. One went to a washroom and the other bought a cigar. Then both newcomers drew revolvers and took De Lisle to the kitchen.

When entering the kitchen De Lisle noticed his bartender, Robert Corbin, coming in the front door. He shouted and the robbers fled to an automobile in which two men were waiting. Bernard Kilger, 918 Pacific avenue, Waukegan, a patron, noted the license number of the car, which bore stolen Wisconsin plates.

De Lisle said he had more than $2,000 on hand ready to cash pay checks of Great Lakes construction workers.

QUIZ UNIONISTS, ONE AN EX-FELON, ABOUT SLUGGING

Police Press Inquiry Into Attack on Rebel.

The president and ex-convict business agent of the roofers' union, local 11, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Sergt. George Barnes of the police labor detail for questioning about the slugging Friday night of Lawrence Belles, 41 years old, leader of a reform movement in the union.

Belles, who last week carried his fight to the floor of the union's international convention in Philadelphia, Pa., was called to the door of his apartment at 553 Oakdale avenue by two men in overalls. One of them asked: "Larry, is there anything we can do for you?"

The other man then clubbed Belles and he still was in Alexian Brothers' hospital yesterday.

Record of 4 Prison Terms.

Those arrested are Edward Washlow, 40, of 3222 Madison street, president of the local, and Luke Ward, 56, of 2147 Madison, business agent. Ward, according to police records, has served four penitentiary terms for robbery and assault.

Police records show that Ward was sentenced in 1904 to serve three months in the Cook county jail for robbery. In 1913 he was sentenced to serve a year at Joliet for robbery and was sent there again for robbery in 1916, being paroled in 1919. In 1935 he was sentenced to Leavenworth on a narcotics charge. He was paroled in 1936.

Both Ward and Washlow denied knowledge of the assault upon Belles. They were locked in cells at the detective bureau and will be kept there while the investigation proceeds, said Sergt. Barnes.

Attorney Joseph M. Jacobs, speaking for the local's officers, asserted that whatever beating occurred had no connection with union affairs. Jacobs said he will seek a writ of habeus corpus for Washlow and Ward this morning before Chief Justice Robert J. Dunne in the Criminal court.

Order Local Taken Over.

A suit by Belles and 125 other rebelling members of local 11 demanding an accounting of union funds and an election of officers under the supervision of the Superior court is pending.

Harry I. Kronenberg, the group's attorney, said that Belles' fight in the convention of the United Slate, Tile, and Composition Roofers, Damp and Waterproof Workers' association [AFL] in Philadelphia last week was followed by the declination of George Jones, then president of the national union, to stand for reelection. Charles Aquadro was elected president.

The convention authorized Aquadro to send an international vice president to take charge of the affairs of local 11, Kronenberg said, and that official is expected to arrive next week. Kronenberg said that he would ask Judge John C. Lewe to enjoin the officers of local 11 against causing any violence against the rebelling members.

WPA Project Boss and Aid Indicted in Theft of Solder

Aurel W. Moyer, 3136 North Kenneth avenue, a WPA project supervisor, and Harry J. Knox, 3523 McLean street, his assistant, were indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on charges of stealing 4,000 pounds of solder worth approximately $1,000. The two were assigned to a water pipe extension project. David H. Rothstein, 5200 Sheridan road, and Paul Schleifer, 2505 Kimball avenue, dealers in used building materials, were indicted on charges of receiving the stolen property.

MOTHER OF GIRL FOUND SLAIN DIES OF BULLET WOUND

New Sharon, Me., April 3 [Special].—The bullet pierced body of Mrs. Mary N. Campbell, 58 years old, mother of Florence Buzzell, 20, who was shot to death last June, was found today in a barn on her farm. Authorities said there was a bullet wound in her temple and that a .22 caliber pistol lay at her feet.

Mrs. Campbell, twice divorced, had come to the farm only yesterday from spending the winter with her son, Bernard, at Industry. The farm is about six miles from the former home of another son, John, behind which the body of Florence, a pretty vivacious blonde, was found.

Fred G. Wheeler, wealthy Farmington cattle dealer—married and the father of several grown daughters—was acquitted last Dec. 3 of a charge of murdering Florence, whose business school education he had helped finance. Mrs. Campbell was a state witness at the spectacular trial in which Wheeler was accused of having had adulterous relations with the girl. The defense contended she committed suicide.

JAIL 5 EX-PUPILS IN $10,000 VANDAL RAID ON SCHOOL

Five young men, former pupils at the Edwards elementary school, 4815 South Karlov avenue, were being held last night by Brighton Park police who said they admitted being the vandals who did $10,000 damage to the school March 31. They were arrested earlier in the day.

The five are Leonard Kozak, 18 years old, 4739 South Keeler avenue; Joseph Fillipek, 17, of 4849 Komensky avenue; Howard Brinker, 15, of 4955 South Kedvale avenue; Stanley Ewasiuk, 16, of 4822 South Kildare avenue, and Lawrence Griffin, 17, of 5141 South Tripp avenue.

The boys told police they broke into the school to roller skate on the tiles of the first floor. They said they swung on the stage draperies in the auditorium, then realized they had left fingerprints all over the place and set it afire to burn up their traces.

Asbestos Workers Leave for Navy Jobs in Hawaii

Thirty-six members of the Asbestos Workers' union, local No. 17, left Chicago yesterday for jobs in Hawaii. They volunteered for work there after a request from the navy department. The group is headed by Hugh Mulligan, business agent of the local. William Wilson, union secretary, said none of the men was permitted to take his family.

ORR'S CARTOONS FROM TRIBUNE AID WAR MORALE

Color enlargements of several Carey Orr cartoons which have been reproduced recently on the back page of THE TRIBUNE are being used as posters to inspire workers in the 28 million dollar naval ordnance plant of the Hudson Motor Car company in Detroit, Mich., the company announced yesterday.

"Hudson is carrying on a long range morale program," said R. G. Waldron, personnel director of the Hudson company. "We find that the powerful Orr cartoons drive home vividly and simply the fact that this is a war of men and machines, and that it is going to have to be won on the factory production line. We are posting the Orr cartoons on our plant bulletin boards and they certainly hit the spot. We have asked THE TRIBUNE to supply us with copies of any further cartoons in this inspiring series."

The color enlargements were printed Feb. 26, March 6, and March 10. The titles, respectively, are: "It's on the Order Book"; "The Supreme Test," and "Let's Snap Into It and Get It Over with." All emphasized the rôle of labor in winning the war.

PREP STUDENT, KIEFER SET AAU SWIM RECORDS

Yale Piles Up Margin Toward Team Title.

New Haven, Conn., April 3 (AP).—An 18 year old schoolboy, Alan Ford of Mercersburg [Pa.] academy, who did his first swimming in the Panama canal, broke two records as he captured the 220 yard free style race, a feature of tonight's National AAU championship meet.

The sandy haired youth churned thru the Yale pool in 2:09.3, three-tenths of a second faster than it's ever been done, to beat Howie Johnson of Yale by a margin so close there wasn't any difference in their times.

Yale Takes Team Lead.

Also in the spotlight was the brilliant 300 yard medley by Adolph Kiefer of Chicago, who broke the accepted American record for the event as he became the first champion to repeat.

Yale's squad rolled up a topheavy margin of points in the struggle for its first National AAU team championship by winning two titles.

Kiefer's 3:28.2 cut six-tenths of a second off the accepted American record made by Johnny Higgins of Providence, R. I., in 1936, but was dimmed somewhat by the fact that the Chicago ace has a 3:28.1, which he did some months ago, awaiting official recognition.

Leads Most of Way.

Ford, whose home is in Balboa, Cana. Zone, and who plans to enroll at Yale next summer, led most of the way in the 220, sharing it for a second with Johnson in the home stretch, only to pull away in the last few yards.

The time snipped the pool mark of 2:09.6, made by the University of Washington's Jack Medica six years ago, and the meet standard of 2:10.3 recorded last year by Otto Jaretz of Chicago and Pasadena, Cal., who failed to qualify this afternoon.

Jim Counsilman of St. Louis, an Ohio State freshman, succeeded Michigan's Jim Skinner, who didn't defend his title, as the 220 yard breast stroke champion. His time of 2:39.4 was a second off the American record, but easily beat Skinner's 1941 clocking.

Yale Wins Relay.

Yale wound up with two titles in the 400 yard free style relay and the one meter dive won by Jim Cook, the eastern intercollegiate champion, which brought in the blue team total to 32 points, 26 more than second place Princeton.

In the relay, which looked more like a Yale intramural race due to the preponderance of Eli's entries, the blue varsity posted 3:28.6, a one second improvement over the meet mark made last year by Chicago Towers.

In addition to Yale and Princeton other team scores as the three day meet headed toward the final day were Mercersburg academy, 5; York [Pa.] YMCA, 3; Dallas A. C., Massachusetts State, and Ohio State, each 2.

Five more events tomorrow will wind up the meet.

The Girls They Left Behind Them.

Gee, but this is a lonesome town
Since Eddie and Joe and Jack aren't around.
Winter nights it wasn't so tough,
Just staying at home was pleasant enough;
But now that the springtime's rolled around
With the twilight lingering long,
Something is certainly missing,
Something seems somehow all wrong.

The movies get awfully tiresome
Going with just Jane or Marie,
A coke at the drugstore's lost its kick—
Is something the matter with me?

The First Easter.

Early they came on the first of the week,
Just as the east showed a faint rosy streak—
The three faithful women who'd stayed to the end;
Came now to anoint Him, Jesus, their friend.
Softly they wept as they wended their way
To the place in the rock where the Crucified lay,
They gathered tall lilies to lay on His bier,
And the words of the Master seemed hauntingly clear
When He'd told of the lilies that toil not nor spin,
That the birds garner not in barn or in bin,
Yet the lilies have raiment that dazzles the sun
And the birds are all fed to the least little one.
They carried sweet spices and fine linen, too,
But as they drew nearer their tears fell anew,
For, had they not seen Him die on the cross,
Seen the grief of His mother at her bitter loss?
Mary Magdalen said, "Who will roll back the stone?
It is large, I don't think we can move it alone."
Then she hurried along, and went on before,
To find the stone rolled away from the sepulchre door.
"They have taken my Lord and hid Him away."
Mary, mother of James, and Salome, heard her say.
But an angel appeared and he said, "Do not fear,
You seek Jesus? He's risen. He is not here.
Behold!" and he led them into the tomb.
"The place where they laid Him."
Their eyes searched the gloom.
They found the tomb empty, the winding sheet there,
Then gone was their sorrow—gone their despair,
And trembling with joy they hastened away
To tell the glad tidings on that first Easter day.

JOE G. DAVIS, 79, GRAND VETERAN OF GOLF, DIES

Served Tribune 25 Years, CDGA 16 More.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The company of Tribune sports writers who have passed on, yesterday acquired one of the most versatile of them all in the death of Joseph Garibaldi Davis. When Joe meets up with them, he will be able to talk boxing with George Siler, football with Walter Eckersall, baseball with Sy Sanborn and Charley Dryden, and horse racing with French Lane. He can swap anecdotes and verse with Hugh E. [Hek] Keough and talk over old times with Harvey T. Woodruff, long his superior in the Tribune sports department. And none will say him nay if Joe chooses to mention golf.

Grand old Joe Davis, 79 years old last December, died at 6:05 p. m. yesterday of a pulmonary congestion. He had been confined for 48 days in the Chicago Osteopathic hospital, 5200 Ellis avenue.

It was in golf that Joe became nationally famed as a writer, but Chicagoans who knew him well have long realized that his interests were directed at every phase of American sports. Folks who saw him only during his duties as Tribune golf editor and later as secretary of the Chicago District Golf association, a position he held until his death, were unaware of his wide range of experience and his abiding interest in other fields of athletic activity.

Joe Got Around.

Until a few months ago you could find Joe at almost any sports event in town. Naturally he never missed an opportunity to attend an important billiard tournament, a major soccer game, or a cricket match, for he had distinguished himself as a competitor in these in his younger days. Aside from these, however, Joe always had a standing order for tickets to the Golden Gloves bouts and the All-Star football game. He was not averse to putting a small wager or two on his choices at the race tracks, and enjoyed ice hockey. His golf duties prevented him from seeing all of the baseball he wanted to, but he always managed to cram in his share of visits to Comiskey park and Wrigley field.

Joe was a native of London, England, born there on Dec. 5, 1862. He first came to America in 1884, at the age of 22, to work for the East Florida Land and Production company, an English concern that owned land near St. Augustine. In 1887, he went north to New York to work in a cousin's cement firm, and in 1890 transferred to Chicago to become secretary of the Chicago Cricket club, which, besides fostering cricket, played baseball, lawn bowls, and tennis, and maintained a one mile cinder path and a quarter mile bicycle track on the south side.

He Sets Cricket Record.

A dispute over club finances resulted in nearly all of the cricket playing members joining the Wanderers, who had their grounds on the site of the first Comiskey baseball park. In 1897, Joe set a record of 127 wickets for the Chicago cricket season's play, a mark that stood for

Wings Battle Leafs Tonight in Cup Opener

TORONTO, Ont., April 3 [Special].—The Toronto Maple Leafs, who knocked out the league champion New York Rangers, and the Detroit Red Wings, conquerors of Boston's cup holders, tomorrow night will play the first game of the final series for the Stanley cup and the ice hockey championship of the world.

Hockey enthusiasts who saw the Rangers set a new scoring record under the modern rules could not, a few weeks ago, see how any team in the league could stand up over a distance against the New Yorkers. Yet the Leafs not only did that, but achieved their victory in the series between the first and second place teams without going the scheduled seven games. They took the decision, 4 games to 2, with the result that they will skate onto their own ice tomorrow night as favorites.

Wings Are a Surprise.

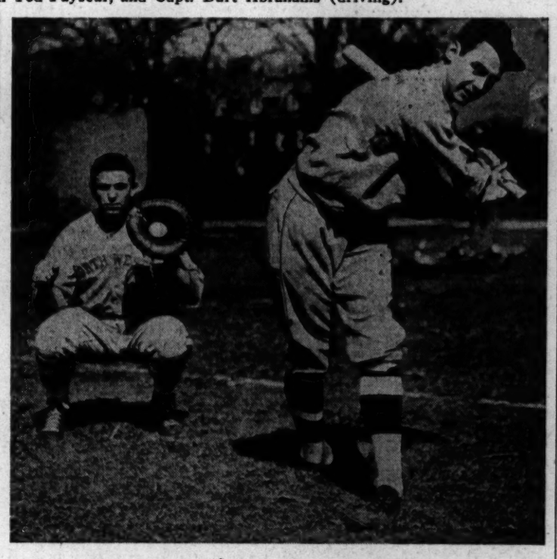
More surprising than the Leafs' disposition of the Rangers, however, is the appearance of the Wings in the final series, which also will be conducted on a best four out of seven basis. When the season started, the Detroit club had the confidence of only its manager, rotund Jack Adams. His faith in the team thru a mid-season slump was justified at the end of the regular schedule, when the Wings wound up in fifth place to assure themselves of a playoff berth.

The fans began to believe Adams when the Wings took their opening series from the Montreal Canadiens, two games to one. From there they went on to a conquest of the Bruins, who had won the cup last year by defeating Detroit in four straight games.

Records Favor Leafs.

It has been nine years since Toronto won a Stanley cup despite the fact the Leafs have had six final chances at it in that period. The regular season record between the two favors the Leafs, who took six of their eight meetings with Detroit.

The final standings are all on the Toronto side. The Leafs won 27, lost 18, and tied 3 while making 158 goals, and the Wings finished their regular schedule with 19 won, 25 lost, and 4 tied for a total of 140 goals. The Toronto team also has the defensive advantage, Turk Broda permitting only 136 scores against the 147 allowed by the Detroit goalie, Johnny Mowers.



The baseball candidates, too, are busy preparing for the Wildcats' first practice game with Bradley Tech in Peoria Monday. Bruno Gargas is the catcher as Ted Esser sharpens up his winter dimmed batting eye.

Wildcats Are Busy

Northwestern university's spring sport teams took advantage of the warmer weather of the last few days to begin outdoor practice in preparation for opening contests scheduled for next week. The baseball team will open its 20 game schedule against Bradley Tech in Peoria Monday. A second practice game will be played against Illinois State Normal in Bloomington Tuesday.

The Bradley Tech game will be homecoming for Russ Wendland, Wildcat first baseman, who was an all-around star at Manual High school in Peoria. Wendland, who is captain elect of the basketball team, was the regular first baseman last year.

Members of the golf team worked out yesterday at the Tam o' Shanter Golf club under the direction of Coach Ted Payseur. The first match is scheduled for April 18 against Indiana in Indianapolis. The squad will be built around two letter men, Capt. Burt Abrahams of La Grange and Dick Haskell, a senior from Seattle. Leading sophomores include Manuel De La Torre of Highland Park and John Stoltz of Ottumwa, Ia. The former is the son of Angel De La Torre, golf professional at the Lake Shore club in Highland Park.

KNICKERBOCKER IS SENT TO A'S BY SOX ON WAIVERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tucson, Ariz., April 3.—Bill Knickerbocker, White Sox infielder who had been with four American league clubs, made it five today when he went to Phoenix and joined the Philadelphia Athletics. The Sox sent Bill to Connie Mack on waivers in a deal announced shortly after the Chicago club arrived here this morning. The A's went to Phoenix last night for a game today and Bill made the 125 mile trip in time to proceed to El Paso with them.

Orlando, Fla., April 3 (AP).—Second Baseman Eddie Lyons, Pitcher Bill Kennedy, and four others were removed from the Washington Senators' roster today, three going to Chattanooga and three to Charlotte. Going to the Charlotte club were Lyons, Outfielder Alex Kvasnak, and Pitcher Bill Zinser. To Chattanooga went Kennedy and Pitchers Ray Scarborough and Arnold Anderson.

CUBS RALLY IN SEVENTH AFTER LYONS LEAVES

South Siders Help with 5 Errors.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tucson, Ariz., April 3.—Just when the Cubs needed some help today to ward off another blow from their home town rivals, the White Sox, Bill Nicholson responded with his bat. He belted a seventh inning homer over the wall and with that one wallop picked up the tying as well as the decisive run for his fellow National leaguers. The score was 8 to 7 and naturally was very pleasing to Jim Wilson's boys, because it cut to 3 and 2 the American leaguers' edge in the spring series.

Considered merely as exercise, the game was all right but as an artistic exhibition it was more than a little shy of major league standards. In this respect, the Sox were persistent offenders. Apparently giving no heed to the fact that they are supposed to be the Cubs' worst enemies, they gave away runs with unusual abandon. They piled up five errors, only one of which failed to aid the Cubs' production. On the other hand, the National leaguers blundered only twice and one of the miscues meant nothing.

Ted Leaves with Tie.

Old Ted Lyons, despite a four hit job in five innings, departed from the show with nothing better than a 3 to 3 tie to show for his labors against Jake Mooty. Then Joe Haynes, the Sox youngster, was introduced for a match with the bulky Ed Hanyzewski in the sixth. Haynes was immediately thumped for two runs, but in the seventh so many things happened to the Cub with the long name that his manager wisely decided to remove him from circulation. He was nailed for four runs, giving the Sox a 7 to 5 lead, but a moment later Haynes encountered a similar disturbance.

As a preliminary to Nicholson's blast, the seventh opened with Don Kolloway first fumbling and then throwing wild on a grounder hit by Bob Scheffing who batted for Hanyzewski. The two errors gave Scheffing as many bases. After one was out, Phil Cavarretta slipped a two bagger past Joe Kuhel's reach and Scheffing scored. Charley Gilbert was disposed of handily, but Nicholson hoisted his drive over the left field wall and the two runs were sufficient for Leslie Fleming, who held the Sox to one hit in the last two innings.

Kolloway Starts It.

Kolloway opened the meeting with a two bagger over third, went to third on Wally Moses' fly and home on Mooty's wild pitch. The Cubs quickly converted the one run deficit into a lead of similar proportions, a maneuver in which the Sox gave them noble assistance. Stan Hack led off with a fly which became a two base hit because of Moses' failure to gauge the wind. Cavarretta bounced out and Gilbert tapped to Bob Kennedy, who threw to the plate to nail Hack but confusion set in and Hack arrived back at third safely. He scored on Murrell Jones' fumble of Nicholson's roller and Gilbert registered on a single by Dom Dallessandro.

Cavarretta and Nicholson took care of a one run assessment off Lyons in the third. The former doubled to right with one out and, after two were gone, sailed home on Nicholson's single to right. Taft Wright gave Nicholson an extra base by fumbling but the blunder proved of no consequence.

A Pass Starts Rally.

Mooty handed a pass to Lyons at the start of the fifth and the Sox went right to work on the runs needed for a tie. Kolloway forced

SEEK SPACE FOR 3,419 HORSES AT 2 LOCAL TRACKS

Applications Set Record at Washington, Arlington.

Stall applications for 3,419 horses have been received thus far for the 67 days of racing, starting June 22, at Arlington Park and Washington Park, it was announced yesterday by John D. Jackson, general manager of the two tracks.

This is the highest number ever to seek racing quarters at the two courses and exceeds by more than 1,100 the previous high mark set at Arlington Park a number of years ago. While the curtailment of racing on the coast is contributing to this record application, the major portion of the increase, according to Jackson, is due to the increased overnight purses and stakes that will make up this summer's program.

Each Park Accommodates 1,400.

At Arlington Park Jackson has accommodations for 1,400 thorobreds. The Washington Park stabling situation is just about the same. The task of fitting more than 3,400 horses into that number of stalls is the job on Jackson's hands.

Only two races daily at $1,200 will be offered, while all the others are at $1,500 or more. Only the better grade of horses will be drawn to Chicago, according to Jackson.

Three Stakes Weekly.

Stakes will be run every Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday with a generous sprinkling of distance events, as well as colorful contests over the grass courses at the two tracks.

Both tracks will be made available for early arriving stables well in advance of their meetings.

Vanderbilt Quits Post at Belmont Park

Beverly Hills, Cal., April 3 (AP).—Millionaire Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, one of the country's foremost turfmen, is awaiting a commission in the United States navy. He hopes it comes soon. If it doesn't he will try another branch of the service, he said in an interview today. He has cut his racing ties for the duration.

Vanderbilt seeks a commission as lieutenant, junior grade, in the aviation volunteer service of the naval reserve.

May Get Leave of Absence.

Vanderbilt said he had resigned as president of the Belmont Park in New York and Pimlico in Baltimore, Md., track. Directors have not accepted the resignations. They may reject them and grant Vanderbilt leaves of absence, dispatches from New York said. He also resigned as a director in the Saratoga Racing association, the United Hunts club, and the Turf and Field club.

Lieut. Comm. William H. Gardner, head of the New York naval aviation cadet selective board, reported that Vanderbilt had taken his physical examination and that his application had been forwarded "with thousands of others to the navy department in Washington, where rank is decided on age and ability."

Will Keep Own Stable.

The sportsman, now 29 years old, at the age of 21 took over the Sagamore stables established by his maternal grandfather, the late Capt. Isaac Emerson. He and his brother, George, inherited his father's $30,000,000 estate when the elder Vanderbilt went down with the Lusitania in World War I.

He became president of Pimlico in 1938 and the next year was made head of Belmont Park. His greatest thorobred was Discovery, winner of $195,285. He married Manuela Hudson of Monterey, Cal., in June 1938. They separated in November, 1940, and young Vanderbilt signed final papers in a financial settlement last winter.

INDIANS ACQUIRE BUSTER MILLS FOR ROSENTHAL

Cleveland, O., April 3 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians acquired Outfielder Buster Mills from Kansas City of the American association in exchange for Outfielder Larry Rosenthal and cash. Roger Peckinpaugh, Indian vice president, announced tonight.

Mills, 33 years old, and a right hand hitter, is expected to take the place of Gerald Walker, outfielder whom the Indians sold to Cincinnati.

Mills, who joins the Indians immediately, has seen service with the Boston Red Sox, St. Louis Browns, and New York Yankees. He batted .307 with the Kansas City Blues last season.

Private Vic Ghezzi Will Defend PGA Championship

Asheville, N. C., April 3 (AP).—Vic Ghezzi, a private in the army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., will defend his national PGA golf title at Atlantic City next month. Ghezzi wired Fred Corcoran, PGA tournament manager, tonight saying, "Count on me definitely in PGA championship." Ghezzi won the Professional Golfers' association title at Cherry Hills, Denver, last year.

ARIEL BEAM lost ground getting to FRESH MONEY'S pace, disposed of latter, but could not resist winner. FRESH MONEY set pace accompanied by ARIEL BEAM but faltered in final stretch. QUICK BUBBLE was in first flight from start, then weakened thru stretch. OUR GLADDEN was pinched back in opening quarter and went evenly thereafter. LONG RANGE closed with good energy.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Rissa, $7.10 straight, $3.90 place, $3.30 show; Nick, $3.80 place, $3.10 show; Last Bet, $5.00 show.

RISSA, off alertly and closest to LAST BET'S pace, responded willingly when shaken up and drew out in closing stages. NICK, in first flight from start, closely gamely but was no match for winner. LAST BET, first away, set good pace but weakened in short stretch run. UGIN, off sluggishly, closed ground. HAZEL W. closed gamely. LEGAL LIGHT raced forward on outside early, then faltered. TRUE WARRIOR had early speed. BILL K. was in close quarters early.

MOLASSES MIBS, last out of gate in bad start, was rushed to front between horses going into backstretch, drew out, but had to be kept to pressure to stave off the bid of RICHESTAN. The latter, vigorously handled, moved up menacingly and closed willingly. KIMESHA, first way, set good early pace and held on gamely. TINY TRICK had early speed after being shut off, and weakened. PUNCHDRUNK was listlessly handled.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $1,500. Maidens. Three year olds and up. Six furlongs. Start good; won handily, place driving. Went to post at 3:56½. Off at 3:58½. Winner, b. f., 3, by Challenger II.-Star Chase, by Purchase. Owner, W. L. Brann. Trainer, E. A. Christmas. Time, 1:15 1-5.

MOONDRIFT went thru on inside to take command in opening furlong, saved ground while rushed, then drew out to win handily. NEDDIE BOY lacked speed to stretch, responded with bold rush when put to pressure, and was best of others. MOST ALERT gained steadily and showed good effort. CALOTTE was closest to pace under hustling tactics early and weakened thereafter. ACCUSE ME gained gradually from sluggish beginning. CASTINE had speed to midstretch. BELL ORMOND flashed speed, then dropped. HALF CROWN stumbled approaching stretch, bothered NEDDIE BOY slightly, and was taken up.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Wilcox, $35.60 straight, $11.30 place, $6.50 show; Sobriquet, $3.90 place $3.40 show; Rough Time, $4.40 show.

WILCOX, in first flight from start, came to outside when put to pressure and wore down SOBRIQUET in closing sixteenth. SOBRIQUET raced ROUGH TIME into submission while setting the pace and barely failed to last under strong handling. ROUGH TIME was steadied early while running with SOBRIQUET, but weakened in final stages. MARION COLLINS raced evenly, DON ORLAN and DANCETTY were outrun. STRAW HAT wheeled leaving gate and was left.

SIXTH RACE—Purse $2,000. Three year olds. Five and one-half furlongs. Start good; won driving, place same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:48½. Winner, ch. c., 3, by Bobby Sweep-Two No Trumps, by Ballot. Owner, W. W. Crenshaw. Trainer, F. J. Baker. Time, 1:08.

OPENING BID, steadied along in early stages, came out in final drive and closed full of run to win going away. MARKSMAN was rated in first flight, responded when placed to drive to take command but could not resist winner. FIREBROOM rallied gamely in stretch run but was slightly bothered by winner. DON DEVITO was hard used while closest to INDIAN SUN'S pace and weakened. INDIAN SUN had keen early speed, then stopped as if short. PRINCE GOVANS could not keep up.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $1,200. Three year olds which never won two races. One mile and 70 yards. Start good for all but LIGHT BANSET. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:11. Off at once. Two dollar mutuels paid: Traffic Rush, $12.10 straight, $10.30 place, $7.10 show; No Dough, $10.30 place, $7.10 show; Marval, $6.60 show.

TRAFFIC RUSH was allowed to settle into best stride, worked way to contention, took command on outside of MILKYMOON and drew clear to win easily. NO DOUGH was forwardly placed from start and was kept to drive to end. MARVAL, rated for half, was held safe when placed to pressure. IVA MAE improved position steadily for three-quarters, then faltered. DISPLAY STYLE was held safe. MILKYMOON set pace and stopped. ARGO LASSIE was used up while racing closest to MILKYMOON'S pace. MISS CARLIE was thru early. LIGHT BANSET had no chance with the start.

EIGHTH RACE—Purse $1,500. Four year olds and up. Mile and a sixteenth. Start good; won driving, place same. Went to post at 5:36. Off at 5:36½. Winner, b. or br. c., 5, by Espino-Off Gold, by Polydor. Owner, Elobee Farm. Trainer, V. H. Woehler. Time, 1:50 2-5.

DEVALUE, not hurried in early stages, moved up boldly on inside, was shut off and taken up, came again in stretch and was up in final strides. BELAY was close up from start, disposed of BUNNY BABY and barely failed to last. HILLBLOND was poorly handled in early stages and closed full of run. BUNNY BABY took lead from JIMSON BELLE approaching half, then weakened. REGENT failed to rally. VALDINA LEO was outrun.

Offer Overlin Bolden Bout at Marigold

Ken Overlin, former New York middleweight champion, yesterday was offered a $2,500 guarantee or 20 per cent of the receipts for a 10 round bout with Nate Bolden in the opening show in Marigold outdoor arena next month, Promoter Irving Schoenwald said yesterday. Bolden first will meet Paulie Mahoney in 10 rounds in Marigold Gardens indoor arena Monday. Mahoney, newcomer from Buffalo, will start workouts in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon.

Billy Murray, lightweight of Bellaire, O., who scored a victory over Harry Teaney in Cleveland last Nov. 17, probably will oppose Willie Joyce of Gary in an eight round event in Chicago Stadium next Friday. Teaney, who since his embarrassment by Murray has registered four straight decisions, is paired with Tony Motisi in a 10 rounder on the card, which is headed by an additional 10 round contest between Mello Bettina and Booker Beckwith. Beckwith is scheduled to begin drills in Trafton's gymnasium today, while his southpaw opponent from Beacon, N. Y., will initiate training there on Monday.

The Veteran Boxers' association of Illinois will conduct its first meeting in new club rooms at 75 West Randolph street Tuesday evening, Manager Sammy Frager said last night. . . . Barney Ross has delayed his induction into the United States Marine corps until next Wednesday or Thursday, after the Jewish holidays. . . . An appendicitis attack has forced Eddie Lander, west side lightweight, to defer indefinitely a scheduled match against Petey Scalzo in New York April 14, his physician, Dr. Samuel Lerner, revealed yesterday. . . . Lem Franklin, Cleveland heavyweight, whom Harry Bobo knocked out with a lucky punch recently, will not go thru with his fight against Jonnuy Fiynn in Washington, D. C., April 20, it was indicated last night.

PRESENT W-G-N'S BASKET TROPHY TO KOTZ TONIGHT

The W-G-N basketball trophy will be presented to Johnny Kotz, University of Wisconsin forward, at the Wisconsin-Washington State boxing match in Madison tonight. Bob Elson will make the presentation.

Kotz is the second Badger player to win the trophy. Placed in competition last year, it first was won by Gene Englund, captain and center of the 1940-'41 Badger national champions. In earning distinction as the most valuable player in Western conference basketball for this year, Kotz narrowly beat out Andy Phillip, sophomore guard of the Illinois championship team, in the balloting of a 23 man board headed by Western Conference Athletic Commissioner John L. Griffith.

The W-G-N trophy is an actual size gold basketball which becomes the permanent possession of the winning player. Kotz is a junior from Rhinelander, Wis.

CARDINALS HAVE 3 BIG INNINGS TO BEAT TIGERS

But Detroit Comes Close; Scores 5 in Eighth.

Lakeland, Fla., April 3 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals made it four straight today over the Detroit Tigers in their nine game spring series by hammering rookie Charley Fuchs and Schoolboy Rowe for 16 hits and a 9 to 5 victory.

Fuchs, regarded as the rookie find of the Detroit camp, yielded nine hits and six runs in five innings, but Rowe might have gotten by unscored on except for two errors by Shortstop Billy Hitchcock in the ninth that gave the Cards three more runs.

Morton Cooper, Cardinal right hander, permitted only one Tiger to advance as far as third in seven innings, but the Tigers slapped him about in the eighth for five hits, including two doubles, and five runs. The inning was the biggest the Tigers have had in 20 Florida games. Score:

St. Louis	002	040	003	9	16	2
Detroit	000	000	050	5	10	3

Batteries—M. Cooper, Lohrman and Mancuso; Fuchs Rowe and Tebbetts.

BROWNS BEAT PHILS.

Deland, Fla., April 3 (AP).—Rube Melton pitched the route for the Philadelphia Phils against the St. Louis Browns today but a bad first inning beat him, 3 to 2. George McQuinn drove in two of the Browns' runs with a double.

The Phils were helpless against Rookie Frank Biscan, who yielded three hits in six innings, but they tallied twice in the eighth against Loy Hanning and had the bases loaded with one out in the ninth before their last rally could be stopped.

Philadelphia	000	000	020	2	6	2
St. Louis	300	000	00*	3	7	0

Batteries—Melton and Warren, Livingston; Biscan, Hanning and Farrell.

Columbia, S. C., April 3 (AP).—Dom DiMaggio, Bobby Doerr and Paul Campbell led a 14 hit attack by hitting homers today as the Boston Red Sox overwhelmed the Cincinnati Reds, 11 to 6. The Reds got to Pitchers Ken Chase and Oscar Judd for nine hits, but the Red Sox infield kept them out of danger with six double plays. Doerr's home run, the most decisive hit of the game, came with two on base. Score:

Whitlow Wyatt, who deserted the holdout ranks less than two weeks ago, pitched the first six innings and was credited with the victory. Wyatt and Ed Head gave up eight hits, while the Dodgers poled a dozen hits off three soldier hurlers. Score:

Camp Wheeler	100	020	011	5	8	0

Batteries—Wyatt, Head and Owen, Dapper; Hale, Oriesby, Valko and Taylor.

YANKS WHIP MONTGOMERY.

Montgomery, Ala., April 3 (AP).—Home runs by Charley Keller and Joe Gordon accounted for half the New York Yankee runs today as the world champions crushed the Montgomery Rebels of the Southeastern league, 14 to 4.

Leading a 14 hit attack on three Rebel pitchers, Keller hit a homer with two on in the fifth and Gordon followed in the sixth when the bases were loaded. Montgomery scored all its runs off Hank Borowy, who yielded 11 hits, including a home run by Charley Quinby. Score:

GIANTS BEAT INDIANS, 5-1.

Dallas, Tex., April 3 (AP).—The New York Giants broke the Cleveland jinx today, stopping the Indians, 5 to 1, in a game that was halted after seven and a half innings to enable the teams to catch a train. It was the first victory for the Giants in their last five games against Cleveland and their second in eight contests of their spring series.

The Giants scored all their runs off Joe Krakauskas, who walked nine men in the six innings he worked and yielded seven of the nine Giant hits, including a home run by Hank Leiber.

Bob Carpenter went six innings for the Giants and was nicked for all five Cleveland hits, three of them in the third when the Indians scored their only run. Carl Hubbell retired six men in order in the last two innings. Score:

Philadelphia	106	000	01*	8	15	2

BAN ON BICYCLE SALES IS A NEW BLOW TO GOLFERS

War's list of problems for golfers will be lengthened by the freezing of bicycle sales, J. L. Rollins, vice president of the Western Golf association, predicted yesterday.

With sale of golf balls severely restricted, a threatened shortage of golf clubs imminent, and the difficulty in getting caddies due to selective service and the job boom, a season marked by restrictions has been expected. This new move, however, will prove serious, also, because bicycles are an important source of transportation for caddies to the courses, Rollins said. And maybe for the golfers?

Lyons Again Is Ready for Sabbath Duty

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tucson, Ariz., April 3.—The Cubs scored three times as many runs off Ted Lyons of the White Sox as they should have today. When Ted completed his five inning term, the score was 3 to 3. Those Sox fans who didn't investigate the circumstances might be alarmed at Ted's prospects in his 20th season as a Comiskey employé. We tell you not to be alarmed, because Ted was humiliated by a Cub tie after all these years—the old gentleman looks good for a lot of Sabbath victories again this year.

Ted Lyons.

Hoag Should Have Got It.

Stan Hack opened the game with a high fly that should have been an easy out but was scored a double because of Myril Hoag's inability to judge the ball. Later on Stan was trapped cold between third and home but Bob Kennedy and Mike Tresh let him get back to third. Then he scored when Bill Nicholson's grounder rolled between Murrell Jones' heels into right field.

Dom Dallessandro knocked a sound single which scored Charley Gilbert, who earlier had landed on first as the result of the futile trapping of Hack. The one legitimate run off Lyons came in the third on Phil Cavarretta's double and Bill Nicholson's single.

Get Your Tickets Now.

Ted struck out three and walked none and introduced his remarkable répertoire of sly stuff.

Yes, it will be all right to order your tickets now for all Sunday games in Comiskey park. Ted will give you a good show every Sabbath.

By the way, he'll be looking for his 246th victory his first time out.

Catcher Clyde McCullough and Outfielder Lou Novikoff were friends again tonight after a verbal flareup on the Cub bench this afternoon. Personal wisecracks were getting hot and a scuffle seemed imminent until Coach Dick Spalding ordered the boys to desist. They rode back from the ball park in the same bus seat and all hands tonight denied hints of dissension on the team.

The Cubs and Sox will play here again tomorrow before taking to the road for one day stands in Phoenix, Albuquerque, Tucumcari, Tulsa, and Fort Dodge. Paul Erickson and Tot Pressnell will pitch for the Cubs and Bill Dietrich and Buck Ross for the Sox tomorrow.

Six Cubs—Kiki Cuyler, Bill Nicholson, Tot Pressnell, Stan Hack, Charley Gilbert, and Vern Olsen—visited the air base hospital near here this morning. Instead of entertaining the boys at the base, they were entertained by jeep rides and other novelties.

Today's game started more than an hour late because of the delay in arrival of the Sox's trunks from Yuma, Ariz.

STANLEY BERG STOPS ZAFFORE IN SECOND ROUND

Stanley Berg, promising featherweight prospect from Franklin park, scored a second round technical knockout over Tommy Zaffore of Hammond, Ind., in an amateur bout last night in the Madison Athletic club. C. in a fast five round contest. Other results:

Carl Stirrup, Irving park YMCA, beat Jerry Nye, Franklin park [3], 140.

Blair Bailey, Madison A. C., beat Pete Scorzo, Illinois A. C. [3], 112.

Kate Lemon, Madison A. C., knocked out Bernie Neiween, IAC [2], 175.

Nicholson's Homer Beats White Sox, 8-7

Lyons and hiked to third on Moses' two base drive past Cavarretta. A pass to Jones loaded the bags. Luke Appling couldn't come thru with a hit but did dispatch a fly ball to Nicholson, Kolloway scoring. Wright broke into the proceedings with his second single to right, Moses counting and Jones moving to third. Myril Hoag lofted to Gilbert.

As soon as Kuhel took over the Sox first basing in the sixth, he was confronted by a fielding problem. Gilbert tapped a tricky bounder which hopped away from Joe's grasp for a single. Nicholson fanned but Dallessandro planted a two bagger inf left center and Gilbert scored. Clyde McCullough sacrificed and Dallessandro scored when Leo Wells' throw on Lou Stringer's tap pulled Kuhel off the bag.

Rookie Leo Gets a Hit.

The profitable Sox seventh got under way with a single to left by Rookie Wells, after which Stringer gave the Sox a lift by booting Wright's grounder. Dallessandro pulled in a wicked liner off Hoag's bat. Kennedy added to Hanyzewski's woes by dumping a single in short right, Wells scoring and Wright going to third. Mike Tresh spanked a double into left to send Wright in with the tying run. Kolloway's single scored Kennedy and Tresh, giving the Sox a 7 to 5 edge, but they couldn't hold it.

INVITE 11 CREWS TO RACE, MAYBE, ON HUDSON RIVER

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (AP).—Six college and university crews have been invited to compete in the annual Poughkeepsie regatta in addition to the five regular members of the Intercollegiate Rowing association. This was announced today by Capt. Thomas S. King, United States navy, chairman of the board of stewards.

Capt. King said the invitations had been issued some time ago, contingent on whether the regatta would be held this year.

Invitations were sent to Princeton, Rutgers, Massachusetts Tech, Wisconsin, Washington, and the University of California, Capt. King said. All are former competitors in the regatta. Navy, Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania, and Columbia are members of the association.

Capt. King, director of athletics at the United States Naval academy, said no decision had been reached on whether or not the regatta would be held this year.

Steinmetz, 14; Taft, 8.

Steinmetz High school, defending champion in the Chicago Public High School league, scored its second baseball victory of the season by defeating Taft, 14 to 8, in a 10 inning practice game in La Baugh Woods.

Coaches Ed Ruzicka of Steimetz and Jack Rapper of Taft originally planned to play two five inning games, but when the fifth was over they decided to continue without a rest period.

Test Nine Pitchers.

Rapper tested five hurlers, each working two innings, while the Steinmetz coach sent four men to the mound. At the end of six innings of play Taft was leading, 7 to 5, but Steinmetz came back to tie the count, and then move ahead.

The 1942 Steinmetz club is built around three regulars from last year's championship nine. The trio are Bob Carlson, third baseman; Bob Rubon, shortstop, and Gerald Smorowski, an outfielder.

Amundsen Wins, 13 to 0.

Amundsen routed Austin, 13 to 0, yesterday in Columbus park for its fourth straight victory. Bill Meyer, left fielder for Amundsen, pounded out a triple in the fifth inning with the bases loaded, and also singled in the seventh with two men on.

Richard Pranke fanned 12 batters in seven innings as Kelvyn Park defeated Lake View, 9 to 1 yesterday in Welles park. The right hander yielded only five hits, while Lake View hurlers were nicked for 13. Score:

National Prep Ten Pin Meet Carded Today

Approximately 1,250 high school bowlers, the majority of them Chicagoans, will compete in the first American High School Bowling congress tournament, which is to be held today as a telegraphic event. Teams from cities in 17 states will roll their three game series and their scores will be forwarded to Milton Raymer, 8142 Indiana avenue, Tilden Tech teacher and secretary of the AHSBC, who will announce the results.

While competition is to be on a team basis only, students having the highest scores, exclusive of handicap, will be declared national individual champions.

Winners to Get Trips.

The winning teams in the boys' and girls' sections will be rewarded with trips to the American Bowling congress and Women's International Bowling congress, respectively. They will bowl in those events, the boys at Columbus, O., on May 2 and the girls at Milwaukee, May 29.

The tournament is a handicap event, in which boys and girls will get 75 per cent of the difference between the scratch figures and their averages as the handicap. Scratch for boys is 180 and for girls, 150.

Chicago will have 180 teams in the competition, shooting at five centers. Three squads will roll at Harding recreation, going on the alleys at 10 a. m., noon, and 2 p. m. Two each, going on at 10 o'clock and noon, will shoot at Southwest recreation, Monte Carlo recreation, Hyde Park recreation, and Crest recreation.

Supervisors Are Listed.

Teachers who are serving as coaches or are otherwise associated with high school bowling, will supervise the play at each establishment. This group and the center at which each will supervise, are:

Jesse Beaver of Lane Tech, Monte Carlo; Gilbert Stadtler of Foreman at Harding; William Watson of Morgan Park at Southwest; Albert Adams of Chicago Vocational at Hyde Park, and Gus Schuessler of Calumet at Crest.

SOLDIERS BEAT ILLINOIS, 9 TO 5; STURM HITLESS

Jefferson Barracks, Mo., April 3 (AP).—Led by First Baseman Joe Rayne, a former Kitty league performer, the Reception Center Missions of Jefferson Barracks today defeated the University of Illinois baseball team, 9 to 5.

The Missions' coach, Johnny Sturm, the former New York Yankee first baseman, went hitless. He played left field. Rayne hit two home runs.

The Illini will oppose the Jefferson Barracks post team here tomorrow.

Milwaukee Keeps Fit by Working Hard

Milwaukee, Wis., April 3 [Special].—Milwaukee's "Keep Fit" program, sponsored by the Office of Civilian Defense, has been expanding rapidly since early January when Mayor Carl Zeidler appointed Conrad Jennings, athletic director of Marquette university, chairman of the county-wide physical training program.

Jennings secured the coöperation of local physical education leaders—from the schools, the city playgrounds, the county parks, the YMCA, the YWCA, the AAU, and other agencies. The Milwaukee Athletic club inaugurated broadened program of games, exercises, and calisthenics. Policemen, firemen and deputy sheriffs, as well as other county and municipal workers, are reducing those waistlines with daily exercises. Several thousand industrial workers have been taught drills which they can do at home to keep in condition.

They Walk to Work.

Washington High school was the first to order exercises for all students, a policy that is being adopted in other educational institutions, public and private. YMCA classes became so crowded that the schedule was increased to include a session from midnight to 3 a. m., one of the most popular in the curriculum.

With the coming of spring, "Walk to Work!" movements are under way, and, where distances are too great, workers ride the street car halfway and walk the remainder. Cycle clubs are growing, particularly in the suburbs, and the cyclists have been promised a series of tours in southeast Wisconsin.

Factory Workers Relax!

Strenuous exercise for factory workers has been ruled out because their work is tiring enough in itself. However, relaxing exercises have been advised. Light exercises for office workers at their desks have been suggested. County park officials expect the heaviest season in history on the golf courses, tennis courts, and in the swimming pools this summer.

Intramural athletics are looming at Marquette, Milwaukee State Teachers college and Concordia college. No retrenchment in intercollegiate competition is planned by any of those schools.

Jennings, pleased with results thus far, plans no letup. On the roof of his own Marquette gymnasium, he keynotes his campaign with a huge billboard that screams!

Get physically fit!—Keep physically fit!

Feller Yields 3 Walks, Hit, Run in Navy Debut

Norfolk, Va., April 3 (AP).—Bob Feller, the American league star, went to the mound for the navy today for the first time as the Norfolk naval training station team defeated Richmond university, 13 to 1. Feller pitched the first three innings. He fanned three, walked three, yielded one hit and Richmond's run.

Freddy Hutchinson, owned by the Detroit Tigers, worked the middle three innings and Doug Hautz, youthful veteran of navy baseball, the last three. Vince Smith, bought by the Pirates last year, was navy's big gun with a homer, triple, and a single, knocking in five runs.

Capt. Wholey of Richmond got the only hit off Feller, a double to left in the third scoring Bourne, the pitcher.

Joe Davis, 79, Golf's Grand Veteran, Dies

In all, Joe's career in sports, both as a player and a writer, covered a span of 52 years. In the latter half of the '90s, Joe began experimenting as a free lance writer on cricket, soccer, curling, football, and billiards. Eventually his work attracted the attention of THE TRIBUNE, and he went to work on a space basis, joining the staff as a regular employé in 1899. It was in July of that year that Joe covered his first big assignment, the National Amateur Golf tournament at Onwentsia. For another 25 summers, Joe was to do golf in such a fashion that he was recognized as the dean of all fairway reporters. In the winter he wrote billiards, among other sports, in a manner that delighted the real fan. He seldom used such superficial lines as "Schaefer gathered a cluster of eight." Ever a conscientious reporter, Joe described the path of every shot and the English applied to the cue ball.

Pensioned by Tribune.

In 1925, Joe retired from THE TRIBUNE on a pension, the certificate indicating same hanging over his desk in the CDGA headquarters until his death. In 1912, Mr. Davis married Mabel Gilbert of Chicago, the daughter of an Englishman. Mrs. Davis died in 1938.

Joe, who lived at 4206 Greenwood avenue, was a pioneer in the formation of the Chicago Press Veterans' association and a leading factor in promoting the annual reunions of these newspaper old timers.

A sister, Rebecca S. Davis, with whom he resided, survives.

The body was taken last night to the undertaking rooms, 316 West 63d street, and will remain there until 9 o'clock Monday morning. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon in the chapel at 5501 North Ashland avenue. Interment will be in the Rosehill cemetery.

HOLD SPRINGER TRIAL TOMORROW NEAR LAKE BLUFF

State Club Lists Stakes for Three Groups.

BY BOB BECKER.

Springer spaniel fanciers will assemble tomorrow for their first outdoor meeting of the year when the annual field trial of the English Spaniel Field Trial Club of Illinois is held west of Lake Bluff. The field trial grounds are located at the western limits of Lake Bluff near the junction of routes 41 and 176.

Charles Goodall, acting secretary of the club, said yesterday that all spaniel fanciers are invited to attend this sanctioned trial and enter their trained dogs in one or more of the events that will be run tomorrow. The emphasis in this trial will be on amateur handlers and their dogs. Any spaniel owner who wants advice on the training of his hunting dog can obtain it from club members, who will be on the grounds all day.

Three Stakes Listed.

Arthur Welch of Milwaukee and Joseph Stipe of Highland Park will pick the winners in the various stakes, which include one for puppies, another for shooting dogs and their owners, and an all-age stake for amateur handlers only. In the puppy and all-age stakes only springer spaniels are eligible. In the competition for shooting dogs, cocker spaniels, Clumber spaniels, or American water spaniels are eligible. The owner or handler does his own shooting in this particular event.

No advance entries are necessary if a spaniel owner wants to run his dog in this trial. Entries will be accepted tomorrow morning on the grounds. Silver trophies and ribbons will be awarded to the winners of the various events.

Retriever Trial April 19.

On Sunday, April 19, the Chesapeake Bay Retriever Club of the Central States will hold an informal field trial for trained Chesapeakes. Ferd Bunte, vice president of the club, said yesterday that the dogs entered in the trial will demonstrate their hunting ability near Butler lake, one mile west of Libertyville on route 176.

The trial will start at 9 a. m. and three events, a training stake for Chesapeakes which never have competed in a trial, a junior hunting stake for dogs which haven't won in a trial, and a senior hunting stake will be held during the day.

CHICAGO REGION BELIEVED SURE OF RUBBER JOB

Standard Oil (Ind.) on U. S. List.

At least one synthetic rubber plant, and possibly more, will be built in the Chicago area, it was indicated yesterday following the announcement by government officials that Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals corporation will participate in government financed construction of artificial rubber factories.

Standard Oil Company of Indiana, with headquarters in Chicago, was named by Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, as one of 25 large oil, rubber, and chemical companies which will participate in the government's program to add 600,000 tons a year to the synthetic rubber production capacity of the nation by the end of 1943.

Location Is Not Revealed.

The location of the rubber plant which Standard will operate has not been revealed. The company will draw on its Whiting, Ind., oil refinery, largest complete unit in the world, for materials needed for rubber.

Standard's synthetic rubber plant will use crude oil or natural gas as the primary raw materials from which it will extract the ingredients that will go into the rubber.

Carbide and Carbon Chemicals corporation also has a plant in Whiting. A subsidiary of Union Carbide and Carbon corporation, the company produces refinery gases in large quantities in a plant which adjoins Standard's Whiting refinery. Carbide has done much research on processes for making butadiene, one of the basic components of synthetic rubber, and its plant at Whiting is devoted largely to the manufacture of synthetic hydrocarbon products.

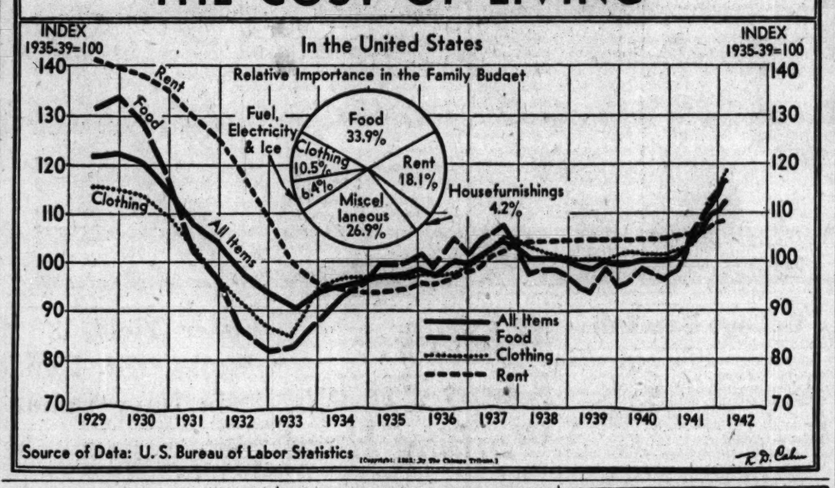
Construction of the synthetic rubber making facilities in the Chicago area is expected to start immediately after final contract details with the Rubber Reserve company and the Defense Plant corporation, both government agencies, are completed.

Two Principal Chemicals.

Butadiene and styrene are the two principal chemicals used in making what is known as the buna-S type of synthetic rubber contemplated under the government financed program. The process was developed in Germany and perfected, for the use of crude oil, in the United States.

Butadiene can be obtained by cracking petroleum or from natural gas thru dehydrogenation of butane. Styrene can be derived from refinery gases or from coal tar.

THE COST OF LIVING



STANDARD UNIT FUELED AXIS' PLANES, CHARGE

Aided Propaganda, Senators Told.

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—Government officials testified today that a subsidiary of Standard Oil company [New Jersey] provided the necessary gasoline for maintaining the principal channel of axis propaganda to the western hemisphere in 1941 and rejected a state department request that the sales cease.

Not until the department took steps to blacklist the Brazilian subsidiary of the company last October, witness said, did the company agree to stop selling petroleum to "Lati," a German sponsored Italian operated airline running from Rome to South America, an dthe German controled Condor line, operating in Brazil.

[It was made plain later that the Brazilian subsidiary never actually was placed on the blacklist.]

The testimony was given to the senate defense investigating committee by A. A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state, and William La Varre, chief of the American Republics office for the department of commerce.

War Goods Flown Back.

Over Lati and thru the British blockade, La Varre told the committee, there traveled between 1939 and 1941 a steady stream of axis propaganda and propagandists, bound for South American countries and the United States, as well as valuable war materials for Germany on the line's eastward trips.

La Varre supplied the committee with a list showing what he termed "the most notorious record of enemies that ever traveled on any line."

Westward from Europe, he said, usually free of charge, went books, films, propagandists, Gestapo agents, spies, loot from occupied countries, and even German medals for Brazilian sympathizers.

Eastward, he testified, the line carried diamonds, platinum, mica and other South American valuables.

Fears Suit Over Contract.

Berle said the state department requested Standard Oil to stop supplying fuel to the axis lines before taking steps to blacklist the subsidiary, but the company pleaded that it would be liable to a damage suit if it breached a contract with the airlines.

W. S. Farish, Standard president, testified earlier that "no delivery was made except in conformity with the policy of the [state] department" and that deliveries to the air lines were discussed with the state department and with the American embassy at Rio de Janeiro.

Berle told the committee, "in fairness to Standard Oil," that the company had coöperated wholeheartedly with the state department since last October.

The assistant secretary testified that on April 14, 1941, the state department had a conference with Standard Oil officials.

"The upshot of it," he related, "was that they would supply Lati and Condor, if at all, only thru their Brazilian subsidiary, but the subsidiary would make no deliveries unless and until they had been approved by the American ambassador at Rio."

Pact Kept to October.

Berle said that so far as the state department knew, the arrangement was kept until October, 1941, when "Mr. Michler of the Standard Oil company" notified the department that the company was under contract and feared a lawsuit if it did not deliver gasoline and oil.

On Oct. 21, Berle continued, a Standard attorney named Palmer notified him that the board of directors could not accede to the department's request that no further deliveries be made.

"I became a little irritated," the witness related, "and told him that this was a waste of time, that the department would have to take steps."

The next day, Berle said, he initiated steps to have the company's Brazilian subsidiary placed on the blacklist.

Observing that "the news of this traveled fast," he testified that on Oct. 23 Palmer notified him by telephone that Farish had authorized him to say the company would "coöperate in every respect wholeheartedly" and asked that Palmer's previous position be disregarded.

Railroads Rush Record Volume of Oil Into Eastern District

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—The railroads, called upon to help meet the eastern states oil emergency caused by tanker ship sinkings and war diversions, moved a record volume of 506,025 barrels of petroleum daily into the east last week, Petroleum Coördinator Harold L. Ickes reported today.

The record was attained by the use of 33,750 tank cars, which transported the volume equivalent of approximately 100 tanker ships. The eastern states used approximately 1,700,000 barrels of oil daily.

Year Ago Volume Small.

The previous record of 464,561 barrels was set in the week ended March 21. Oil sources pointed out that in January, 1941, before a tanker shortage developed, only about 700 barrels of oil was moved into the east by rail during the entire month.

Ickes reported today also that 3 million barrels of heavy fuel oil would be saved annually for distribution to east coast war industries by voluntary conversion already made to coal and other fuels. He said operators thruout the east each day were increasing the number of plants that have been converted. Conversions have been made by medical schools, warehouses, apartment houses, department stores, power companies, silk mills, and other industries.

Urge 84 Hour Week

Gasoline filling stations in 15 midwestern states will operate not more than 12 hours a day, or 84 hours a week, if a recommendation made yesterday in Chicago by petroleum industry representatives gets final approval in Washington, D. C. The marketing committee of the 15 state area, known as district 2, made the recommendation to Harold L. Ickes, federal petroleum coördinator.

Dealers decided there was a necessity for closing retail outlets for part of each day to conserve electric power and labor.

SMALL PLANTS TO FILL GAP IN BOMB PROGRAM

Old Lathes to Make 7 Million Parts.

Seven million units of a certain bomb part—6½ million of which could not have been produced otherwise—are going to be made on inefficient old lathes and drill presses in 100 small plants in the middlewest before the year ends as a result of a move announced yesterday by army ordnance officials in Chicago.

And the army is going to have that much more equipment because three officers on the ordnance district staff figured out a way to carry out WPB Chief Donald Nelson's order to get little companies busy on arms work quickly, even if it means an increase in arms costs.

Orders Total 8 Millions.

Col. Donald Armstrong, deputy chief of the Chicago ordnance district, which embraces several states, announced the spread of 8 million dollars of orders for aerial bomb boosters among 100 little plants. He then told how the district's small facilities section cut thru red tape to speed the job of picking the shops to do the work.

Several weeks ago the department received instructions to arrange for production of 7 million bomb boosters [a booster is a small steel cylindrical container for a high explosive that is fitted into the bomb nose to increase fragmentation]. Lieut. Carl McEvoy, in charge of the small facilities division, and Lieutenants G. W. Breuer and W. B. Sampson, assigned to place the orders with little plants, found that there were not enough automatic screw machines available in the district to produce, efficiently and at low cost, more than 500,000 boosters by the end of 1942.

That meant that production of the other 6½ million had to depend on such old turret lathes, engine lathes, and drill presses as were idle.

Plants Picked from Lists.

The officers consulted the ordnance office's lists which show the facilities of each company in the district. They selected 125 most efficient of the little companies and asked them to send representatives to a conference. They found out how many boosters each company could make this year and what price each company could afford to quote. By studying the information, the officers found that 100 of the plants could produce the 7 million boosters by the end of 1942.

Arrangements were made for 41 companies with acceptable bids to act as spokesmen for all 100 in subsequent negotiations. Out of the 41, the officers picked four of the strongest and most experienced companies to act as prime contractors. From that point on the army limited its dealings to the four prime contractors, but on condition that specified amounts of work would be sublet to the rest of the 41 acceptable bidders at specified rates, and that the 41 companies in turn would pass on certain amounts of the work to the rest of the plants in the group of 100.

The prime contractors assume responsibility for seeing that the work of all plants meets specifications.

Two Chicago Firms' Sales Sets Records

Annual reports of two Chicago companies, Material Service corporation and Chicago Molded Products corporation, showed yesterday that their business volume reached record levels in 1941.

Henry Crown, chairman of Material Service, limestone and gravel producer, said net sales for the year were $13,090,406, compared with $11,228,619 a year before. Profit was $671,258, compared with $663,324 in 1940.

The annual report of Chicago Molded Products placed sales for the year at $2,598,753, compared with $1,668,090 in 1940, and net income at $199,707 against $60,257 in 1940. The company manufactures a variety of items from synthetic plastic materials.

United Light Reports.

United Light and Power company, in an annual report issued from its Chicago offices, reported dissolution and liquidation of the company, as ordered by the Securities and Exchange commission, is nearly completed. The only remaining step, the report said, is to distribute common stock of the United Light and Railways company, a subsidiary, to holders of the power company's common and preferred stock.

When the dissolution has been completed, United Light and Railways company will replace United Light and Power company as the "top" company of the utility system.

Last year's net earnings were $4,134,544, compared with $5,266,602 for the preceding year.

McWilliams Outlook Good.

G. A. McWilliams, president of McWilliams Dredging company, also of Chicago, told stockholders in his annual report that all equipment is fully employed and prospects are favorable for additional work when the company's present seven contracts are completed. Most of present work is connected with the arms program, he said.

Corporation net incomes reported yesterday follow:

TOOTHPASTE MAKER.

What products of the Bristol-Myers company are its biggest sellers? What has been the trend of earnings and taxes in the last five years? What is the company's capitalization and corporation history? What about dividends?—S. D. C.

Answer: The products of the Bristol-Myers company which have the largest sales are "Ipana" toothpaste and "Sal Hepatica." The company, however, manufactures several other widely advertised toilet preparations and drugs.

A record of operating results in recent years follows:

	Net sales.	Taxes.	Net income.
1941	$22,628,028	$2,944,131	$2,377,859
1940	17,562,643	1,550,065	2,523,642
1939	16,040,551	1,088,087	2,379,784
1938	14,849,993	1,100,124	2,217,810
1937	15,463,091	1,147,078	2,197,940

The company's only capitalization is 667,251 shares of $5 par capital stock outstanding. The Bristol-Myers company was incorporated in 1933 in Delaware to acquire the capital stock of a New Jersey corporation of the same name. The latter was organized as a subsidiary of Drug, Inc., to take over the business of the original Bristol-Myers company when it was absorbed by Drug, Inc., in 1929. The original Bristol-Myers was incorporated in 1900 in New York as successor to a partnership established in 1887.

Dividends paid by the present company have averaged about $2.50 a share each year since incorporation. Distributions in 1941 amounted to $2.55 and a like amount was paid in 1940. A 60 cent quarterly payment was made March 2, this year.

INSTITUTIONAL INVESTOR.

What is meant by an "institutional investor"? I've seen the term several times in recent months in connection with railroad reorganizations.—F. A.

Answer: The principal institutional investors are insurance companies, commercial banks and trust companies, and mutual savings banks.

Did H. M. Byllesby & Co. pay any dividends in 1941?—I. T.

Top Hog Price Sets Another 16 Year Peak

Hogs advanced at Chicago yesterday to new 16 year peaks and to the second highest April level in 22 years on the first anniversary of the announcement of the government's program to raise prices to stimulate production and obtain pork and lard for lend-lease purposes.

Numerous consignments of hogs weighing 204 to 324 pounds brought the $14 a hundred pounds top yesterday, an increase of 70 per cent over top prices the same day last year. The average price, up 10 cents for the day at $13.90, stood 78 per cent over a year ago.

Wholesale Prices Almost Double.

Top light pork loins that wholesaled at $16.50 a hundred pounds on April 3, 1941, sold yesterday at $27.50. Top light shoulders rose from $13.50 a year ago to $26.50, while best Boston butts at $30 compared with $16.50 and spare ribs at $17.50 compared with $12 last year.

Since early in the spring of 1941 the government has purchased approximately 1 billion 225 million pounds of pork and lard, exclusive of purchases made by the army and navy. Lard purchases were close to 475 million pounds.

First Spring Lamb at $13.

The first California spring lambs of the season, averaging 83 pounds, sold at $13 in Chicago yesterday. Other lambs were weak to 10 cents lower, with top Nebraska fed stock at $12.75. Native springers reached $13.

Prices were steady for practically all classes of cattle and calves.

RESERVE BANK TAKES OVER MORE SPACE AS ITS ACTIVITIES EXPAND

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago is taking over for its own use 6,000 square feet of additional floor space in its building at 230 South La Salle street, Clifford S. Young, president, said yesterday.

The move, Young said, is part of a comprehensive rearrangement by various departments of the bank. The expanding activities of the bank are taking all the available office space in the building.

The shifting of departments will economize on space and reduce interfloor traffic, Young said.

The bank occupies 220,000 of the 307,000 square feet of rentable space in the building. The only nongovernmental tenants are the Chicago Clearing House association and Marsh & McLennan, insurance firm. Government agencies that occupy space in the building include the Reconstruction Finance corporation, chief national bank examiner, Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, and the Rural Electrification administration.

JOHNS-MANVILLE HEAD TO ADDRESS WAUKEGAN UNIT

Discussion of the war production effort between President Lewis H. Brown of the Johns-Manville Products corporation and the company's 2,700 employés and their families in Waukegan will be held tomorrow evening in the gymnasium of the Waukegan Township High school, Kenneth Huffine, plant manager, announced yesterday. More than 3,000 are expected at the meeting, for which Brown is coming from New York City.

The meeting will be opened at 7 p. m. with a concert by the Waukegan Philharmonic orchestra.

The Waukegan branch of the Johns-Manville corporation, which has branches in several sections of the country, recently has been operating seven days a week, with some departments going 24 hours a day, it was said.

On Monday Brown will conduct an informal regional meeting of Chicago area stockholders of Johns-Manville corporation in the Drake hotel at 3:30 p. m. The meeting, similar to one held last year, is intended primarily for shareholders unable to attend the regular annual meeting in New York.

EASTER BUYING TOPS ALL PAST SALES RECORDS

New York, April 3 (AP).—Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., reported today pre-Easter shopping topped sales records for the season. Crowds of Christmas rush proportions jammed the stores and bought heavily of spring ready-to-wear clothing.

Cash purchasing, the trade review said, was particularly heavy, with demand concentrating on wool clothing and other staples but spreading widely into other lines. Some retailers declared the increased business "unhealthy," fearing that it might lead to a slump in the heavily purchased lines later.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

Lambing Time Near End.

LAMBING time is almost over at the Du Page county farm and the big sheep barn is crowded with ewes and their new lambs. There are 52 lambs so far, and there are nine ewes left to come in.

The 52 lambs came from 42 ewes and consist of 25 ewe lambs and 27 buck lambs. There was one set of triplets and 12 sets of twins. Only six lambs were lost this year. This is a good record, as Southdowns are likely to have a hard time lambing and require the constant attendance of the flockmaster. Last year quite a few lambs were lost because of a severe cold snap that came in the middle of lambing time.

Chilled lambs often die, and it is difficult to discover them in time to save them. This year, however, the weather was mild and the flockmaster had an easier time. As it was he had to get up every two hours each night beginning early in March to look over the ewes and help them if they were in trouble.

Black Lambs Among Them.

There are several black lambs in the group and the buck that was responsible for them will be put out of service. A black lamb is not salable as breeding stock and its wool is discounted at the market because of its color.

The new lambs are a hardy bunch of youngsters and keep the barn in a constant uproar. They are not allowed outdoors yet, so they gather by the windows and frolic in the sunshine that filters thru the panes. They butt each other, bleat in high, thin voices, and delight in jumping over shadows and cracks on the floor for all the world like a group of children on the way home from school.

One of their favorite tricks is to climb on their mother's back when she is lying down. They curl up there and make themselves at home. When the ewe gets up they ride with her until they fall off.

The lambs have access to feed of their own in a creep. The creep is constructed so that the lambs can enter it easily, but the ewes are barred from the trough. They are getting a mixture of ground oats and bran.

Ewes on Grain Ration.

The ewes are being fed oats in addition to their ration of hay in order to stimulate the production of milk. They were put on a grain ration about two weeks before lambing started to flush them out and bring them into top condition.

The ewes went into the lambing pens in good health and with plenty of fat on their backs. In the late fall and winter they had been allowed to range thru the cornfields after the corn picker. As a result they picked up considerable fallen grain and consumed a lot of the stalks.

As soon as the weather promises to remain warm the new lambs and their mothers will be turned out in the woods to forage for themselves. One of the most humorous sights in the world is a group of new lambs experiencing their first day outdoors. Their attempts to nibble on the grass, barn door, stones, and anything else, and their reaction to the discovery that the world is not limited to the four walls of the barn is a display not to be missed.

TRUCKERS SIGN WAGE CONTRACT WITH OPERATORS

A labor contract affecting more than 250,000 motor truck transport drivers in 12 midwestern states has been finally signed by truck line owners and driver union representatives after six months of negotiations, John L. Keeshin announced yesterday in Chicago. Keeshin is chairman of the central states area committee which represents more than 800 truck line operators and owners.

At times during the negotiations the drivers threatened to strike, and several issues were referred to the National Defense Mediation board and later to the War Labor board. The drivers received wage increase of 10 cents an hour to 90 cents or .4 cent a mile to 3.4 cents.

APPROVED PLANS FOR LIQUIDATING UTILITY COMPANY

Philadelphia, Pa., April 3 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission approved today an amended plan for the liquidation and dissolution of the 3 million dollar Great Lakes Utilities company. The SEC already has petitioned the United States District court here for final approval of the plan and a hearing has been set for April 21.

The company, which supplies gas in Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Virginia, and South Dakota, sought dissolution because the combination of its properties did not lend itself to successful refunding operations.

F.D.R. Talks War Jobs with AFL-CIO

Washington, D. C., April 3 (AP).—The AFL-CIO labor war board met today with President Roosevelt and its members said a number of "very important matters" were discussed but declined to disclose what they were.

They did say, however, there was some general discussion of the question of mobilizing man power for war production, but indicated no decision on the subject had been reached by the President. They said their recommendations still stood that this mobilization be entrusted to the labor department.

The board will meet with Mr. Roosevelt again next Friday.

Would Penalize Employers.

Sen. Robert M. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] meanwhile introduced legislation to penalize employers for "anti-union" practices.

He said only 30 to 40 per cent of war industry is unionized, and "those who sincerely wish to promote the war effort thru a maximum industrial production free from work stoppages caused by industrial disputes will favor a quick and vigorous extension of collective bargaining to all" the affected plants.

Noting proposals for suspending the 40 hour week, La Follette said labor needed assurance the war emergency would not be used to deprive it of its rights.

His bill would list "oppressive labor practices," among them the use of strike breakers, private armed guards, the possession or use of fire arms or tear gas during labor disturbances, and interference with peaceful picketing.

Violations would be punishable by a fine of $10,000 or six months' imprisonment.

As chairman of a labor subcommittee which conducted an investigation of alleged anti-union practices, La Follette introduced a similar bill in 1940, which passed the senate but died in the house.

Urges 6th Day Work.

Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.] suggested a solution for the continuing controversy on overtime pay. In a letter to President Roosevelt he proposed that labor work a sixth or "victory day" each week at regular wages with the war industries rebating to the government the saving in overtime pay.

"I don't think this is the time for enactment of vindictive labor legislation," he said. "The country wants longer hours worked in war industries and it will achieve that purpose one way or another.

"If a voluntary agreement of this nature could be reached the country would be satisfied and labor still would retain its basic 40 hour week after the war ends."

Most Markets and Illinois Banks Will Reopen Today

Most of the nation's major financial and commodity markets will reopen today following the Good Friday holiday. Exceptions include the cocoa, cottonseed oil, coffee, and sugar exchanges in New York, which will remain closed until Monday. Illinois banks, closed yesterday, will reopen today.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation announced that its first shipments of lake ore this season arrived Thursday night and the two vessels started their second round trip yesterday. One vessel, the H. H. Rogers, unloaded at Gary, Ind., and the other, the Princeton, unloaded at the company's South Chicago works.

TRANSIT MERGER O. K.'D BY MAJOR BOND COMMITTEE

The Abbott committee, which represents the principal securities interests of the Chicago Surface lines, at a special meeting yesterday voted its approval of the proposed 179 million dollar merger and reorganization of the surface and elevated lines.

The committee, which is headed by W. Rufus Abbott, former president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, will report its action to Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe at a court hearing Monday. Judge Igoe is expected at that time to order the submission of the consolidation plan to a vote of the transit lines' 100,000 securities holders on April 14.

City officials, meanwhile, proceeded with plans to place the city's traction unification ordinance, which grants a franchise to the proposed unified traction system, on a special ballot at the June 1 judicial election.
